August Retail Beef Prices Show A Rise Of 4.5 Cents

Middleman Is Taking Bigger Cut Of The Pie

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail beef prices in late August climed to $1.465 a pound — the highest level since last Feburary — as the middleman's margin continued to grow, new Agriculture Department data showed yesterday.

But an expert added that cattle prices and wholesale beef prices declined in early September and a report available next week may show that retail prices eased down in the week ending Sept. 7.

The data released today showed that both an increase in the middleman's share of the consumer beef bill to 51.6 cents a pound and an overall higher average in cattle prices during the month of August attributed to the rise in retail prices.

Depspite the overall rise, cattle prices declined gradually each week during August. The beef data showed farmers in the week ending Aug. 31, got 95 cents for the 2.28 pounds of live cattle needed to produce one pound of retail beef, down 5.9 cents from Aug. 10.

The middleman's spread, which covers both costs and profits in processing, transportation and retailing, rose 10.5 cents a pound from 41.1 cents Aug. 10 to 51.6 cents Aug. 31.

Retail prices rose from $1.42 a pound for all cuts of Choice grade beef in the week ending Aug. 10, to about $1.465 in the week ending Aug. 31, the highest since the $1.53 record in mid-February.

The Aug. 31 spread was close to the decade-high levels of early summer and was 15.7 cents above the average for the full month of August, 1973.

The new report, showing weekly estimates as well as the previously-published monthly averages, was issued as part of an administration campaign to pressure retailers and proces sers into squeezing their margins.

Agriculture officials said recently that increased efficiency in meat marketing — which they conceded would be difficult to achieve — could reduce costs as much as 5 cents a pound.

The new report showed retail beef prices for the full month of August averaged 1.45 a pound, up 7.2 cents from the July average. Farm returns which had dipped to 77.7 cents for the equivalent of a retail pound in June and risen to 90.9 cents in July, advanced to an average of 97.7 cents for August. This ac-

Bombers Damage Another Dean Witter Co. Office

PALO ALTO (UPI) — A bomb exploded outside the Dean Witter & Co. brokerage offices here early today in the second such attack on the company in 10 days.

A device, believed to be a pipe bomb, shattered windows in the company's offices at 555 University Avenue about 12:30 a. m. The blast caused little damage and no injuries.

On Sept. 3, a late-night explosion rocked a company office in San Francisco, smashing a plate-glass door and shattering glass.

Dick Quinlan, manager of the Palo Alto office, said today's blast caused no interruption of business. "We are operational," he said. "Three or four windows were blown out, that's all."

Police said the pipe bomb was placed in a service entrance at the side of the building. The explosion set off an alarm at a nearby building.

Several hours later, police conducted a high-speed chase near the scene, but officers said later it was unrelated to the blast and they had no leads on who set the pipe bomb.

Investigators were checking with San Francisco authorities to determine whether the bomb was similar to the one which was set off there, and police in Los Angeles were also being contracted in the case.

Following the explosion Sept., 3, Peter M. Zuber, vice president of Dean Witter, said it apparently was a "senseless act" which may have been committed by "a disgruntled client" because the stock market was dropping.

However, Zuber said after today's explosion that the bombs were "apparently the work of a nutty group" rather than a disgruntled stock market customer.

He said a call had been received at the company's headquarters last week in which the anonymous caller said, "Tell Mr. Witter we are going to hit a couple more of his offices."

Radio Station KPFA in Berkeley received a tape in which a group identifying itself as "People Forces New World Liberation Front" claimed responsibility for the Sept. 3 blast.

According to the message, the attack on Dean Witter Co. was made because "oppressed people throughout the world are in open rebellion against the giant corporations and the pigs who own them."

It said the brokerage firm was singled out because the firm profits on selling stock of "corporations that exploit the people."

A Dean Witter spokesman said the firm had no idea why it was a target of the bombs. He said brokerage companies are among the hardest hit by the slump in the stock market.

Contract Is Approved For Terminal

Golden Gate Bridge District directors today approved a $9.8 million contract to build the Larkspur ferry terminal.

The 12-3 vote came after more than an hour debate over legislative analyst A. Alan Post's recommendations that the project be redesigned.

District directors and staff, however, agreed that redesigning would mean even higher bids because of inflation.

The low bid of $13.7 million by Williams and Burrows of Belmont was trimmed by $3.9 million. Ten items were eliminated from the original bid, including floats, the roof and two $7,000 flagpoles.

With cost of land fees and dredging, total price tag for the terminal stands at $13.2 million.

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring said that some sort of canopy would replace the roof if a private company could not be found to build a commercial structure above the terminal.

It is scheduled to open in the spring of 1976.

Inmate Makes A Freedom Exit

A 30-year-old inmate serving a second degree murder sentence climbed a fence and walked away from a minimum security area yesterday at San Quentin, prison officials said today.

The inmate, Gordon C. Daniels of Los Angeles County, was working on a ground crew when he disappeared about 10:45 a.m. near the west gate, a prison spokesman said today. Search by grounds and road crews failed to turn up Daniels.

He was serving a five-years-to-life sentence.

Dog Shows In Spotlight As Top Events For The Weekend

Every dog will have its day and for more than 2,500 of them it will be tomorrow and Sunday at the Marin County fairgrounds at the Civic Center in San Rafael.

It will be the biggest event for Marin and Southern Sonoma residents seeking entertainment close to home this weekend.

The Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club will have its 15th annual all-breed championship show from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow. Eleven different one-breed dog fanciers' groups will have their dogs on display.

The Golden Gate Dachshund Club will hold its speciality tomorrow at the Sportsman Lodge, Novato and the Doberman Pinscher Club of Northern California will hold its specialty tomorrow at the Alvarado Inn in Novato.

A total of 116 breeds will be judged on Sunday, starting at 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. There is a $1 admission for adults and $2.50 for families.

Spyplane Flashes To A Speed Record

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — The U.S. Air Force SR71 spy plane flashed across the Southern California Coast today in a successful attempt to beat the sun to Los Angeles and set a London-to-Los Angeles speed record.

The Blackbird high-altitude reconnaissance plane swept through the Los Angeles "gate" near here at 25,000 feet at 8:59 a.m. PDT, only three hours and 48 minutes after the official start of its 5,645-mile flight.

It arrived more than four hours earlier than it took off in terms of local time and averaged nearly 1,500 miles an hour.

The spy plane, twice delayed by mechanical problems, took off from Mildenhall Royal Air Force Base in England at 1 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) and went through the London radar "gate" at 1:11 p.m.

After it crossed the coast, the SR71 flew on to Beale Air Force Base in Northern California.

The pilots, Capt. Harold Adams, 31, of Spokane, Washington, and Maj. William Machorek, 32, of Teaneck, N.J., brought the Blackbird back to Mildenhall half an hour after takeoff yesterday when the oil pressure on the jet's engines began fluctuating, the spokesman said.

The original departure date Wednesday also was put back 24 hours because more maintenance was needed on the SR71. It had flown to Britain Sept. 1 and set a new New York-London speed mark of 1 hour 55 minutes 42 seconds.

The Air Force plans to submit times for both flights to the International Aeronautical Federation, accrediting organization for all aviation records.

Youth Claims Rights Violated

By ERIK M. INGRAM and NELS JOHNSON

A 13-year-old Terra Linda youth, questioned by San Rafael police as to his whereabouts during last month's knife-and-bludgeon slaying of Lucy Ann Gilbride, protested last night to the Marin County Human Rights Commission that he had been improperly detained by the officers. (For another complaint to the commission, see story page 6.)

The commission, reacting in astonishment to allegations that the officers refused to allow him to contact his parents and then failed to do so themselves, called for investigation by the district attorney and the grand jury.

Daniel Pomeroy of 92 Golden Hinde Boulevard, accompanied by his mother, Jeannette, told the commission he was taken from his home under false pretenses Aug. 30 and held at the San Rafael police station for more than five hours.

The blond youth, who stands about five-feet, eight-inches tall and weighs about 140 pounds, was calm in his account of the events on that cool August day.

It began about 2 p.m., young Pomeroy said. That was three days after the 52-year-old wife of Robert Gilbride, vice principal of Terra Linda High School, was found clubbed and stabbed to death in the family home at 36 Golden Hinde.

He said the officers asked to see the sole prints of his hiking boots to determine if they match bloody bootprints found in the Gilbride home.

The youth, in a quiet voice that was at times almost inaudible to commissioners, said he told officers the hiking boots were common, himself having a friend with a similar pair.

The officers then asked him to take them to the other youth's home but en route asked if he would accompany them to the police station to identify some items, Daniel said, adding that he agreed to do so.

Once there, he was fingerprinted and interrogated until 7:30 p.m. by inspectors Bart W. Stinson and Raymond Maynard. At times, Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly was present.

He said he was asked where he was on the day of the killing and responded that he was at "the lagoon" — presumably meaning the Civic Center Lagoon.

The youth said he told officers he met no one he knew at the lagoon. Later, he continued, officers told him his fingerprints matched those found in the Gilbride home.

"The police said . . . my fingerprints matched two of those taken off the Gilbride door," he told the commission. "That's not true."

He added later that at one point he asked officers if he could have "blacked out" and officers said it was possible.

Daniel said that his request to use a telephone — after being told his rights — was turned down by police officers, who said they would contact his parents.

Mrs. Pomeroy, who works for the county mental health department, said she did not learn of her son's situation until returning home after 5 p.m.

Under the state welfare and institutions code, which governs juvenile detention, authorities must make a diligent effort to contact a parent, relative or guardian of the minor taken into custody; the minor also has the right to make two phone calls.

His mother said she went to the police station after police officers finally contacted her. He was released, without charges, at 7:30 p.m.

"I don't feel Daniel was treated fairly . . . that that there was an abuse of power," Mrs. Pomeroy told the commission. No spokesman for the police department attended last night's session.

"I spoke with Chief Kelly yesterday," she went on, "and he tried to persuade me not to go to the media with it in order to protect Daniel's privacy." She told the Independent-Journal later that she had decided to do so "because both Daniel and I are indignant. People shouldn't be treated this way."

She added that her attorney, Carl Shaprio of San Anselmo, had advised her a civil suit "would not be appropriate."

Commissioner Sue Oliver, attending her first commission meeting, said she felt the officers involved should be investigated for their failure to either let Daniel call or to contact his mother themselves.

Other commissioners agreed, but noted the rights commission is not staffed to make an investigation of its own.

Several questioned whether it would be appropriate.

A motion to ask the district attorney and the grand jury to investigate was passed unanimously by the six commissioners. (One commission seat is vacant.)

Chief Kelly, contacted by the I-J, said an inquiry is already under way into the Pomeroy charges, received in a letter last week. He said he is looking into the matter personally.

That letter reads in part: "I certainly believe the police should ask questions and check out leads in relation to a crime.

"However, I strongly object to the manner in which they went about luring Daniel to the station alone, interrogating him without allowing him to call a

Novato Pay Pact Taken By Teachers

Novato teachers yesterday voted 208 to 44 to accept the 8.4 per cent pay raise offered by the Novato Unified School District board, thus averting a strike.

Jerrold Moore, president of the Novato Teachers Association, estimated the voter turnout at 55 per cent.

The vote ended a dispute between the teachers and the board which started in May with teachers seeking a 22 per cent pay increase.

During negotiations teachers dropped to 16.5 per cent and the board offered 6 per cent. After an impasse, a fact-finding committee was established. Morris L. Myers, neutral member of the committee, recommended the 8.4 per cent raise, which was accepted by the board Tuesday.

STUDENT ARREST — A white youth arrested in connection with protests over court-ordered desegregation of Boston schools was surrounded by police on foot and horseback yesterday as demonstrations marked the first day of classes under the desegregation order.

Police Escort Boston Children To School In Integration Rift

BOSTON (UPI) — Motorcycle police escorted busloads of school children today for the second day of classes under a federal desegregation order marked by widespread boycotts and sporadic violence.

Just as classes began today, Thomas I. Atkins, president of the Boston chapter of the NAACP, who urged black parents not to send their children into South Boston, said he will go into U.S. District Court today to ask that federal marshals be provided to escort black students in and out of the area.

"I don't want our kids used as cannon fodder," Atkins said.

Eight black youngsters suffered minor injuries yesterday when the buses they were riding home from South Boston High and the Gavin school were stoned by groups of whites. A bus monitor also was injured. All received outpatient hospial treatment.

Today, only two white children were aboard the first bus that arrived at Roxbury High School.

Fifteen motorcycle police escorted buses into South Boston High School and Gavin school, the two most troubled schools.

The police force outside South Boston school included 35 riot-trained tactical officers, 25 regular uniformed patrolmen, five motorcycle police, two captains, three lieutenants and one deputy superintendent.

Fifteen black workers from Freedom House, which is coordinating the busing and desegregation plan in the black community, were stationed inside South Boston High as monitors.

The incidents in South Boston caused Mayor Kevin H. White to clamp tight security measures on the area and prompted Atkins to urge black parents not to send their children to school there. But a spokesman for Freedom House quickly made a plea to black parents urging them to have their children go to school.

Classroom boycotts yesterday caused absenteeism of 33 per cent citywide and up to 95 per cent among white students in some areas of the city. School opening was generally peaceful, but was marred by several incidents in South Boston which resulted in 13 minor injuries, including those to the black children, and six arrests.

TODAY'S WORLD

"Everything's like new again — including the amount you owe on it!"

Winds Blowing Against $850,000 For Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bitter, at times angry, Democratic opposition is building in Congress to an $850,000 request to pay for former President Nixon's transition to private life.

"I dont think the country will stand for it," declared Rep. George Shipley, D-Ill.

"As one who has been pardoned from crimes, he is of less worth to the world than one who left in good grace," said Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio.

"In my view, fairness to the American people requires that we appropriate none of it," said Rep. Robert Leggett, D-Calif. "Now that Mr. Nixon has been pardoned for the crimes he committed against the American people, there's no reason why they should be compelled to continue to support him in luxury."

Arthur Sampson, head of the General Services Administration which would administer the Nixon funds, underwent critical day-long questioning yesterday before a House Appropriations subcommittee.

House members even began to express anger over the protection of former presidents' families.

The GSA is seeking $400,000 under the Former Presidents Act and $450,000 in transitional expenses. Democrats said the amount sought to provide Nixon with a staff, offices, and assistance in screening his presidential papers were excessive, and twice what was provided President Lyndon B. Johnson.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Tito Smashes Pro-Soviet Move-ment

BELGRADE (UPI) — Authorities have smashed the first, organized attempt to set up an opposition, pro-Soviet Communist party in Yugoslavia since President Josip Broz Tito broke with the Kremlin a quarter-century ago.

Tito

Tito revealed details of the round-up yesterday and said members of the clandestine, pro-Soviet group are being tried for attempting to overthrow his regime.

"These people — about 30 of them — are now on trial . . . and will certainly be condemned," the 82-year-old ruler told a civic meeting in the Northern Yugoslavian town of Jesenice.

The prisoners, mainly old-guard officials stripped of their powers, face the death penalty if convicted of trying to overthrow the government.

Communist sources said the prisoners are being tried secretly in the town of Pec in southwest Yugoslavia.

Clashes At Hue

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist and government forces fought heavy battles around Hue in a continuing North Vietnamese offensive apparently aimed at isolating the northern city, the Saigon command said today.

Spokesmen reported eight significant attacks yesterday on South Vietnamese positions within 15 miles of the former imperial capital, 400 miles north of Siagon.

They said 26 Communist troops and two government soldiers were killed and another 16 South Vietnamese were wounded.

In Cambodia, about 600 students marched through the streets of Phnom Penh today, shouting support of their government in an oil dispute with South Vietnam and demanding the expulsion of Saigon's ambassador to Cambodia.

Storm Fizzles

MIAMI (UPI) — A tropical depression which forecasters thought might develop into tropical storm Fifi was broken up by Cuba's mountains yesterday and tropical storm Elaine, fifth of the season, moved farther away from land.

Forecasters were watching a weak tropical wave in the Caribbean and a weak tropical disturbance in the Atlantic 1,000 miles east of the Leeward Islands, but neither showed any sign of strengthening in the next 24 hours, said forecaster John Hope at the National Hurricane Center.

Prisoner Talks

NICOSIA (UPI) — Leaders of the Greek and Turkish communities on Cyprus meet today to set a date for freeing the first group of 3,000 prisoners taken during summer warfare on the Mediterranean island.

President Glafkos Clerides, leader of the island's Greeks, and Vice President Rauf Denktash, head of the Turks, agreed Wednesday to exchange imprisoned teachers, youths and ailing islanders, but failed to set a date.

Guerrillas Help

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Black guerrillas are being airlifted into Mozambique to help Portuguese troops keep order in the explosive colony, Portugal's Rear Admiral Victor Crespo said today.

The admiral said he expected a black-majority government to be installed in Mozambique "within a week."

"The war is now over," the admiral said, referring to a white-led revolt and black backlash riots which tore through the country and delayed the colony's transition to independence.

Peace Problems

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli information Minister Aharon Yariv said today negotiations with Jordan posed problems for Israel because of the possibility of renewed war in the Middle East.

He said Israel was not insisting on talks with Egypt before beginning peace talks with Jordan. In fact, Yariv said, Israel was still not sure Cairo really sought true peace with the Jewish state.

Prison Threat

BELFAST (UPI) — The Provisional Wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army threatened today to shoot wardens and guards at Maze prison unless conditions at the British-run jail were improved.

British Army soldiers surrounded the prison and sealed off all approach roads.

Congress Is Told Of Ford's Wants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has given Congress a lengthy list of legislation he wants before adjournment, putting top priority on confirming Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president, keeping federal spending under $300 million, and a trade bill.

Ford's seven-foot-long message does not mention campaign reform, and indicates little prospect for enactment of national health insurance.

It requests action on bills dealing with foreign policy, energy, veterans' education, employment, health, and transportation.

Most of the bills are well on their way to passage. Some, including an energy tax package, are given little chance.

Although the Democratic leadership has announced Congress will return, the White House deputy press secretary, John W. Hushen, said Ford's list was "predicated on the assumption that final adjournment would come before the November elections and we don't want them to come back for a lame duck session."

Ford said it was not necessary to submit a complete list of administration initiatives because Congress "knows them as well as I do."

But he said "that the inevitable consequence of any legislative message in the twilight of the 93rd Congress is to suggest deferment of some desirable legislation in favor of imperatives that are realistic in the time we have left."

The most glaring omission was any reference to campaign reform, now in a Senate-House conference.

Both the Senate and House bills would provide federal financing of some primaries and elections, a ceiling on candidate spending, and a limit on campaign contributions.

Ford said Rockefeller's confirmation was of "utmost importance" and added he was sure there would be "no inordinate delay."

Politics Charged In Audit Report

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A chorus of critics protesting "political motivation" yesterday greeted an auditor general's report that charged the state loses $11.2 million annually through poor investment policies.

The report laid responsibility for $7.2 million of the estimated loss to State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, and State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest, also a Republican.

Some 21 recommended investment policy changes were listed in the report released by Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee.

Flournoy suggested to newsmen that the report was inspired by the Democratic-controlled legislature. He said he found "interesting" investigations by the auditor general of other state commissions on which Flournoy serves.

"Yes, I think there is reason to believe that all of a sudden this attention is not just motivated by a new discovery that there is a controller," Flournoy said.

In prepeared statements, Deputy State Controller Austen Smart and Chief Deputy State Treasurer Alex Steinkamp both labeled the report "politically motivated."

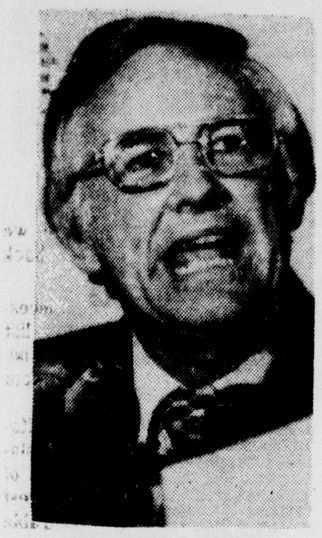
Specifically, the reported credited policies and practices of the state Pooled Money Investment Board with losing $3.2 million annually.

The board rules on investment and banking policies, determining how much money will be invested by the state. Board membership is made up by Mrs. Priest, Flournoy and state Finance Director Verne Orr.

The report said $250 million in state funds that must be kept in interest bearing accounts is not earning the highest possible rate of return. The loss was estimated at $2.5 million, while another $930,000 was lost because $15 million had been kept in non-interest paying checking accounts.

The report said Flournoy's office lost $2.1 million in interest earnings because of its policy to disburse state funds to counties before the money is needed.

"Ridiculous," charged Smart. "Straining to gain a few days or one-day interest on these funds would work a hardship on welfare recipients and impair efficiency of local government operations," he said.



WILLIAM A. NORRIS
Would call jury

Norris Vows Prosecution Of Nixon

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — William A. Norris, Democratic nominee for California attorney general, said yesterday that his first priority if elected would be to call a special grand jury to investigate and prosecute possible crimes former President Richard Nixon committed against the state.

"The attorney general of California is the one person in the country, perhaps in the world, who can bring Mr. Nixon to justice and restore public confidence in our system of laws," Norris said.

Norris, a Los Angeles attorney, told newsmen in San Francisco that most possible state prosecutions involving Nixon would be connected with the break-in of the offices of Dr. Louis Felding, psychiatrist of Daniel Ellsberg. Those possibilities range from obstruction of justice to accessory after the fact.

"Nixon also bugged the telephone of his brother Donald Nixon, an act over which he had no legal jurisdiction — he acted on his own," Norris said.

Under California law, in Norris' view, the attorney general can call a special grand jury with or without the concurrence of the local district attorney. Incumbent Republican Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger earlier this week said it was up to Los Angeles District Attorney Joseph Busch to call the grand jury.

Busch has said the statute of limitations has run out in the Ellsberg case. But Norris contends that California law does not count the time a person is out of the state, or immune from prosecution, in calculating the three-year limit. In his opinion, the clock for Nixon started when the former president resigned.

Bar May Not Let Nixon Quit Quietly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon has run into a stumbling block in his attempt to relinquish — quietly and without public controversy — his right to practice law in California.

The State Bar's ruling body yesterday urged the state Supreme Court to reject Nixon's resignation because his terse, two-paragraph letter of explanation failed to acknowledge he was being investigated for possible disbarment.

Brent Abel, bar president, told newsmen, "We are very clear on the point we're not a part of any scenario or arrangement to make it look one way, when it is something else."

Another spokesman, who asked not to be named, bluntly said, "The bar wants no appearance of a Watergate cover-up."

The bar has been investigating Nixon for a year. If the high court follows its recommendation, the probe would continue until Nixon is either disbarred or acquitted.

The board also recommended that if the Supreme Court, the final authority, decided to accept resignation, that it note that disciplinary proceedings against Nixon were pending and if the former president attempted to rejoin the bar the investigation could be reopened.

BLAST DAMAGE — Rescuers picked through the wreckage of a Madrid bar today searching for survivors of a bomb blast which killed at least nine persons and injured about 40 others. The bomb exploded in the Rolanda restaurant during the noon hour. (UPI Telephoto)

CIA Chief In Defense Of Secrecy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director William E. Colby told an unfriendly audience today that secret intelligence operations are necessary to prevent the nation from being overcome by its enemies.

"...In a world which can destroy itself through misunderstanding or miscalculation, it is important that our leaders have a clear perception of the motives, intentions and strategies of other powers," Colby said.

"These kinds of insights cannot be obtained only through technical means or analysis. From closed societies they can only be otained by secret intelligence operations, without which our country must risk subordination to possible adversaries."

Colby defended clandestine CIA activity in a speech to a symposium sponsored by the National Security Studies section of the privately financed Fund for Peace, which has castigated covert operations as illegal, immoral, unconstitutional and a violation of international law and the United Nations Charter.

Former officials of the CIA, State Department and Pentagon intelligence groups, authors, researchers and journalists came with new ammunition — the disclosure, through news "leaks," that the CIA spent from $8 million to $11 million to "destabilize" the Marxist government of President Salvador Allende in Chile. Allende was deposed and died in a military coup last year.

A State Department official meanwhile acknowledged receiving a warning from Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan that disclosure of CIA activities in Chile had confirmed Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's "worst suspicions and genuine fears" of U.S. policy toward her country.

The Indian ambassador delivered the warning in a cable to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, but a spokesman said the department did not agree with Moynihan's assessment. "You all know," he said, "that Pat Moynihan is a very colorful writer and much given to hyperbole."

Secrecy, said Colby, was necessary to military services and even Congress.

"Our military forces must be responsive to our public, but our public does not demand that our war plans be published," he said.

"It is even necessary for the Congress to conduct some of its business in executive (closed) session, while remaining accountable to the voters for the legislation it passes."

Similarly, Colby said, the CIA maintains "the necessary secrecy of the sources and methods of our intelligence."

Madrid Bomb Blast Kills At Least Nine

MADRID (UPI) — Several people were killed today when an explosion rocked a bar next door to national police headquarters.

Police said at least nine persons were killed and 40 more were injured, many of them seriously.

The bar is frequented by plainclothes inspectors from the adjoining police headquarters in the crowded Puerta del Sol square in the center of Madrid.

Shortly after the explosion police received reports of a bomb placed across town in the municipal hydroelectric company office. Police evacuated it and blocked it off.

The blast came two days after police engaged in two gun battles in downtown Bilbao, in northern Spain, with members of the separatist organization "Basque Homeland and Liberty." One Basque was killed and seven others captured.

Ex-Marinite Found Dead In Jail Cell

I-J Special Report

SANTA CRUZ — A former Marinite, Barbara M. Nelson, 32, was found hanged in a Santa Cruz jail cell yesterday morning, police reported today.

Police said they arrested Mrs. Nelson, now a resident of Santa Cruz, Wednesday night for drunkenness after she attempted to jump into a stranger's car in a supermarket parking lot.

Police said that John Lopez, with whom Mrs. Nelson had been living the past year, told them that prior to the parking lot incident she had attempted to jump from his car, then traveling 35 or 40 miles an hour.

Lopez then asked police to get help from the local crisis intervention center. But, police said, the center told them that if Mrs. Nelson were intoxicated it could not help her until morning and police booked her into the city jail.

Mrs. Nelson leaves two children, Joey Nelson, 15, and Deborah Nelson, 12, of the Santa Cruz home.

Police said she had a record of despondency for about a year.

counted for 6.8 cents of the retail increase, and the remaining 0.4 cents came as spreads rose from a 47-cent July average to 47.4 cents for the full month of August.

For pork, the report showed retail prices rose 2.7 cents a pound to about $1.095 between early and late August, due almost entirely to higher farm prices. Retail prices for the entire month of August averaged 4.7 cents a pound above July because of increases in both farm prices and middleman's spreads.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Public Trial Is Key To Justice

It is fundamental that justice should be done. It also should clearly and undoubtedly be seen to be done. So spoke an early English judge.

It is a basic principle of our American System that all trials be public. The public has the right to see that litigants are "fairly dealt with." Interested spectators keep the courts alive to their responsibilities, and to the importance of their function.

The Constitution guarantees the right to public trial. Violation of the right to a public trial voids the entire trial — a person convicted on a criminal charge is entitled to a reversal. The defendant need not demonstrate that there was any actual prejudice.

Once a few cases held that a trial could be closed to the public, if the purpose were to exclude curious spectators attracted by the prospect of sensational testimony. But that view has been changed.

In a recent case, based on rape and sex perversion, the judge excluded all persons except the defendant, counsel, officers of the court, and jurors. The conviction of the defendant for sex perversion was reversed. The appellate court held that the trial court had no power to exclude or limit the spectators.

A court may limit spectators to preserve order or to prevent a disturbance. But a general exclusion of spectators is not proper. And a defendant cannot ask for a closed trial against the objection of members of the public. The defendant's right is to a "public trial," not to a public or private trial at his election.

A court may exclude cameras and TV from the courtroom. In certain preliminary proceedings, a court may exclude some of the public.

Controls Set On Hang Gliding

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Recreation and Park Commission voted yesterday to ban hang-gliding at all locations but one in the city.

The commission agreed to allow the spectacular sport for at least another month from the cliffs at Fort Funston, after hearing from hang-gliding enthusiasts that the cliffs there were among the safest in the area.

The commissioners took the action after police complained that the soaring gliders were presenting a traffic and enforcement problem along the Great Highway at the city's coastline.

Germans Holding A U.S. Soldier

BERLIN (UPI) — Soviet officials in East Berlin have been holding a U.S. soldier for three days after he reportedly was caught trying to smuggle a refugee into the Western sector of Berlin, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

The spokesman identified the soldier as Spec. 4 William Medley, 24, of Kettering, Ohio. He is attached to the 287th Military Police Company.

The spokesman said East German border guards detained the uniformed soldier Tuesday night.

Senate Confirms Three As Envoys

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate yesterday approved the nomination of former Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., as this country's first ambassador to East Germany. The United States established diplomatic relations with East Germany last week.

The Senate also confirmed the nominations of former child movie star Shirley Temple Black as ambassador to Ghana and Kenneth Rush as ambassador to France.

OBITUARIES

James H. Allen, 48, Of San Anselmo, Dies

James H. Allen of San Anselmo, cofounder and president of the Allen Heating and Sheet Metal Co. in Greenbrae, died yesterday at his home after a long illness. He was 48.

He was born in Los Angeles and had lived in Marin for 32 years.

Allen and his wife, Etta, founded the sheet metal firm in 1957 and watched the company grow from two to 14 employees. Mrs. Allen will succeed her husband as president. Their son, James A. Allen of Fairfax also works for the firm.

Allen was a member of the San Rafael Elks Lodge. As a hobby, he raised quarter horses on a ranch he owned in Sonoma.

In addition to his wife and son, he is survived by another son, Craig K. Allen of San Anselmo; two brothers, Roy A. Allen of El Cerrito and Charles H. Allen of Vallejo and a sister, Dorothy J. Ender of Tracy.

Funeral will be at 10:30 a.m. Monday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children in San Francisco or the American Cancer Society.

MRS. VOGT

Funeral for Marjorie E. Vogt of Larkspur will be at 8 p.m. Monday, at Holy Innocents Episcopal Church in Corte Madera.

Mrs. Vogt died Wednesday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 58.

A psychiatric social worker, Mrs. Vogt had worked in Washington, D.C. before coming to Marin about 10 years ago when she retired. Mrs. Vogt had been a watercolor artist in Marin and was a member of the Larkspur Friends of the Library and the Altar Guild of Holy Innocents Episcopal Church in Corte Madera.

She leaves no immediate family.

Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael.

AMY BERNARDO

Amy Bernardo of San Rafael died yesterday at a local hospital following a long illness. She was 58.

Mrs. Bernardo was born in England and came to California when she was 5 years old. She and her husband, Raymond A. Bernardo of San Rafael, have lived in San Rafael for the past 22 years.

She is survived by her husband, a daughter, Joan Vasconcellos, and two grandchildren, all of San Rafael.

Mrs. Bernardo had been a bookkeeper for a paint and building supplies firm in San Francisco.

Funeral will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be private.

CORA DANIELS

Cora S. Daniels, longtime Mill Valley resident and former Rebekah Lodge leader, died yesterday in Letterman Hospital, San Francisco, after a lengthy illness. She was 83.

Born in Massachussetts, she was brought to Mill Valley by her family as a child. She was the widow of the late John H. Daniels, a career Army master sergeant at the Presidio of San Francisco. He died in 1959.

Mrs. Daniels is survived by a daughter, Patricia F. Lemo of San Anselmo; a stepson, George Anderson; a sister, Lilli Latham of South Dakota, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

She was a 50-year life member of Order of Eastern Star, initiated in the Rohnerville Chapter in 1912 and the Mill Valley chapter in 1923; past noble grand of the Blythedale Rebekah Lodge No. 305 of Mill Valley, initiated in 1936, and a member of the American Legion Auxiliary in Mill Valley.

Mill Valley Chapter 219, Order of Eastern Star, will conduct the funeral at 1 p.m. Monday in the Russell and Gooch chapel, Mill Valley. Burial will be in the Presidio National Cemetery. Friends may call at the mortuary after 5 p.m. tomorrow.

GLADYS BURKE

Gladys Burke of Marin City, a 25-year-Marin resident, died Monday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. She was 67.

Mrs. Burke was born in Utah and had lived in California 60 years.

Survivors include her husband, Cecil Burke.

No funeral is planned.

EDWARD TRINIDAD

Edward R. Trinidad of Petaluma died last night in a local hospital of head injuries suffered Aug. 22 in an auto accident on Bodega Avenue in Petaluma. He was 28.

Trinidad was a native of New York City.

He worked as a custodian at San Francisco State University. His home was at 304 Walnut Street.

He is survived by his wife, Carol Trinidad; a daughter, Tamara; his father, Carmelo Trinidad of New York; a brother, Estaban Trinidad of San Diego, and two sisters, Elodia Lugaban and Amelia Soto, both of Oakland.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Parent Funeral Chapel in Petaluma.

family member, leading him on in questioning . . . to the point where he doubted himself (a doubt which, however much proved false, will remain a scar the rest of his life.)

"Also, questioning Daniel over such a long period of time (about 2 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.), periodically and inexplicably leaving him alone and keeping him physically chilly seems like cruel and unusual treatment," Mrs. Pomeroy's letter states. "I am asking for a hearing and a clarification of policies in regard to your interrogation procedures."

Kelly, characterizing the matter as resulting from an "unfortunate misunderstanding," said he has complete confidence in police inspectors Stinson and Maynard, who quizzed the youth. He also said he had given the boy a jacket.

The chief said he is unable to respond to some of Mrs. Pomeroy's accusations "because of other evidence in the (murder) case."

Kelly, who was present during some of the questioning, described the interview as being conducted on a "low-key basis" due to the age of the subject.

Marin Homeowner's Notebook

TERMITES INVADING MARIN HOMES NOW.

Every homeowner in Marin County should be on the alert this month for a cloud of winged ant-like insects anywhere around his home. Don't assume that they are ants. It may be a swarm of termites!

In the early spring and fall, all three types of termites found in Marin send out swarms of flying "kings" and "queens" to start new nests. Swarming is heavy and noticeable on a sunny day following rain, but continues to some degree from late February through late October.

Termite colonies send out swarms only after they've been established for three years or more. The flying reproductives can go only a short distance, seldom more than 100 feet unless helped by winds. So if you see a cloud of swarmers or their discarded wings, there's a termite nest nearby.

The swarmers can act as an early-warning system for you. The nest is still fairly small when the first swarms are sent out. If you detect an early swarm, therefore, you've avoided the worst damage. Later, the nests grow to 250,000 termites or more.

The three types of termites in Marin have somewhat different habits for nesting and swarming. But all three types have infested homes in every part of Marin. And contrary to popular belief, they can infest both new and old homes. So every Marin homeowner should be alert this month.

If you see a swarm or discarded wings, call Hinkley & Gordon for a complete Structural Pest Control Inspection. The cost of a Hinkley & Gordon inspection, the most thorough in Marin County, costs just $50 for the average home.

This inspection isn't just a gimmick to sell you a "termite job." It's the best way to avoid one.

Parkinson Posts Bail In Sex Case

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Dr. Gaylord B. Parkinson, former chairman of the California Republican Central Committee and onetime national campaign director for President Nixon, was arrested on a charge of oral sex perversion Wednesday.

Parkinson, 53, was released from county jail after posting $500 bond and is to appear for arraignment Monday.

Details of the arrest were not made public immediately.

After the arrest was made, the Police Department released a statement which did not refer to Parkinson.

In the statement, Police chief Ray Hoobler said more than 40 persons had been arrested by officers of his department's Public Inspections Unit in the past month.

The arrests were made in the public restrooms of large department stores in the Mission Valley area, Hoobler said.

Hoobler said an investigation was initiated after police received reports of homosexual activities and lewd conduct in the restrooms. He said all those arrested were males.

Parkinson, now a county planning commission, is credited with rebuilding the Republican Party in California during the 1960s with his Cal-Plan. Under the highly successful operation, Republicans were able to dominate the state legislature and capture the governorship.

Later Parkinson was sought out by both former President Nixon and former Michigan Gov. George Romney to aid in their planned 1968 presidential bids. Parkinson worked in the Nixon drive for a brief time but dropped out after his wife became ill.

GAYLORD B. PARKINSON
Arrested

Parkinson is best known for his so-called "eleventh commandent," an admonition to Republicans, especially candidates, to avoid friction within the party and concentrate campaign energies on democratic opponents.

Riles Says Book Process 'Too Loose'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State school Supt. Wilson Riles says he is "not aware of any illegal activity" in the state's school text book selection system, but describes the process as "too loose."

He asked the state Board of Education yesterday for a "very stringent" conflict-of-interest regulation prohibiting "wining and dining" of state text book experts by publishers.

Riles said as many as 3,200 persons may be involved in deciding which books can be used by California schools. He said a maze of advisory boards used by the state Curriculum Commission made it "cumbersome" for the commission to recommend wisely which books the state should use.

"I have been troubled by rumors alleging wining and dining of commissioners by publishers," he told the state Board of Education, the Curriculum Commission's parent agency.

"I would like to stress that I'm not aware of any illegal activity by a member of any advisory committee or commission. In this era of Watergate, however, we cannot tolerate even a hint of impropriety," he said.

BART Will Inaugurate 'Tube' Service Tomorrow

OAKLAND (UPI) — The high-price, trouble-prone Bay Area Rapid Transit system inaugurates its transbay service tomorrow when visiting dignitaries ride the "tube" under San Francisco Bay.

The 3.6-mile ride in the underwater tunnel opens the final link in the space-age railway's 71-mile system, which is already $11 million in the red.

Transit officials and 30 visiting mayors will attend opening day ceremonies for the X-shaped system, designed to coax commuters out of their autos.

A 20-car inaugural train will carry over 1,000 invited guests from Lake Merritt in Oakland to San Francisco's Powell Station, where ceremonies will climax at Hallidie Plaza.

Before entering the tube, the train will stop at the Oakland West Station for ribbon-cutting ceremony, entertainment by the Oakland Municipal Band and some stunts by Fairland's Popo the Clown.

The University of California Marching Band will provide the final touch on the San Francisco end of the run.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto and 30 visiting mayors will begin the day's activities by riding the Golden Gate Ferry to Oakland's Jack London Square. They will be met by an Oakland delegation, including Mayor John Reading and BART president Nello Bianco.

After the concluding ceremony, a preview service for the public will take place from noon until 6 p.m. Free service to the Powell station was planned in downtown San Francisco by special Municipal Railway shuttles.

First day riders will receive souvenir tickets. Regular Monday through Friday service will be available from 6 a.m. until 8 p.m. and will consist of 10 trains running at 12-minute intervals on each of three routes: Concord-Daly City, Fremont-Daly City, and Richmond-Fremont.

Total patronage is expected to be 160,000 persons daily, compared to the current 75,000 daily passengers using non-transbay routes.

Bianco cautioned that it wasn't the full service BART hopes to eventually provide, "nor the quality of service" the system will ultimately be capable of.

"For instance, we will have more passenger demand than our limited car availability and temporary operating restrictions can handle.

"But for those willing to view the months until next Spring with patience and understanding, BART now offers an important new increment of service."

Bank Story Not True —Flournoy

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Houston I. Flournoy, Republican candidate for governor, has denied his Democratic opponent's charge that as state controller he allowed banks to keep millions of dollars payable to the state.

Flournoy said Edmund Brown Jr., the Democratic nominee, was trying to create a "phony issue."

Meanwhile, Brown said the state should look for alternative sources of energy, including steam and solar power.

In a speech in Imperial yesterday, Brown said, "The high price of oil is forcing us to redouble our search for additional sources of energy."

At a news conference in Sacramento, Flournoy responded to Brown's charge that, as state controller, he had failed to collect $50 million to $100 million Brown said was due the state, but been withheld by banks as "service charges" on dormant accounts and unclaimed deposit property program by the legislative auditor general was politically inspired by Democratic Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy.

Under law, bank deposits unclaimed after 15 years become state property, but banks are allowed to deduct "reasonable" service before forwarding the money to the state controller and eventually to the treasury.

Flournoy said charges presently ranged from $180 to $500 during the 15-year dormancy period. He said he supported a bill in the legislature to allow banks to deduct a maximum $12.50 charge from deposits of $500 or under, but no charge for those of over $500.

Brown, appearing at the Imperial County Fairgrounds, said as governor he would try to solve technical and environmental problems connected with the search for energy.

"Here in the Imperial Valley a huge reservoir of superheated steam and water lies untapped beneath the desert floor," Brown said. "If we can turn this geothermal power into electricity, a study by the state Geothermal Resources Board has estimates it could produce up to 30,000 megawatts, a significant percentage of the state's power generation capacity."

Youths Air Brutality Complaints

A group of about 10 Terra Linda youths, some accompanied by their parents, complained to the Marin County Human Rights Commission last night that police officers used "excessive force" in breaking up a teen-age party last month. (Another complaint to the commission, page 1.)

They complained of being struck with nightsticks, sprayed with Mace, threatened with weapons and subjected to physical brutality by San Rafael police officers.

Their protests stemmed from an Aug. 17 party at the home of Dan E. Williams, 43 Skyview Terrace. It turned into a bottle-throwing Mace-spraying brawl when officers attempted to enter the home.

The San Rafael Police Department is now investigating the matter. No police spokesman appeared last night, and the commission voted to request a copy of the police report when completed.

Officers havemaintained that they responded to the party after neighbors complained of drag racing on Skyview, teenagers urinating in the street and disturbing the peace.

They said they were met with a barrage of beer bottles, catcalls and obscenities, and one has admitted drawing a revolver during a scuffle with one youth who attempted to hit him.

The two officers who first responded, retreated and returned with the aid of seven fellow officers, two sheriff's deputies and a reserve patrolman.

They claim they were pelted with bottles and furniture when they broke down the front door to make arrests.

The youths last night acknowledged that "several" beer bottles were thrown, but said the fight was started by police officers who grabbed the youth who answered the door and began beating him.

Several said the party itself was quiet and that the police should have limited their response to the street activity.

A number of girls said the officers systematically threw "about 17 girls" down a flight of stairs, sprayed the boys with Mace as they attempted to leave the house and used nightsticks with little restraint.

Douglas H. Bosco, executive director of the human relations department which serves as staff to the commission, said "a number of people's human rights appear to have been violated."

He noted that his younger sister was at a party along with about 30 others.

Williams, whose son Timothy held the party, said he was not at home at the time. He urged that the Terra Linda teen-agers be given a place to meet "without being hasseled."

"These are a bunch of kids, not criminals," he said.

One mother acknowledged that "the kids do talk back and provoke (the police). But if it had been a number of adults it won't have happened; in a way it's preying on the kids."

Commissioners appeared to be in general agreement with that statement though several urged no action until the police side of the story is heard. They asked the department to expedite its investigation and make the report public.

KEEP THIS UNDER YOUR HAT

The good guys in Sausalito are going to be the ones in the black hats from now on, to the utter confusion of watchers of old Westerns. Here police dispatcher Sandi Sampson models one of the new lids. Officer Stephen Willis saw sheriff's deputies from another county with the hats and thought they would dress up Sausalito's 22-man force. He took a poll and his colleagues agreed. The style is called sheriff or trooper model and will replace the traditional saucer hats previously worn. Received last week, they will be worn during foot patrol, traffic direction, funerals, parades and other full-dress occasions.

New President

Haggard Gets A Reagan Pardon

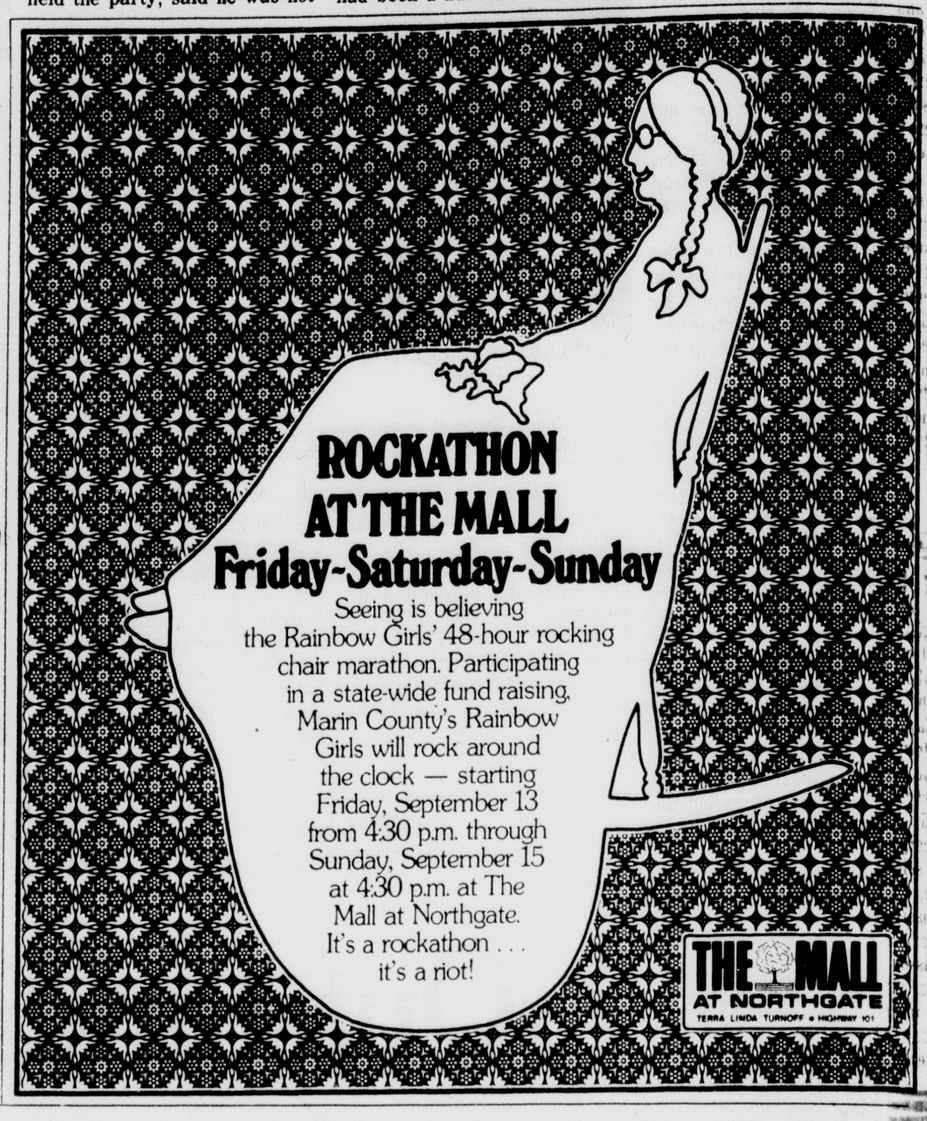
SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Country and western singer Merle Haggard was granted a pardon by Gov. Ronald Reagan in 1972, it was disclosed yesterday.

Haggard, who served a prison term for burglary, was granted the pardon about the time his song, "I Take Pride in What I Am" became popular.

Haggard served nearly three months in prison and two years on parole for burglary and escape in 1958. He was discharged from parole in 1963.

Six years later Haggard's patriotic song "Okie From Muskogee" was a best-seller.

Reagan does not publicize pardons, but they are reported to the legislature.



Burglar Pays Costly Price In This Case

A San Rafael man learned the hard way last night that it isn't smart to play around with the loot from a burglary if that loot includes a gun.

Robert Joseph Meyers, 20, of 711 Del Ganado Road, evidently shot himself in the thigh after stealing a .22-caliber pistol from a car parked at the Civic Center, sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputy Al Brown went into the parking lot at 9:50 p.m. to investigate a report that two men were breaking into a car, but found no one.

Five minutes later, though, a car containing a highly excited Meyers and another man drove up, and Meyers told Brown: "I've been shot in the leg with a gun we took."

He was treated at Marin General Hospital for a minor wound, then booked into Marin County Jail along with Craig James Foley, 20, of 750 Pine Lane, San Rafael.

Both were to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Young Getty Is Wed In Italy

SOVICILLE, Italy (AP) — J. Paul Getty III, the 18-year-old grandson of the American oil billionaire, has married a German woman.

Getty and Martine Zacher, 24, were married yesterday in the city hall of this small central Italian town south of Siena.

Young Getty became the subject of international attention in July 1973 when he was abducted while on the way to Miss Zacher's house in Rome.

Novato Chief Backs Idea If Drug Squad Is Changed

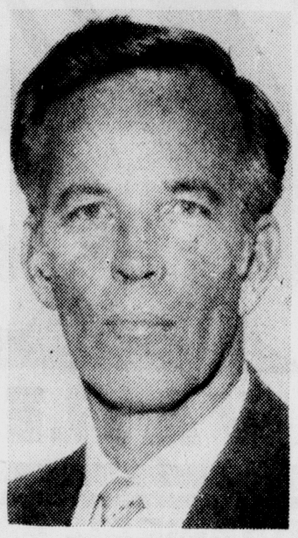
The proposed countywide drug enforcement program can be improved by being rewritten, Novato Police Chief John C. Coleman said yesterday.

The proposal to establish a narcotics squad controlled by San Rafael has stirred controversy and debate at city council meetings, and Novato City Council, with Chief Coleman's recommendation, rejected the proposal last week.

Chief Coleman said he isn't opposed to creating such a squad but wants a better plan.

He said he would prefer to have it operated by the county and stressed there should be "input" from agencies outside law enforcement before it is established.

When the program was presented to police chiefs "I assented," he said, "but I had assumed that all bases had been touched and it didn't occur to me it was without input."



JOHN C. COLEMAN
Wants Better Plan

Coleman wasn't one of those who prepared the program but later was named as one of three to serve on the board selecting personnel for the squad.

"I support drug enforcement and if we don't get it, we'll be very sorry," Chief Coleman said. "I think it is irresponsible for people in public offices to take a stand against enforcement of drug laws."

(San Anselmo Mayor Martin G. Blinder expressed doubts Tuesday night "that enforcement of drug laws — or having drug laws at all" is a solution to the problem of drug abuse." Blinder also said there was no evidence that rigorous enforcement of drug laws had reduced the problem of addiction.)

Chief Coleman said the answer isn't stopping law enforcement because it hasn't stopped drug abuse. "If that's the rationale, why have laws against murder. Every year murders go up. From 1968 through 1973 murders have gone up 42 per cent," he said.

Chief Coleman said the proposed drug enforcement program would affect "the lives of lots of people" and comments from various agencies should be heard in preparing a program.

Registration Is Set For Classes

Registration for a wide range of fall classes sponsored by the Strawberry Recreation District will be from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through next Friday and from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at district offices, 118 East Strawberry Drive.

Belly dancing, body dynamics, carpentry for women, judo and self-defense, needlepoint, piano, tap dance, tennis and slimnastics are among classes offered for adults.

Coroner Reports Mill Valley Death

The Marin County Coroner's office has reported the death of Virginia Stone, 52, of 250 Tamalpais Avenue, Tamalpais Valley.

Mrs. Stone was found dead in bed Tuesday by her husband, Dr. Thomas W. Stone, a Mill Valley physician. Cause of death is unknown. An autopsy is planned, coroner's deputies reported.

Butz Says All Must Sacrifice

CHICAGO (UPI) — Curing inflation will require a sacrifice from all Americans, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz told delegates to an agriculture and food economic conference yesterday. The conference ends today.

"If anyone is interested in inflation, it is farmers," Butz said. But, he added, "it will take a sacrifice from all of us. We will tighten our belts and tackle it."

Butz chaired the first session of a two-day conference of government officials and farm and food industry groups to help prepare for President Ford's inflation summit conference in Washington Sept. 27-28.

Fathers To Get Maternity Leave

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — The Redwood City Elementary School Board agreed last night to provide maternity leave to male employees.

Men will now be allowed to take a maternity leave without pay from a child's birth until one-year-old.

The board, after hearing several jokes about "pregnant men," also extended the policy to include adopted children.

Recent Votes By Marin's John Burton

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — In roll calls during recent House debate on strip mining controls, Marin's new congressman, Democrat John L. Burton, voted for an amendment to delay imposition of state regulations but against two other proposed changes.

Burton voted for an amendment by Rep. Patsy T. Mink, D-Hawaii, providing for an interim regulatory period of 38 months before imposition of permanent state regulations. It passed 241-144.

He voted against an amendment by Rep. Abraham Kazen Jr., D-Tex., to make all permits of five years' duration, eliminating a provision for special two-year permits in Appalachia. The amendment passed 213-193.

He voted against an amendment by Rep. Craig Hosmer, D-Calif., to expand variances to reclamation provisions of the strip mining controls to include agricultural, recreational and public facility development. This also passed 213-193.

Representative Burton voted against an amendment by Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., to spread a proposed $39.7 million cut in appropriations for the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities proportionately between administrative and project expenditures. It was rejected 126-284.

He voted for a $31.5 billion appropriation for the Interior Department and related agencies for fiscal 1975, which passed 385-22.

The vote tabulation was prepared by Government Research Corp.

Rep. Philip Burton of San Francisco's Fifth District voted identically with his brother John on the strip mining measures, but missed the roll calls on Interior Department and National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities appropriations.

Board Seeks Relief From Water Rule

The Golden Gate Bridge District is seeking relief from a Novato Sanitary District regulation that it provide a water reclamation device at its proposed bus washing operation.

Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph said the district plans to wash buses at a maintenance center along Railroad Avenue, north of Olive Street.

Under the district ordinance, the decision to grant relief is to be made by Joseph. He said he will study the matter.

The Golden Gate Bridge District said the device would cost about $20,000 and the saving in water bills would be about $300 to $400 a year, so it wouldn't be economically feasible, Joseph reported.

The Novato Sanitary District Board Wednesday night approved a dental plan for employees at a cost of about $4,200 a year and promoted Dennis Welch from maintenance man two to operator in training.

The board adjourned until 7:30 p.m. Thursday for a breakfast meeting with the Novato City Council at the Alvarado Inn.

Purchase Of Kidney Denied

DETROIT (UPI) — Some 100 would-be donors were disappointed when they learned a hospital here would not allow a patient to buy a kidney for $3,000.

All 100 had answered an ad offering $3,000 for the organ for 42-year-old Mohammed Abbas Ali of Yemen, who is being treated for malfunctioning kidneys.

But a spokesman at Ford Hospital said the facility would not accept a purchased organ because it would involve a major operation.

The would-be donors "had disappointment in their voices," said Mohammed Karoub, Ali's spokesman. "It blows my mind," he added. "It's not like giving up a fingernail."

She Makes Living As A Smuggler

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — At first glance, Mrs. Bun Chhan appears to be like any other Cambodian housewife.

But first impressions can be misleading, because the attractive woman is indeed different.

Mrs. Bun Chhan, 36, the mother of four, is a smuggler.

"It's the best business I know," she says. "Particularly because of the war. It's an easy way to make money."

It must be. Mrs. Bun Chhan says hundreds of women are involved in the illicit trade, including war widows and wives of high-ranking military officers.

Mrs. Bun Chhan, who has been smuggling for the past two years, says she began with an outlay of about $120. Now that she is established, she says she earns from $5 to $24 a day.

Mrs. Bun Chhan, who lives in Phnom Penh, smuggles her contraband over national highway 1 which links the capital with the Mekong river ferry crossing town of Neak Leung, 30 miles southeast of here.

Not surprisingly, local Cambodians refer to the narrow two-lane road as "black market alley."

In Neak Luong, Mrs. Bun Chhan has an option. She can either sell her goods directly to local Chinese merchants or take them herself to Kaam Samnar, 15 miles downriver at the Cambodian-South Vietnamese border to deal directly with Vietnamese smugglers.

To do so, however, she has to pay a $5 bribe to get aboard a Cambodian navy gunboat for the return trip.

"I prefer going to the border myself," she says, "because I can usually get a good price from the Vietnamese, or barter for goods I can sell at a profit in Phnom Penh."

According to the Moha Roth Khmer (the great state) Phnom Penh daily newspaper, sailors aboard the gunboats are also smuggling goods to South Vietnam.

Unlike Mrs. Bun Chhan and other lady smugglers dealing in soft goods, the newspaper said, the navy men smuggle ammunition, medicines and fuel in return for opium, gold and foreign wines.

In addition to the bribes she pays to the navy, Mrs. Bun Chhan also must bribe soldiers stationed at the 16 checkpoints along highway 1 between Phnom Penh and Neak Luong. These payoffs range from $0.65 to $5, she says.

"Even so, it's a good business," she said. "We pay the money just to keep good relations with the navy and the soldiers. They know what we're doing."

Her day begins at 5:30 a.m., and she says she's back home by mid-afternoon, once again a housewife. She works every day.

"Some people call this smuggling," she said with a soft smile. "But I don't. I call it good business."

A Tough Way To Shed Weight

LENOIR, N.C. (UPI) — Mrs. Kathy Box has decided to have her mouth wired shut so she can lose excess pounds.

Mrs. Fox, 24, weighs 248 pounds — about 105 above the desired weight for a 5-9 female.

"I reached the point in my life when I got bored. If anything upsets me I just start eating. I'm a compulsive eater," she said yesterday.

She said her family physician agreed to her decision to have her mouth wired shut and now she hopes to lose about a pound a day until Christmas.

WINTER COMES A LITTLE EARLY

Trustees Fear San Anselmans May Bridle At School Survey

San Anselmo citizens might rebel at being subjected to any more surveys about the schools, San Anselmo School District trustees warned last night.

They debated at some length how to respond to a request from Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, that all California school districts submit educational goals by Oct. 31.

San Anselmo Dist. Supt. Frank R. Elliott reported that what had appeared to be a routine agenda item to decide how to answer the request turned into lengthy debate after a spokesman for Westinghouse Learning Systems proposed that his firm conduct a survey similar to the one it did for the Dixie School District.

"The board members felt the citizens wouldn't take any more surveys," Elliott reported. There have been numerous polls of public attitudes on education in the district in recent years, he said.

Trustees said they will discuss at their Sept. 26 meeting whether to meet Riles's request by compiling data from the previous surveys.

The San Anselmo School District Board also:

Court Reservation System Permanent

The tennis court reservation system at Piper Park, begun three weeks ago on a trial basis, was made permanent last night by the Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission.

On weekends and holidays, Larkspur residents may reserve two of the four courts by signing up at the police station. There is no charge.

ENROLLMENT — Heard Elliott report that enrollment that was 1,785 in June dropped to 1,696 this week, lower than expected. He said the budget was designed on an enrollment of 1,720 and the district might face financial difficulties.

PRESCHOOL — Heard reports that there still seems to be little coordination between the Fairfax-San Anselmo Children's Center program for 3-to-5-year-olds and the district's kindergarten programs. Board members ordered further reviews of the problem in January and May 1975, Elliott said.

SALARIES — Met in closed session to discuss employee salaries, but reached no settlement, Elliott said.

ADJOURNED — To 8 p.m. Sept. 17 for a meeting of the master plan committee, and to Sept. 26 for the next regular board meeting.

Rockefeller Confirmation Delay Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice-presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller — who reportedly has told congressional committees he is worth only $33 million — probably won't be confirmed until after the November elections.

In a special message to Congress yesterday, President Ford said Rockefeller's confirmaton was his top legislative priority, but House Democrats said confirmation would be impossible before the elections.

Speaker Carl Albert said he would not push the House Judiciary Committee into hasty action.

The Washington Post reported in today's editions that Rockefeller filed voluminous statements of his wealth with the House Judiciary and Senate Rules Committees as part of their preparation for confirmation hearings.

The Post, quoting unidentified sources, said the $33 million figure might be revised upward soon because some of the former New York governor's assets apparently had been listed at their value when first acquired rather than present market value.

Campbell Teachers Agree To Contract

CAMPBELL (UPI) — A tentative contract agreement was reached last night in an eight-day strike by 400 elementary school teachers.

Details of the agreement were withheld pending ratification by members of the Campbell Elementary School Teachers Association and formal adoption by the Board of Education.

Surplus Centennial Funds To Finance Award Program

The San Rafael Centennial will be perpetuated through annual awards to boys and girls in the city for outstanding community service.

The awards program was authorized by unanimous vote at a final report meeting of the San Rafael Centennial Committee yesterday afternoon in the city hall. The awards will be financed by interest on surplus funds from last May's centennial celebration.

Irving D. Chapman, finance chairman, reported that the committee would up with $2,717.98 in the bank after paying all bills for the successful celebration of San Rafael's 100th birthday. In addition, some 600 bronze centennial medals remain on hand. These are being sold through banks.

The executive committee proposed that the money be placed in a trust account at Bank of Marin, with the interest used for the annual awards program.

As explained by Jean Kelly, program chairman, and Bryce W. Anderson, publicity chairman, the awards would be given to boys or girls selected as performing outstanding community service during the year. Age limits would be from 11 to 18 years. It would be left to the awards committee to decide whether a single award or more than one should be made in any year. Nominations for the awards could be made by schools, churches, organizations and individuals.

In this way, continued interest by young people in their hometown — which was promoted through a widespread San Rafael history program in schools preceding and during the centennial celebration — would be encouraged in perpetuity, Mrs. Kelly explained.

Thomas F. Keating, centennial general chairman, said the May celebration had served "to give a home town to many young people who didn't realize they had any," and the annual awards program would serve the same purpose.

On motions by Rex T. Silvernale, the committee approved setting up the fund and appointing an awards committee composed of Keating, Mrs. Kelly, Silvernale, Anderson, Charlene Skinner, and Donald E. Leisey. The committee will be self-perpetuating, the remaining members being empowered to fill any vacancy caused by resignation or death. Keating, lawyer and former Marin Superior Court judge, pointed out this would eliminate legal problems with the trust fund.

Details of the award program are to be worked out by the committee, which will hold its first meeting on call by Silvernale, temporary chairman.

Woman Cleared In Robbery Case

A San Rafael woman has been cleared of charges stemming from an armed robbery at a Fairfax home but her companion must stand trial in Marin Superior Court.

Ordered to appear Sept. 20 for arraignment on a felony armed robbery charge was Robert Scott Morey, 22, also of San Rafael, who waived his right to a preliminary hearing Tuesday.

Released was Pamela Lorraine Chaffin, also 22, who had been charged with harboring a felon.

Morey is accused of being one of three men who held up a Fairfax couple with a gun at their home Aug. 27 and fled with $16.

Take care of your weeds this Fall, while you take care of your lawn.

Weeds thrive on neglect.
Grass (or dichondra), on the other hand, needs help from you. Especially now. (It's been growing all summer and it's hungry.)
These are the two best reasons for using one of our weed and feed products now.
With just one application (Plus-2® for grass lawns, Super Bonus® for dichondra) you can take care of more than 20 different kinds of weeds.
And while you're getting rid of your weeds, you're giving your lawn the nutrition it needs. To help it thicken itself and build up its root structure.
Plus-2 and Super Bonus give your lawn a feeding of our patented slow-release fertilizer. (Slow is the way lawns should grow. We don't believe in a lot of fast surge growth followed by starvation.) So if you want a thicker, greener lawn this Fall, try either Plus-2 or Super Bonus now.
What have you got to lose but your weeds?

Petaluman Denies He Shot At Car

A Petaluma hunter was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a felony assault charge stemming from a shooting in West Marin last month involving a Synanon resident.

Donald Lorin Gossage, 32, pleaded innocent and Judge Gary W. Thomas set a preliminary hearing for Oct. 8.

The Marin District Attorney's office filed the complaint Wednesday after a month-long investigation into the shooting. No one was hurt in the incident.

Gossage is charged with taking a shot at Synanon resident Jesse Pierce as Pierce drove along Hicks Valley Road. The shot hit Pierce's Synanon car and lodged in the gas tank, Marin Sheriff's officers said.

Gossage and another man reportedly were hunting at the time on private property near the roadway.

Three days after the shooting, an anonymous tipster telephoned Petaluma police to say Gossage was in a bar bragging about the shooting.

Gossage's hunting rifle was taken into evidence by the district attorney's office for ballistics tests.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will attend inauguration ceremonies for new officers of the Washington Press Club next Wednesday, a White House spokesman says.

Selassie's Son May Become Puppet Ruler

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — An American-educated general took over as Ethiopia's military strongman today, culminating a gradual, seven-month coup that began with army unrest and ended with the ouster of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Lt. Gen. Aman Michael Andom, the 50-year-old leader of Ethiopia's military reformers, emerged from the shadows of behind-the-scenes rule to become chairman of the ruling Council of Ministers.

Ailing Crown Prince Asfa Woosen, picked by the military as a puppet ruler in place of his once-mighty father, met with family members in his luxurious Geneva apartment to decide whether to accept.

The Armed Forces Committee reformers came into the open yesterday deposing the 82-year-old, 100-pound, 5-foot-4 "Lion of Judah" for allegedly amassing billions of dollars in Swiss banks while his drought-stricken peasants starved.

The new military rulers sent soldiers to the emperor's plush palace in Addis Ababa to take the world's longest-reigning monarch "to a special place for his personal safety."

Witnesses said the still-defiant Selassie balked at going, but was hauled off in the back seat of a cramped blue Volkswagen police van to the capital's military headquarters.

A large crowd gathered outside the army headquarters building shouting insults at the deposed "King of Kings."

Leash Law Joke Angered Women

HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — County Council chairman Robert Yamada tried to inject a little levity in a discussion of a proposed dog leash law, but it backfired on him.

Yamada held up a picture of a nude woman on a leash and jokingly proposed that "women should also be kept on leashes."

The chairman later tried to soothe the protesters by apologizing publicly.

"It was not my intention to demean or degrade anyone," he said.

IN THE WOODS — The cool, green gloom of Marin's Muir Woods National Monument offers opportunities for strolling and picture-taking as well as nature study. The beautiful redwood groves annually attract thousands of visitors from all over the world, but many Marin residents have never visited the monument which is only minutes away from most parts of the county.

A DAY AWAY

Muir Woods—A Shrine To Majestic Redwoods

By PAUL LIBERATORE

It's a wonder that so many of us who live in Marin have never been to Muir Woods National Monument, or at least haven't been for years.

And it's a shame. The 500-acre park enshrines one of the most magnificent redwood forests in the 250-mile-long western belt where the giant trees are found.

Located in a V-shaped valley on Mount Tamalpais in Southern Marin, Muir Woods is a great place to spend a few hours or a day.

It is a well-known spot to out-of-towners, who flock here by the thousands each year to wander over the park's six miles of trails.

Although the free parking lots are often nearly full, the interior of the park is serene and still. Most visitors pay their respects to the awesome natural beauty by strolling quietly along Redwood Creek, which rambles through the center of Muir Woods.

The park is an excellent place to take children. Trails vary in difficulty (most are easily walked by the smallest tots) and feature trailside exhibits that identify and explain the varieties of plant and animal life.

There's even a trail for the sightless, with markers written in braille, inviting the blind to "sit a while, listen to the birds . . ."

There is a do-it-yourself nature walk. Booklets available at the trail head give the amateur naturalist a capsule course on the wonders of nature along its route.

It's not unusual to find youngsters reading the booklets to their parents, pointing excitedly at the huge trees, at a fish in the creek, or two bluejays squabbling over a tiny seed.

During a recent visit one young boy of about 11 was so overcome by it all that he tugged at his father's sleeve, almost breathless. "Look at them trees, dad," he said. "Just look at them."

In the forest community, redwoods dominate, but red alder and western azalea successfully compete for light by stretching out over the stream. Tanoak does well here because it thrives in shade.

Bay laurels bend and twist, growing from shade to sunlight. On the forest floor are wildflowers, including California poppies, western morning glory and redwood violet, depending on the season.

The largest animals are black-tailed deer. Western gray squirrels and Sonoma chipmunks abound. So do night prowlers, raccoons and skunks.

One must look closely and be especially quiet to observe snakes (harmless varieties), lizards and salamanders.

When Redwood Creek is swollen by winter rains, silver salmon and steelhead trout fight their way upstream to spawning beds in Muir Woods. From spring through autumn, young salmon and trout can be seen in the clear water.

There are points of interest, including Bohemian Grove, Pinchot Memorial and Cathedral Grove, the latter where members of the United Nations Conference on International Organizations met in 1945 to honor the memory of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

For some, people-watching may be as interesting as enjoying the natural surroundings. Because visitors come from all over the world, many of the signs and markers are written in six languages, from German and French to Chinese and Japanese.

Sandwiches, drinks and desserts are sold at a small restaurant near the visitor center and information booth, as are gifts and souvenirs.

Restrooms and drinking fountains are numerous and well-maintained, as are all the park facilities.

No picnicking or camping sites are available. But picnic areas can be found at nearby Muir Beach or at Mount Tamalpais State Park.

Even in the summer months, the weather is often cool, damp and foggy, conditions that cause the redwoods to thrive here. Jackets and sweaters are advisable.

Trails are for hiking only. No horses, motorcycles or bicycles are permitted.

Admission is 50 cents for adults. Children under 16 and persons over 62 are admitted free. Year-round passes cost $10.

Parking is ample and Gray Line, Greyhound and Golden Gate Transit District buses offer regular tour service.

The park was a gift to the federal government from former Congressman William Kent of Marin. He asked that it be named in honor of John Muir (1838-1914), the writer, naturalist and conservationist. Muir Woods was established in 1908 by proclamation of President Theodore Roosevelt.

To get to the park, take Highway 101 to the Stinson Beach exit. At Tamalpsais Valley junction, take Shoreline Highway and follow the signs.

Ford Raises '75 Prices By An Average Of $407

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. set 1975-model car and truck prices an average of $407 above current prices yesterday and indicated a second round of price boosts could begin as early as next month.

John B. Naughton, Ford vice president for sales, said the general increase of $373, or 7.4 per cent, was substantially less than the amount it needed to recover its higher costs.

The remainder of the average $407 increase consisted of an $18 boost for previously optional equipment made standard and $16 for higher destination costs.

"Today's increases are mainly the result of inflation," Naughton said. "They include no provision for recovery of cost increases beyond Oct. 1."

While $11 below the $418 increase Ford had tenatively suggested in late July, the No. 2 automaker's price hike was in line with the average $446 set by General Motors and $415 established by Chrysler.

American Motors, smallest of the major U.S. automakers, is boosting prices an average of $300, although its percentage boost of 7.7 per cent is in line with the "Big Three."

On a percentage basis, Ford's 7.4 general increase was the lowest in the industry. GM's boost amounted to 8.6 per cent, Chrysler's 8.5 per cent and AMC 7.7 per cent.

Naughton said $269 of the general increase was needed to recover a portion of the higher costs of labor, raw materials and purchased parts.

He said the other $104 covers the cost, without any profit, of adding government-mandated equipment to the '75s.

Naughton said profits in the 12-month period ending in June were about one-third the level of recent years.

"Price increases are essential if the company is to meet its obligations to stockholders and, at the same time, finance the growing investments needed to meet government requirements, improve fuel economy and increase productivity," he said.

The two-door Pinto remains Ford's lowest-priced auto at $2,835 — $308 above the lowest-priced Pinto for 1974, but the company eliminated the 2000 centimeter engine and now offers a larger 2300cc as standard.

The Ford increases ranged from $60 on the Mercury Marquis hardtop with a 460 cubic inch engine to $1,418 on the Lincoln 4-door sedan.

Reagan Believes Ford Will Regain Lost Popularity

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan has predicted that President Ford will regain the popularity he lost by pardoning former President Nixon and proposing amnesty for Vietnam deserters and draft resisters.

Reagan, on a campaign swing through Indiana for Republican congressional candidates, told a news conference yesterday that Ford's popularity should soon be back on the upswing.

He said he supported the pardon and felt, on the basis of what he has read, that Ford's decision would be proven to be right.

Reagan also said he felt Ford "straightened out" some of the misunderstanding that developed when many people thought he was talking about blanket amnesty. He said amnesty in which each individual case is reviewed "is in the tradition for every war our nation has had, beginning back in the Whisky Rebellion."

Recreation Wants Told In Novato

Novato Parks and Recreation commissioners, preparing a new master plan for parks and recreation, received a variety of proposals from residents last night.

The Little League requested two new ballfields, possibly one near Novato High School and another in the northern part of the city, according to parks and recreation director Lester S. Russell.

The North Marin Federation of Homeowners suggested if unused school sites are to be used for parks, there be public involvement in the planning.

Betty Machado, a Novato Unified School District trustee, urged park development at the Marion School site.

Ed Salmina, a "self-appointed spokesman" for several baseball leagues, urged lighted fields for regulation baseball, and Fay Cincotta, a trail bike enthusiast, proposed areas for such bikes.

The commission adjourned until 8 p.m. Sept. 26 at the parks and recreation conference room, 917 Sherman Avenue.

Park Area

The area along Corte Madera Creek in Larkspur and Kentfield which the county is planning to buy to create a park is 26.3 acres large, rather than 18 acres as reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

Housing Authority Chairman Resigns

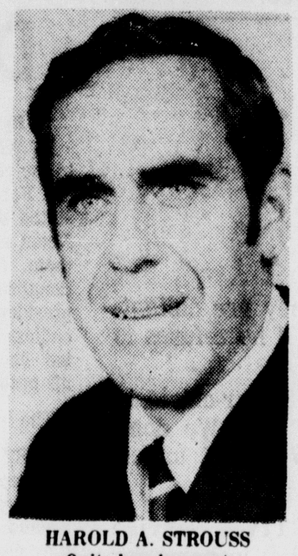
Harold A. Strouss resigned yesterday as chairman of the Marin County Housing Authority.

Strouss cited "increasing business demands" and family obligations, but his two-page letter of resignation sent to the Marin County Board of Supervisors also detailed his disappointments with the housing authority.

Strouss was elected chairman in February after Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. gave up the gavel but not his seat on the authority board. Strouss was appointed to the board in January 1973.

The Terra Linda resident is a real estate office manager and a member of the San Rafael Citizens Advisory Council, as well as being active in service clubs.

Strouss, in resigning, complained that he and his fellow authority directors must spend too much time on Marin City problems and litigation, neglecting countywide housing efforts.



HAROLD A. STROUSS
Quits housing post

"At the beginning of this year, the housing authority submitted its goals and objectives to provide sorely needed housing for the needy. Our plan met with great success among many agencies and groups interested in housing," Strouss wrote. "Nothing . . . has been accomplished . . . the commission was met with continued severe criticism and costly litigation over the modernization program in Marin City," he wrote.

"A great deal of time was lost" in the dispute that eventually led to the firing of Wallace K. Shepherd as housing authority executive director, Strouss added. "While I was a supporter of Shepherd, I felt the housing authority was justified and within its rights" in the firing, he added.

"The board of supervisors should review the overzealous activities of the Legal Aid Society of Marin in their actions against the housing authority," he urged. He called for more negotiation and less litigation.

Strouss also urged the supervisors to delay any decision on proposals to merge the autonomous housing authority and Marin County Redevelopment Agency, possibly under the supervisors themselves, until the authority's consultant, Douglas C. Myers, submits a report on the county's overall housing program by Nov. 1

Mill Valley Youth Off Critical List

David Healy, 19, of Mill Valley has been removed from the critical list at Sacramento Medical Center, where he was admitted last Friday following an automobile accident.

Healy suffered severe head injuries after a car in which he was a passenger swerved into oncoming traffic on Interstate 80 in Placer County. The hospital today listed him in serious condition.

Petaluma Police Capture Youth After Wild Chase

A 17-year-old Sacramento youth driving a stolen car yesterday led police on a wild chase through Cotati and Petaluma.

It ended just before 5 p.m. when the teen-ager, identified as Matthew David Granger, careened head-on into a Petaluma police car driven by Patrolman Glenn A. Accornero, 28, near the intersection of Lindberg Lane and Murray Drive in East Petaluma.

Both drivers suffered only minor injuries, as did another patrolman, Danny M. Boone, 25, who collided with the stolen car after its crash into the first police car.

The youth, who fled on foot after the crash, was captured by David Devoto, 43, who was watering his lawn on Marian Way when the youth came into view. Devoto tackled him and threw him to the ground, according to police reports.

Granger is being held by Sonoma County juvenile authorities on suspicion of reckless driving and auto theft.

According to Petaluma police and highway patrolmen, who pursued the youth at various times during the chase, it began around 4:30 p.m. at the intersection of Pepper Road and Highway 101 several miles north of Petaluma.

Patrolman Don Seghieri spotted the vehicle and recognized it as stolen, and began following it at a distance after radioing for assistance.

The youth turned from Highway 101 to the Old Redwood Highway at Denman Flats just north of the Petaluma city limits and began heading north toward Cotati.

In Cotati he apparently realized he was being followed — he accelerated to about 60 miles per hour on West Sierra Avenue, roared past city hall and turned back onto Highway 101, smashing a sign on the entrance ramp.

The highway patrol chased the youth south again at speeds up to 100 miles per hour, and he was caught several minutes later.

The 1973 Chevrolet Granger drove was owned by a Beverly Hills leasing company.

Speaking About Draft Evaders . . .

While President Gerald R. Ford reportedly is working on a plan for amnesty for those who avoided the draft during the Vietnam War, young Americans are being prosecuted for failure to register for a draft that no longer exists.

Congress ended the military draft as of June 30 last year. But it did not disband the Selective Service system. The vast — and expensive — system remains in operation, with offices throughout the country, including one in San Rafael.

And Congress did not end the requirement that all young men register for military service within 30 days of attaining the age of 18.

Failure to register remains a federal felony, carrying a maximum sentence of five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

THERE IS NO compulsory military service. Yet young men face the possibility of going to prison for longer than any of those yet convicted in connection with Watergate — for not registering for something that does not exist, or even for registering late.

In the first six months of this year, federal grand juries returned 675 indictments charging Selective Service Act violations — nearly all of them, failure to register on time.

A Justice Department memorandum instructs U.S. attorneys to prosecute late registrants unless there is "compelling justification" for the delay. Fortunately, most of the federal attorneys have enough good sense to overlook it if a young man misses the deadline. But they are obligated to prosecute if he refuses to register.

Many of our 18-year-olds cannot understand this. We don't blame them. We can't understand it either.

THE SELECTIVE Service apparatus was left in being for fear that restoring the armed services to their historic all-volunteer basis would not work. Some in high office feared that our youth, embittered by the Vietnam fiasco, would not sign up for military service in sufficient numbers.

The fears proved unfounded. The services have been able to fill their quotas with volunteers.

There was no need to continue the registration, anyhow. Since Congress would have to act to restore the draft, if that proved necessary, it could at the same time act to restore the registration system.

IT IS WELL enough to have compassion for those who refused to register for military service because of objections to serving in the Vietnam War, or who registered and then fled to avoid induction. But how about those who now are required to register for no other purpose than to keep the Selective Service bureaucracy in business?

It is time Congress repealed the Selective Service Act outright — as it should have done when it ended the draft. We have too many requirements for our citizens to register for this, report on that. The phony draft registration is just another invasion of freedom.

Reagan — And Appointees — Are Made To Eat Crow

By EARL G. WATERS

Campaign oratory has the embarassing habit of coming back to haunt the successful candidate.

So it is with Gov. Ronald Reagan's lame duck appointments. When he was Candidate Reagan back in 1966, he indulged in a bit of fiery rhetoric charging Gov. Pat Brown with appointing "hacks, cronies and defeated candidates" to important government jobs.

Now, with his two terms coming to a close, the spotlight is being focused on Reagan's appointments. Among them are the party faithful, members of his staff, and defeated candidates. By naming them to posts which have definite terms continuing after his own departure, and through conversion of appointive jobs to civil service posts, he is desperately trying to provide for those who have supported him.

AS EVERY POLITICIAN knows, it is the name of the game. But in following it, Ronnie subjects himself to the same charges he made against Pat eight years ago.

Questioned about this, Reagan, showing signs of irritation, defended his actions by stating that his record in the past seven years speaks for itself. That it does.

Throughout those years he has followed the same pattern of selecting those who have been close to him or his circle of supporters, party faithfuls who espouse his philosophy, campaign workers, and defeated candidates. One of his very first appointments was Vernon Sturgeon, who was defeated in his bid for re-election to the Senate in 1966 as a result of the reappportionment which pitted three incumbent senators against each other. Sturgeon first served as Reagan's legislative secretary and then was named to the Public Utilities Commission, to which he has since been reappointed. Among other former legislators appointed to government jobs are William Symons, Hale Ashcraft, Carl Britschgi, and Hugh Burns.

Candidate Reagan was most critical of Brown's judicial appointments, contending that judges should be selected by some kind of commission rather than by direct appointment of the governor. He dropped that idea after his election, and his method of selecting judges has not been different from that of his predecessors.

THERE IS REALLY nothing wrong with the present system of filling appointive jobs. Most of the governor's appointments to administrative posts are subject to Senate confirmation. His judicial appointments must be approved by a judicial qualifications commission and the voters.

It is only natural that a governor will lean heavily upon those known best to him to fill the various jobs. Since he will be judged not only by his own actions but those of his appointees as well, he will seek out those in harmony with his political views. It is also understandable that he will favor former legislators, whose experience in office usually make them valuable public servants in other posts.

In the overall, Reagan's appointments have been as good as those of his predecessors, no better and no worse. It is only the charge, which Reagan must now regret, that Brown was appointing "hacks, cronies and defeated candidates" which casts doubt upon them.

And it was to be expected that a Senate controlled by Democrats might drag its feet in confirming appointments made by a lameduck Republican governor. Those not confirmed will have to leave office with Ronnie. It was for this reason that Reagan was rushing through appointments prior to the Aug. 31 adjournment. Since the legislature will not again take up confirmations until after Reagan leaves office, those appointed between now and January will serve only the few remaining months.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

President Ford grants Richard Nixon amnesty. Nixon passed the earn-it test with all those years of combat duty in the White House.

The President feels Nixon has suffered enough — but a lot of critics seem to feel Ford hasn't.

The Nixon pardon is an invitation to discord. Why can't we get our discord uninvited, as we always have before?

TWO VIEWS OF THE PARDON

FURGURSON: Ford Reopens The Book

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — By his stunning blow to the concept of equality before the law, Mr. Ford has achieved the opposite of his stated desire to write "the end" to the Nixon scandals. In effect, he has joined them. By his remarkably Nixonian rationalization of his pardon for the former president, he has opened himself to an endless line of the kind of disrespectful but necessary questioning that plagued his predecessor.

The book is not closed, it is reopened.

LAST SUNDAY morning, most Americans arose serene in the knowledge that "Watergate" was at last "behind us," because justice was moving ahead and they could forget their earlier fears that presidents could place themselves above the law. Evel Knievel was the hero-villain of the day. Then the blow fell.

Families, political parties, offices that were divided in the early stages of the scandals, then united in relief that the constitutional process finally began to work, are split again over Mr. Ford's move. And the euphoria that Republican candidates felt about their prospects this November turns out to have had a life span of only four weeks plus two days.

If the whole decision was as simple as Mr. Ford explained it, then he himself is as simple as his reputation made him before he moved into the White House. If he is not that simple, then the people must ask him point by point about the decision.

HE MAINTAINED in his surprise announcement that the Nixons' "is an American tragedy in which we all have played a part." How, except as spectators? Is spreading the blame around over all Americans the way to excuse this inexcusable decision?

He noted that allegations and accusations hung over the former president, "threatening his health as he tries to reshape his life." Do not such shadows hang over every suspected, indicted or convicted criminal, even and especially those who are not lucky enough to be well-connected former presidents and who serve time and then get out to face a life of rejection because of their records? Is not the fact that Nixon is drawing $60,000 of the taxpayers' money annually as pension and up to $96,000 annually for office expenses some help in reshaping his life — those, plus an estimated $2 million spread over 10 years for his memoirs?

Mr. Ford submitted that months and perhaps years would have to pass before Nixon could get a fair trial by jury in the country he so dishonored. Is that any different from what the defendant faces in a sensational rape or murder case, or any other proceeding in which the details have been laid out day by day for the public?

THE PRESIDENT alleged that "I deeply believe in equal justice for all Americans, whatever their station or former station." But he added, "A former President of the United States, instead of enjoying equal treatment with any other citizen accused of violating the law, would be cruelly and excessively penalized either in preserving the presumption of his innocence or in obtaining a speedy determination of his guilt in order to repay a legal debt to society."

Is he not, by this sentence, laying down a historic precedent to which the American system will refer in the future whenever the threat of judicial action against presidential misbehavior arises? If the nation accepts this thesis, is there any point in continuing to call Mr. Ford and his successors the president? How about king instead?

The president asserted that "Richard Nixon and his loved ones have suffered enough and will continue to suffer no matter what I do . . ." Have not the American people suffered enough from the misdeeds of Richard Nixon? Did not Richard Nixon, an intelligent, experienced and super-conscious public official, bring on himself and his family whatever suffering they have endured? Is their suffering any different from that of others facing justice?

And finally, the questions that arise from what Mr. Ford left unsaid. What if evidence of some major presidential crime yet undocumented should lie waiting in the trials of other defendants? Just what was the verbal arrangement whereby Nixon named Mr. Ford vice president? Just what would the tapes and documents now to be returned to Nixon have disclosed about these matters, if the current president had allowed the former president to be prosecuted?

The book is not closed, it is wide open, with chapters more to be written.

DRUMMOND: Weak Case Against Ford

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — There is no good case to be made against President Ford's pardoning of Richard Nixon.

It is a very weak case, indeed, and can be so demonstrated.

The central argument brought against Mr. Ford's action is that to pardon the former president is unfair to his subordinates who have been or already are being prosecuted for related offenses.

This would be a valid contention, a persuasive contention, if those who criticize the president for his decision were opposing pardon for Nixon at a later date.

But they aren't. They are criticizing what they condemn as "premature pardon." What they are advocating is prosecution of Nixon now and pardon by Mr. Ford later if he so wishes.

I ASK: How would prosecuting Nixon now and pardoning him later give equal justice to his subordinates, some of whom have already served their jail sentences and some — like Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman — who are still facing trial?

It wouldn't.

I ask: How does pardoning Nixon now create any greater injustice for his subordinates than pardoning him later?

It doesn't. Under either circumstance, the result would be the same. Present pardon still permits the other trials to go forward. Later pardon simply means that they would already have gone forward.

The controlling fact is that most of the opponents of the Ford decision do not provide any way to guarantee equal treatment for Nixon and his aides.

Since they do not oppose ultimate pardon, they can't possibly recall the sentences which have already been passed on numerous of them.

Granting the pardon now does not create injustice any more than deferring pardon would prevent injustice.

THE SECOND ARGUMENT advanced by the critics is that Richard Nixon's guilt has not yet been clearly established — and should be established by prosecution.

It has been established beyond doubt. The June 23 tapes revealed that Nixon participated in obstruction of justice. The White House statement releasing the June 23 tapes admitted that Nixon was involved in the coverup. This was one of the impeachable offenses cited in the articles of impeachment which the House Judiciary Committee later unanimously voted.

This is guilt beyond doubt; and if Congress feels the need to establish it further, it can proceed with the impeachment process to the end of a Senate trial.

The sentences thus far meted out to the Nixon aides are not inordinate and the resignation sentence imposed on Nixon is just about equal to capital punishment, and could hardly be more severe short of the firing squad.

Diet Makes Difference To Health Of Animal

Does the food make a difference?

My German shepherd had a very bad skin affliction. I took her to four highly recommended veterinarians here in Marin County and after numerous visits to each one — for different ointments, skin remedies, drugs, blood tests, etc. — none of them were able to help her skin problem, nor were they able to tell me what it was she had. Yet — not one of these veterinarians ever bothered to ask me what kind of dog food I was feeding her. It was only after mentioning my dog's condition to a previous shepherd breeder of 25 years, that it was suggested I change to a dog food which contained far less cereal substance and more protein. This prompted me to compare the nutrient requirements, ingredients and the analysis contents of the various brands of canned dog food on the market. I found that while few brands contained no cereal, only one had a higher percentage of protein and fat, which I decided to try. In a matter of a month, there was a definite improvement in her skin and it's continuing to improve.

I seriously believe that it would be beneficial for the general healthy well-being of dogs if more dog owners would take the time to become aware of what they're really feeding their dogs and compare the differences. If a dog is fed a high quality, balanced diet that is in itself an economy, for good health will result, minimizing veterinary bills.

Dialogue Needed On Inflation Economics

The views of Dr. Robert Lee Grant published in the Sept. 5 Independent Journal illustrate the desirability of a national dialogue on the subject of economics as it bears on the problem of inflation: there are indeed some profound differences of opinion which must be aired.

On the subject of a balanced budget, Dr. Grant and I are at loggerheads. On other matters there are grounds for agreement.

We may well require a national program . . . to provide employment and retraining for workers displaced by future changes in production emphasis — from emphasis on luxury and semi-luxury goods to housing capital goods and energy production.

We should change our tax laws to require that all Americans "pay their dues" on an annual basis. Deferral of tax payments in these times especially is inappropriate and unfair. The "extra billion" a year will help.

Although farmers have legitimate economic concerns which Dr. Grant ignores, the recent government moves to eliminate subsidies and expand production are very much in the right direction. Expanded farm production will be one of our greatest national assets.

Avoidance of restrictive international trade quotas and barriers are important in maintaining the health of world economy and in holding back inflation . . .

Where we strongly disagree is in the matters of increasing savings and balancing the budgets. Dr. Grant expresses concern for those in lower income brackets, those on fixed incomes, and the elderly. These are the groups most hurt by inflation and by the high interest rates which always go with inflation.

The prospect of balanced federal budgets over the next several years would blunt the psychology of inflation, permit the federal government to ease its restrictive money policy, reduce interest rates . . .

Ford's Double Standard Disappoints Educator

Your editorial of Monday, Sept. 9, "Why Not Let System Work For Nixon?", was one of your finest.

As educators, all of us had great optimism when Vice President Ford became president, but now that he has invoked a doubte standard, we are quite disappointed.

Your statement, "The system is working for the others. Why does not Mr. Ford believe it would work for Richard M. Nixon?" is quite apropos to the situation.

'European Fest' Badly Misrepresented

My husband and I attended the "European Fall Fest" at the Civic Center yesterday afternoon (Sept. 8). The advertising in your paper was a gross misrepresentation of what actually was there, and we feel that the whole matter should come to the attention of the District Attorney. We saw no dancers, heard no music, and saw little of any "European" items. The so-called Beer Garden was a mockery and it was almost unbelievable to see a catering service truck stop near the ? Garden, the driver get out, and start calling "Get your hamburgers and hot dogs here." We feel the entire Fest was degrading to all the people who paid for their booths, that something should be done to see that their money is refunded, and that a similar situation is never allowed to happen again.

Ford Makes Himself Nixon Gang Accomplice

President Ford's pardon in advance for former President Nixon is a gross error from his own point of view. He had been well on his way toward insulating himself, the Republican party, and American political conservatism in general from Watergate and allowing Nixon and his associates to (rightfully) act as lightning rod. This would have kept a lot of extraneous matter out of future political dialogue.

Now he has made himself an accomplice of the Nixon gang and is guilty of extending the cover-up. Watergate had been well on its way toward becoming a dead issue. Ford has breathed new life into it. Political liberalism (with which I identify) will no doubt gain in the short term, but in the long run, the nation will suffer.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Those who advocate coercion and ruption for political or ideological e have a ready model in the legally sanctioned struggle between labor unions and management. Our labor law, and the ideology that supports and suffuses it, encourages the organization of employees into fighting groups, and lets the wage bargain depend upon the outcome of the fight. The rhetoric of union organization and struggle is the rhetoric of war. The method of struggle, by both sides, is coercive, each attempting to put intolerable pressures on the other in order to achieve a favorable if temporary treaty of peace. — Robert H. Bork.

William P. Eno: The Father Of Traffic Safety Rules

By BARBARA CRAIG
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

For the past 70 years people have driven their cars in less confusion, thanks to a man who never drove a car himself.

William P. Eno suggested the first taxi stands, pedestrian safety islands, rotary traffic islands, traffic signal towers, and one-way streets. In addition, he wrote the first police traffic regulations and encouraged a standard set of traffic rules both in the United States and in other countries.

Many of his ideas are still in use.

Although Eno's parents were natives of Connecticut and he himself spent most of his life there, the "father of traffic safety" was born in New York. And it was in New York that he first became interested in traffic rules — at the age of 9.

The year was 1867, and the roads were crowded with horses and carriages.

"One day I drove to my father's office on Broadway," as he once told the story. "I was with my mother in an open carriage. On returning home, we were caught in a blockade. It took at least half an hour to get out of it . . .

"That very first traffic jam (many years before the motor car came into use) will always remain a vivid memory. There were only about a dozen horses and carriages involved, and all that was needed was a little order to keep the traffic moving. Yet nobody knew exactly what to do . . . We all sat there for half an hour until one driver decided to turn around and head the other way. Then gradually the mess started to unsnarl."

In 1900, after a career as an architect and real estate broker, Eno decided to do something about those "blockades" caused by horses and carriages.

He wrote an article called "Reform in our street traffic urgently needed," which was published in a magazine called Rider and Driver. He also penned one called "Suggestions for the management of carriages at entertainments."

Nowadays, such pieces might be considered dull reading. But at the turn of the century they quickly became a hot topic of conversation and were reprinted by newspapers across the nation.

WILLIAM P. ENO
Traffice expert

They caused Eno, then living in Connecticut, to be approached by police officials from New York. Would he give them some rules and regulations for controlling traffic?

His first recommendation was that a mounted traffic squad be established. Then, at his own expense — since the New York City budget had no money allocated for printing traffic regulations, Eno prepared a brochure called "Rules for Driving." The New York Police Department adopted them.

In short order, cities all across the nation were requesting copies of the brochure and adopting Mr. Eno's recommendations as their official traffic code, too.

Once Eno was launched on his career as a traffic expert, his enthusiasm led him to prepare articles for journals, write letters to newspaper editors, present papers at meetings, and badger police commissioners. He also corresponded with interested individuals all over the world.

In the beginning, his rules were strictly for the horse and carriage. But a decade or so later, as the automobile gradually huffed and puffed its way onto the American scene, Mr. Eno published a book called "Traffic Regulations."

It was a bestseller with civic officials all over the world, and because of it in 1912, he was summoned to England and France to help solve traffic problems in London and Paris.

Over the years, Eno made countless trips to Europe and Asia to help officials there.

In 1921, he used his funds to establish the Eno Foundation in Saugatuck, Conn. The purpose of the foundation, which is still in operation, was to perpetuate his work.

Ironically, the traffic safety expert was opposed to mechanical traffic lights when they were first introduced in America. He even urged city and town officials to "beware of skillful salesmen" who tried to sell them these mechanical devices.

"Do not be tricked by them," he advised. "Mere lights will not keep a motorist at an intersection. A traffic officer in his proper station at the center of the intersection will always be needed."

Yet, when he realized his mistake, Eno did all in how power to promote traffic lights. And because of the great esteem for the man, his acceptance of traffic lights also meant that many communities across the nation went along with the idea.

It should be noted, perhaps, that William Phelps Eno preferred horses to cars. He was an outstanding horseman.

In fact, even though his research was responsible for most modern traffic laws, Eno never did learn how to drive a car.

Group Says Milk Costs Are Inflated

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A consumer group charged yesterday that a half-gallon of milk sells for 13 cents more than it is worth and these inflated prices cost Californians $150 million a year.

The Ralph Nader-affiliated California Citizen Action Group said it will prove during hearings scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday that the price of drinking milk can be lowered.

The state sets all minimum milk prices at the producer, wholesale and retail levels. Currently, a half-gallon costs an average 71 cents statewide.

Roy Alper, lobbyist for the Citizen Action Group, also charged that Food and Agriculture Director C.B. Christensen "rubber stamps" recommendations for milk increases from an industry-oriented staff.

"In fact, there is an historical precedent that the director of food and agriculture — the man who must make the decision — does not even hear the evidence," Alper said.

"His staff hears the evidence and makes a recommendation that the director rubber stamps," he said. "Unforunately, the staff is biased in favor of the industry."

Alper said at a news conference that consumer experts will show that there can be reductions of the price of milk totaling 13 cents per half gallon. He said there can be a 6-cent reduction at the farm level, 3 cents at the processing level and 4 cents at the retail level.

"These figures are all supported by competent economic evidence and take into account existing costs of production and processing," he said.

State Organized Crime Examined

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Attorney Gen. Evelle Younger said yesterday that California has become a major target of organized crime syndicates that have sent "middlemen" to infiltrate legitimate business.

In discussing a report on organized crime prepared for the legislature, Younger said the syndicate has not controlled any specific area of crime because of its failure to corrupt police departments, district attorney's offices and superior courts.

"Infiltration into legitimate business by organized crime principals seems to be the most serious threat encountered by state law enforcement agencies," Younger said.

"There are not top syndicate management people in California, but there are over 50 persons who could be described as 'middle management syndicate people' who have arrived from the east and midwest," said the attorney general.

"Some of these are sleepers and are living quietly. Others have invested money in legitimate businesses. They have not done anything wrong and there has been no basis for any prosecutions. But we are watching them and hope to be able to prevent any developments which could lead to criminal activity."

Younger said top management syndicate people have been coming to California more frequently for meetings in Los Angeles, San Diego, and San Jose, Cathedral City and other communities.

He said the report to the legislature gives names of middle and top management people, but he refused to disclose them.

Charles Casey, head of the attorney general's organized crime branch, said that he heard a legal tape recording of two top organized crime figures in New York made seven or eight years ago in which they discussed moving to California.

Casey said this may have been a planning session for a five or ten year program and that the move of the 50 or so middle-management people into California could be a part of the plan.

Buchen Elevated To Cabinet Rank

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Philip W. Buchen, President Ford's former home-town law partner and White House counsel, was elevated to Cabinet rank yesterday.

John W. Hushen, deputy press secretary, said Buchen, Ford's law partner in Grand Rapids and an old friend, was being promoted "in recognition of his talents."

He was the President's representative in negotiating a pardon for former President Nixon.

Company Files Suit To Prevent Takeover Try

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thermal Power Co. of San Francisco filed suit in federal court yesterday seeking to block a takeover by a French government-controlled firm.

Thermal asked the court to grant a temporary restraining order prohibiting Al-Aquitaine Exploration Ltd., an Alaskan Corp., from going ahead with its tender offer to buy Thermal stock.

Besides the Alaskan firm, the defendants include its parent firm, Aquitaine of Canada Ltd.; a French firm which controls the Canadian Company; and a French government agency which in turn controls the French firm.

The suit said that Thermal, engaged for 18 years in developing geothermal steam power in California at the Geysers, had reached agreement Sept. 4 to become a part of Natomas Co. of San Francisco. But it said that on Sept. 6 Al-Aquitaine Exploration made an offer and invited tenders of common stock of Thermal.

The complaint contends that the offer and supporting materials with it violated the Securities Act of 1934. It said the offer failed to adequately disclose material information needed to keep the statements from being misleading.

Thermal alleged that the defendants failed to disclose that if an appreciable interest is acquired by Al-Acquitaine, the development company may be precluded from continued or future participation in federal and state geothermal steam leasing programs.

This, it said, is because the Alaskan firm is controlled by the French government.

The suit said the tender offer failed to disclose there is another outstanding offer for its shares in that Natomas has agreed to acquire Thermal in a tax-free transaction.

Besides asking for a temporary restraining order to halt the tender offer, the suit asked the court to grant a permanent injunction preventing the defendants from further violating the law and from voting any Thermal stock it may have acquired. It also seeks unspecified damages that the plaintiff or its stock holders mayhave suffered as a result of the tender offer.

The court also was asked to order the defendants to divest themselves of Thermal stock already acquired.

Windfall Comes At Right Time

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Today photographer William B. Decker is losing his job today, but he's not too worried about the future.

Decker won the $300,000 first prize yesterday in the weekly Illinois Lottery Bonanza drawing, and the windfall couldn't have come at a better time.

The 40-year-old bachelor is one of the reporters and photographers who will be out of work when Chicago Today publishes its last edition today.

He said he planned to do some fishing, but had no other specific plans. The money will be paid in 15 annual $20,000 installments.

Crosby Gives Up His Pipe

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Bing Crosby has given up pipe-smoking because of lung problems he suffered in January.

That's not the only reason. "It was a nuisance — what a nuisance," Crosby said yesterday. "All those pipe cleaners and paraphernalia it takes to keep it going."

His wife, Kathryn, said her husband's new status as a nonsmoker was "good for the rug, too."

Prison Guards Climb To Safety

CANON CITY, COLO. (UPI) — Five guards locked inside a burning prison building by inmates escaped without harm yesterday by crawling through a skylight, state penitentiary officials said.

"The inmates knew they were in there," prison counselor Harold Hinton said. "I don't know if they were trying to kill them or just harass them. But they definitely knew they were there."

Associate Warden Bill Wilson said the fire, apparently set by inmates after guards took down drapes in their cells, completely destroyed an old gymnasium and heavily damaged an adjacent warehouse.

"THE STORE YOU KNOW BECAUSE YOU HELPED US GROW"

YOUR CHILDREN'S HEALTH

A Fat, Chubby Child Isn't Necessarily A Healthy One

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
and
BRIAN SULLIVAN
(Fifth of a 10-part series)

"A fat, chubby child is a (healthy) (unhealthy) child."

Despite the old saying, t medical vote goes firmly for the second choice. Fat children are likely to grow up to be fat adults — it is estimated that 80 per cent stay fat.

Obesity makes people more susceptible to diabetes, high blood pressure, coronary disease, and it puts greater strain on the respiratory system, and has other effects working against a long and healthy life.

"Grandma" would say that "baby fat" disappears with maturity. But it doesn't, necessarily.

RESEARCH indicates that some people who are obese as adults become "programmed" that way as children. Because of eating too much food, the children developed extra numbers of "fat cells," the kind in adipose tissue designed to be storehouses of fat. These cells empty according to demand, or fill as fat is available for storage. It's easier to fill the fat cells than to empty them. Fat children have more fat cells than slim youngsters.

It is also too easy to use food for reward or punishment, or just to shut a child up. Withholding some choice food as punishment may simply increase desire for it, and it's likely to be something rich in calories. Food as a reward can lead a child to eat more than he needs.

ACTIVE, GROWING children will want their between-meal snacks and indeed should have them, because small young stomachs can't take in enough food, at regular meals, to supply the energy children need.

Left alone, unguided, children go for things like candy, potato chips, doughnuts, pastries, and other goodies that supply calories but not much else.

The key to guiding children to healthful snacks is to regard them as "minimeals," says Dr. Philip White, nutrition authority of the American Medical Association. Snacks should supply the same share of nutrient needs, such as proteins and carbohydrates, as regular meals.

DR. WHITE suggests things like little sandwiches, maybe made from leftovers and kept refrigerated for snacking; soups, fruit juices, peanut butter sandwiches, milk, dried fruits, raw vegetables such as carrot sticks, and cookies — oatmeal, graham, molasses, and raisin cookies rather than chocolate ones or those filled with cream.

"The Children's Crusade," the late Dr. Paul Dudley White called it. The eminent heart specialist was urging parents to act early in their children's lives to prevent premature heart attacks later in life.

Food is one risk factor — too much food, food too rich in saturated fats, and in cholesterol, one of the fatty materials blamed for plugging up arteries in the heart and brain.

FOOD HABITS designed to sidestep this risk can and should be started early in childhood, Dr. White said. (Guidelines for choosing such foods are detailed in the booklet.)

As for vitamins, the pills and supplements are not needed if your child is consuming an adequate and balanced diet, nutrition authorities say. And there is real danger in overdosing from vitamin A or vitamin D.

Doctors agree that it is NOT necessary to have a daily bowel movement in order to stay healthy. Nonetheless, the public is exposed to more than 700 different laxatives sold without prescription. Seldom are laxatives needed. Over-use is harmful in many ways.

A Visit To Israel Changes Her Life

A trip to Israel in 1967 changed the life of Julie Harris.

When she came back to her home in San Anselmo she gave up tennis, bridge and all of her other activities to dedicate herself to keeping Israel alive and strong.

"Visiting Israel was an emotional experience. We were asked to leave the country. It was a week before the war broke out," Mrs. Harris said.

It is her belief that had there been an Israel in the 1930s and '40s six million Jews would not have been lost during World War II.

"The people are so courageous. We met so many people who were branded with concentration camp numbers. They had lost their families in World War II, finally had a chance to be free, and here they had to fight again," she said.

When she first came back she wanted to do anything to help, she said. She became president of the Marin chapter of Hadassah and for two years was chairman of the Women's Division of the Jewish Welfare Federation. For the past few years most of her efforts have been concentrated in the Women's Division, State of Israel Bonds. For two years she has served as Marin chairman for the division's annual fashion show. This year she is general chairman of the show, which will be held Oct. 3 at 11 a.m. in the grand ballroom of the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco.

All fashions in the show are made in Israel and are part of a collection that travels to major cities, where Israel bond fashion shows are held.

JULIE HARRIS
Israeli bonds

Admission to the fashion show is by the minimum purchase of $500 in Israel bonds.

"Bonds are the most important thing for Israel's survival," Mrs. Harris said. "They are a good investment and help the American economy."

She explained that approximately 85 per cent of the goods purchased with the bond money are from the United States and include machinery, tools, equipment and materials that are used to build roads, schools and factories.

The 15-year bonds yield 4 per cent.

"The money does not go to war," Mrs. Harris said. "The bonds are not charity. They get Israel off its knees and on its feet."

Fashion Show Will Aid Club's Charities

An outdoor luncheon and showing of fashions is scheduled for Tuesday at Magnolia Terrace on the grounds of the San Rafael Elks Club. The event will raise funds for Elks Club charities.

The fashion show — called Fashion Expo '74 — will feature styles from James Sears Fashions of Strawberry Town and Country Village, with Helen Lyle as commentator and coordinator.

Co-chairmen of the event are John and Evelyn Kunst. Models, under chairmanship of Irma Seeger, will be wives of members of the Elks Committee on Charity.

No-host cocktails will begin at 11 a.m., with music provided by Viola Gottschalk. Decorations in the garden setting will be by Vale Smith. A silent auction is planned, and a number of gifts will be awarded.

Among committee members are Marie Sessi, publicity; Renada Burns, Joie Burke and Mary Anne Jurchan, silent auction and gifts; Pat Olive, reservations; Jeanne Roberts, Barbara Sousa and Kathy Marelli, gift ticket sales; Doreen Dalecio, luncheon tickets; Pat Deming and Tony Donnelley, serving; Edlyn Cattan, Jackie Migliore, Jean Goff, Ines Dolan and Helen Walkmeister, hostesses.

The San Rafael Elks last year spent $11,704 on charities, including contributions to youth, veterans aid and cerebral palsy victims. This year's goal is $15,000, with an increase planned in the amount awarded youths in scholarships.

200-MILE TRIP

River Devotee To Participate In Project To Save Stanislaus

By BETH ASHLEY

Kathy Meyer of Fairfax will cap off a summer of river-running this weekend when she begins an eight-day 200-mile trip by raft, canoe and kayak from Camp Nine on the Stanislaus River to Aquatic Park in San Francisco.

If this sounds like a nutty stunt, that's fine with Kathy. She and about 30 other wild river devotees are making the trip strictly for publicity and to raise funds for the campaign to "save the Stanislaus River."

Proposition 17 on the November ballot seeks to place the Stanislaus River in the Wild and Scenic Rivers System and block proposed construction of the New Melones Dam which would flood the river canyon. The dam is designed to provide new power sources to the state.

Miss Meyer, 31, tall and tanned and strapping, has spent weekends all summer rafting on wild rivers in California and Oregon. She is particularly devoted to the Stanislaus, which she traversed eight times. Labor Day weekend she and two friends conducted a Stanislaus trip for seven young people from Sunny Hills, residential treatment center for emotionally disturbed adolescents in San Anselmo.

"I love the river," she said. "There's a lot of folklore and history behind every rapid. It is fullof wonderful names — Widow Maker, and Devil's Staircase and Death Rock. There's a wealth of old mining history, and caves to explore where Indians lived. The geological formations in the canyon are just beautiful." She smiled. "And there's a fig tree at Duck Bar, the hugest fig tree you ever saw. It looks like Swiss Family Robinson and it makes you want to set up housekeeping right there in the tree."

"It would be very sad to see such a beautiful place go under water."

ON THE AGENDA

Sunny Hills Children's Services Director Will Be Guest Speaker

Philip J. Murphy, director of development at Sunny Hills Children's Services in San Anselmo, will be speaker for the Wednesday noon meeting of the Soroptimist Club of Marin County at the Pepperwood Coffee Shop in San Anselmo.

Murphy, a resident of San Anselmo, is responsible for all fund-raising for Sunny Hills, including grant writing, foundation presentations, special events and public relations. He is former editor of the Catholic Monitor newspaper in San Francisco.

MEL KRANTZLER, author of the book "Creative Divorce," will discuss the contents of his book at a meeting with members of the National Organization for Women at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Bank of Marin branch building in Larkspur. Harriet Reese, president of the Marin chapter of NOW, said the meeting is open to the public.

BAY AREA Femineers are sponsoring a day at the races, beginning with luncheon at the Turf Club at Bay Meadows Race Track at noon Wednesday.

The femineers organization is composed of the wives of members of the Structural Engineers Association of Northern California and the American Society of Civil Engineers. The Race Day event will benefit the group's scholarship program.

Florence Praszker is Marin County chairman.

CREATIVE FLOWER arranging will be the special feature of the Wednesday's guest day meeting of the Peacock Gap Garden Club. An informal coffee hour at 9:30 a.m. will precede the 10 a.m. meeting.

Guest speaker will be Ruth Berliner of San Jose, nationally accredited amateur flower show judge and member of the Judges Council.

Dorothy Aikins and Roselyn Howell head the committee to plan the Junior Garden Club for children aged 6 to 11. Pat Leete is club president.

Program chairman is Scoop Holmes and hostesses for the meeting are Donna Good, Joan Goldstein and Naida Sanders. Membership chairman Barbara

HELEN HELP US!

Watch Out For Ladders, Because It's Friday The Thirteenth

READERS ALL:

Today's column is dedicated to the Triskaidekaphobes and Friggaphobiacs among you. I mean (but, of course, you knew THAT!) those who fear the number, "13," and the day, "Friday."

The double whammy happens twice in 1974: September and December. Which makes it a worse than average year for Trisks and Friggs, but not as bad as 1981 when we'll quake through THREE Friday the Thirteenths (one of them being the exact anniversary of my birth).

How do the superstitious ward off evil on this unlucky day? Well, here are some antidotes gleaned from here and there:

Naturally, you must carry along a salt shaker, for salt thrown by the right hand over the left shoulder neutralizes the ominous spell of a black cat or a ladder you can't avoid.

Don't cross your knife and fork at the table, as it symbolizes crosses (hardships) to come. Since "13" probably derived its unluckiness from the misery that followed the Last Supper (where 13 were present); and Friday's dread started with the Crucifixion, you can see why the fearful avoid any kind of crosses on this day —even crossing their fingers.

Leave your hat on while riding in elevators: another Friday 13 "must" for the wary. Don't eat bananas with catsup today, even though you get the wildest of urges.

Let hay wagons (or trucks) have the right of way, and that old jingle, "Load of hay, load of hay, take my wish and go away" helps, though you mustn't look at the load again after you say it —if you do, that's worse than putting your tongue in the place where the tooth was.

Whistle while passing cemeteries. (Who doesn't, even on good days?)

Forget the old saw about "See a pin and pick it up, good luck to you all day." It works in reverse on Friday the Thirteenth! Leave 'em lay — especially safety pins.

Don't take a rake through the living room, but then your wife will warn you about this —any day. And, of course, opening an umbrella in the house is a triple threat. Also don't play cards with a crosseyed man — you'll lose!

It's the wrong day to plant potatoes or go hunting, unless you hunt with a falcon.

On the other hand, it's the right time to identify a future mate by holding a pullet's white egg in the mouth, and then running outside to listen for the first name spoken.

Babe Ruth always touched first base for luck when heading to the outfield on Friday riday the Thirteenth, and some people protect themselves against the witchery of the occasion by gluing a penny to their stomachs.

Not all such Fridays are ill spawned, says an editor friend of mine. It was Friday, June 13, 1498 when Columbus first set foot on the North American continent. Construction began on the White House Friday, October 13, 1792, and on Friday, September 13, 1814, "The Star-Spangled Banner" was written (which makes the song 160 years old today.)

But the Triskaidekaphobes never give up. Supposedly the Navy won't launch a ship on Friday the Thirteenth, and passengers and crewmen often dislike departing for a trip on Fridays. Many buildings omit the 13th floor, and some European cities don't use "13" in addresses. We all know 13 at a party —especially a dinner — is inviting disaster (even though we don't believe it).

Since your columnist was launched on Friday, March 13, I'm sure the day can't be all bad. However, the family Bible reports I weighed 13 pounds — and that might have been pretty bad for my mother. — H.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Job Environment To Be Discussed

Work environments will be featured next week on "Jorie Talks," KTIM radio, 8:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. Guests will include San Francisco attorney Melvin Belli and Marin apparel designer Jane Tise.

Miss Tise of Fairfax will be featured Wednesday discussing her San Francisco factory where a full-time gardener cares for the profusion of plants. Belli will comment on his Dickensian office scene and its adjoining courtyard on Thursday.

On Friday, Sausalito architect Robert Politzer will speculate on the future of work environments which are expected to become more individualized.

Margery Meisels and Norissa Leger, softwear designers, describe their San Anselmo atelier on Monday. Tuesday, silver and goldsmith John Moriarity discusses the workshop he shares with pewter craftsman Wayne Levie which is decorated with antique factory paraphernalia.

Each day during the week host Jorie Parr will mention objects some merchants place in front of their stores to indicate they are open for business. These include a penny-farthing type bicycle, an old California flag and a rocking horse.

MARRIED IN MILL VALLEY

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Speck smile for the camera following their wedding at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley Aug. 31. The bride, the former Sharon Loeffler, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Loeffler of Larkspur. James is the son of James Speck of Mill Valley and Naomi Speck of San Francisco. The two will live in South Pasadena while James attends California State University at Los Angeles.

Kindershule Is Scheduled At Marin Jewish Center

Classes for Marin Kindershule will begin Oct. 6 at the Marin Jewish Community Center in San Rafael.

The independent, non profit, secular Jewish school is for children between the ages of 6 and 12. Curriculum is based on Jewish history and culture with emphasis on ethnical tradition and ideas, including Biblical history, study of Israel, history of American Jews, family traditions, music, dance, archaeology and Hebrew. Families of children enrolled will participate in religious holiday celebrations throughout the school year.

Registration chairman is Ellen Berkowitz of Mill Valley. Barbara Leopold of Greenbrae and Vivian Sachs of San Rafael are chairmen of the board of directors.

Classes are held on Sundays from 10 a.m. to noon.

The Belvedere-Tiburon Guild of the Boyd Marin Museum of Science will sponsor a tour of the Jackson Square decorator area of San Francisco on Oct. 1.

Prior to the tour John Wheatman, AID, will give a lecture on "Personalized Decorating" at 9:30 a.m. at the Golden Gate Theater, 215 Jackson Street in San Francisco.

Following the lecture small groups will be guided through the area by Jackson Square Association personnel. Most shops in the complex are closed to the public and can be seen only by decorators. A selected group of showrooms and shops, representing each kind in the area, will be visited on the tour.

Cochairmen of the tour are Drue Gensler and Jan Goldberg. Dawn Kennedy, the guild's new president, will serve as hostess. Barbara Mathew is publicity chairman, and Jeri Miller is reservations chairman.

Sweeping Tips

A broom, preferably one made of a tough vegetable fiber is desirable. You might also want a long handled dustpan to avoid unnecessary stooping.

TRIP

them experienced Stanislaus boatmen like herself — will put into the river at Camp Nine on the river early Saturday morning. A few hardy river rats will begin the trip in kayaks, but many will start off in large multiman rafts. They will reach Melones (site of the proposed dam) at the end of the first day, then "portage" overland to Oakdale where Miss Meyer will continue the trip by canoe. By Thursday night the group will have navigated the San Joaquin and Sacramento Rivers, reaching the Carquinez Straits bridge. It is hoped a flotilla of private sail and power boats will join them there, forming a convoy for the Friday trip across San Pablo Bay to Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon. Saturday morning (after a night in sleeping bags on the yacht club floor) the group will make the trip across San Francisco Bay to Aquatic Park by kayak.

"I've never been in a kayak before this week," Miss Meyer said. "But a canoe would be just too unstable in the tides, and the rafts would be too slow. So a kayak it is."

She has been busy the past few days seeking sponsors for her "row for the river" — persons willing to pay 10 cents a mile (or more or less) for her effort, money which will be used to finance the campaign for Proposition 17. Persons who wish to sponsor her can send their money to "Friends of the River, P. O. Box 8826, Stanford University 94305."

But what if someone sponsors you at 10 cents a mile and you don't make it?

"I'll make it," she said.

Miss Meyer has been a devotee of water sports since her childhood in New Jersey. "I grew up sailing," she said. She moved to Los Angeles at 14, but came to the Bay Area for college, beginning at University of California at Berkeley, receiving a bachelor's degree in psychology from California State University, San Francisco.

She moved to Marin in 1966, bringing her small sailboat to a houseboat on the Greenbrae Boardwalk. She lived briefly in San Rafael before moving to Fairfax five years ago.

She worked at Sunny Hills as a counselor and later as an administrator for 8½ years.

She ran her first river as a passenger five years ago on the Klamath. Last year she ran the Tuolumne for the first time, and the Green River in Utah. But she discovered the Stanislaus three years ago, and decided this year to buy her own raft and row it herself. "I'm very excited about what I've been able to accomplish this summer," she said.

She has become an expert boatman, but so far takes people on the river only for fun, not pay.

She ran the Rogue in Oregon and the Tuolumne this summer. She hopes to continue exploring wild rivers wherever and whenever she can.

Meanwhile, she has a 200-mile trip ahead of her, and before that, a few practice spins in a borrowed kayak.

"The Stanislaus," she said, "is like a friend. It is a friend."

50 YEARS

Anniversary For Sonomans

Seventy friends and relatives from Marin and Sonoma counties attended a surprise 50th wedding anniversary dinner party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Cheslie O. Donahue Sunday.

The party was given in the banquet room of Bunny's Kountry Kitchen in Kenwood, Sonoma County. Plans were made by the couple's four children, John Donahue of Sausalito, Cheslie E. Donahue, Russell Donahue and Phyllis D. Moura, all of Santa Rosa. The Donahues have nine grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Mrs. Donahue is the former Alice Pedersen of Sausalito. She is the sister of Ralph Pedersen of Sausalito and Harry J. Pedersen of San Rafael. All are members of a pioneer Sausalito family.

Donahue was a soldier who had duty at Fort Baker in 1923 when he met the Sausalito girl. She was 16 years old when the couple was married at the Court House in Santa Rosa on Sept. 10, 1924, and her husband was 22.

When the bridegroom finished his Army hitch, he was employed as the head ticket collector on a ferry boat for the Golden Gate Ferry system. His wife sometimes worked on the ferries, too, in charge of concessions selling candy bars and soft drinks. During World War II Donahue worked at the Marinship shipbuilding yard.

At the end of World War II the Donahue family moved to Sonoma County. They now live on a ranch between Cotati and Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Donahue takes pride in her beautiful garden.

Malmuth said the meeting is open to any East San Rafael woman interested in joining the club.

THE SEPTEMBER luncheon meeting of the Marin County Officers' Wives Club will be held Wednesday at the Alvarado Inn, Ignacio. Cocktails will be served at noon.

Guest speaker will be Andrea Innocenti discussing plant care. Hostesses are Jean D. Gore of Novato and JoAnn Eberhardt of Novato. Reservations may be made through the club.

Ball Slated By Larkspur Volunteers

The 25 members of the Larkspur Association of Volunteer Firemen are again inviting residents to the 10th annual Firemen's Ball beginning at 9 p.m. Sept. 21 at the St. Patrick's Center in Larkspur.

The country western group, Lone Star Ramblers, will provide music.

Proceeds will be used to purchase fire equipment. The volunteers work as an auxiliary service to the city fire department, responding to calls that cannot be be handled solely by the city's two fire stations. The volunteers also sponsor social activities such as Christmas and Easter parties for children.

Tickets to the ball may be purchased at either the Larkspur Fire Department or the door.

WED IN SAN RAFAEL CHURCH

Melody A. Donovan of San Rafael and Leland D. Proimos of San Anselmo were married at St. Isabella's Church. A reception followed at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Donovan, in San Rafael. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo D. Proimos of San Anselmo. The newlyweds are living in Greenbrae.

Yoga Classes

Shirley Katz of San Rafael will be leading a beginner and intermediate yoga class beginning next Wednesday. The classes, stressing posture, breathing and relaxation, will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Center, 240 Channing Way, San Rafael. Information may be obtained from Mrs. Katz, 50 Mt. Rainier Drive.

Offerings include many antiques, craft items, plants, art supplies, surveying equipment and a palm reader. Mrs. John Duckett of Tiburon, AFS District Representative for Marin County AFS chapters, is the hobby palmist.

Alice Long and Oma Pemberton are chairmen.

Organizations which have reserved booths include the Marin Conservation League; Marin General Hospital Volunteers, Horizon Branch; Harmony Sewing Club of the Order of the Eastern Star; the White Shrine; Job's Daughters Bethel 119, Mill Valley; Beta Sigma Phi and the Women's Auxiliary of the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Construction Women Confab

Marin county women will be among the delegates to the annual convention of the National Association of Women in Construction to be held next Wednesday through Sunday in New Orleans, La.

Attending from the Marin chapter are Pamela Wing, Jeanne McCrillis, Helen Baker, Marguerite Kreuzer and Ruth Truett, former regional director and currently national treasurer. Ms. Truett has been nominated for a second term as treasurer.

ASSASSIN SENTENCED

A giggling and kiss-blowing Wayne Marcus Chenault (right) was escorted from an Atlanta courtroom yesterday after being sentenced to die in Georgia's electric chair for the murders of Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr. and Edward Boykin in the Ebenezr Baptist Church on June 30. The jury deliberated only 69 minutes before finding Chenault, 23, guilty of the slayings. (UPI Telephoto)

A Verdict Of Guilty In Inventor's Death

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Sentencing has been set for Sept. 20 for Ronald F. Calvert, found guilty yesterday of 12 counts of fraud and conspiracy to kill inventor Victor G. Null in a scheme to collect part of $2.35 million in insurance on Null's life.

Calvert faces a possible maximum penalty of 60 years in prison and a $21,000 fine.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated five hours Wednesday night and more than three hours yesterday before reachinj its verdict of guilty on 11 counts of mail and wire (telephone) frand and conspiracy to murder Null.

At the request of the prosecution, Calvert's $200,000 bond was revoked and he was remanded to the custody of the U.S. marshal.

Calvert's attorney said he probably would appeal. He said he was disappointed with the verdict and with the remanding.

Null, 34, was found shot to death in his East St. Louis, Ill., office-workshop Nov. 9, 1972. He had been working on a pollution-free rotary engine.

Calvert, 39, was a proxy for his father, James Calvert, 76, in the elder Calvert's partnership with Null in the HCS Turbine Co. James Calvert is the sole beneficiary of two insurance policies on Null's life totaling $350,000. He has a 43 per cent interest in a third policy with Lloyds of London for $2 million. The insurance companies have withheld payment.

Pioneer Aviator Dies In Illinois

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UPI) — Bert R. J. (Fish) Hassell, a pioneer aviator who held pilot's license No. 20, died yesterday at Rockford Memorial Hospital. He was 80.

Hassell was best known for establishing the Great Circle route over the Atlantic Ocean —the flight plan most commercial air lines still use to travel between the United States and Europe.

In 1928, he and co-pilot Parker D. (Shorty) Cramer took off for Sweden from Rockford, Ill. The two flew their plane, the "Greater Rockford," north towards Greenland rather than straight east to Euope.

Hassell and Cramer missed a landing strip on Greenland and crashed into the Arctic snow. Two weeks later the fliers staggered into a camp near Mount Evans, Greenland.

French Envoy To The Hague Held

THE HAGUE, Holland (UPI) — A man who said he was Japanese took French Ambassador Jaques Senard and some members of his staff hostage today and demanded the release of a Japanese woman held in a Paris prison, Dutch police said.

A police spokesman said the man shot and wounded a police officer and a policewoman called to the embassy.

"The officer was injured in the shoulder and his (female) companion in the breast. They were hospitalized," the spokesman said.

He said the man was holding the hostages in the ambassador's office.

"We have telephone contact with him and he speaks broken English," the spokesman said.

The embassy is a modern building of glass and concrete. Traffic was diverted from the French embassy and the nearby American embassy. They are located about 100 yards from the Dutch houses of parliament.

Police said the man apparently had no accomplices.

Acquitted Doctor To Be Candidate

BARRON, Wis. (UPI) — A physician acquitted earlier this year in New York on a charge of mercy killing will be the Democratic candidate for Barron County coroner in November.

Dr. Vincent A. Montemarano drew 267 votes as the unopposed Democratic candidate in Tuesday's primary election. So far, no Republican has sought the post.

Saxbe Says The Slate Is Clean

MONTREAL (UPI) — U.S. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe says President Ford's pardon has "wiped the slate clean" of all criminal cases pending against President Richard Nixon.

But Saxbe, speaking to the Radio and Television News Directors Association annual convention here yesterday, dodged most questions concerning the presidential pardon.

"If you are asking me to criticize the President here, I'm not going to do it," he said.

Sausalito Eliminates Pier From Park Plan

The Sausalito City Council last night agreed unanimously to eliminate a pier and nine acres of underwater property from its plans for public recreation on surplus federal land on the city's waterfront.

Councilmen want the pier for the Sausalito fishing industry, a commercial enterprise that would not qualify under Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation guidelines for giving the property away free if it is used for public recreation, according to councilman Violeta Autumn.

The city has applied to the federal General Services Administration to buy the pier, located at the Army Corps of Engineers complex, and the nine underwater acres, which would allow the city to use the pier for commercial interests with no obligation to open it to the public. No price has been set.

The council approved plans for public recreation on three dry land acres. The recreation proposal includes tennis and handball courts and a community center for classes and other indoor recreational purposes, according to planning director Herb Case.

New College of California and the Golden Gate Bridge District also have applied to the federal government for the property. The ultimate decision on which agency will be given the land rests with the General Services Administration.

Confession To Nevada Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Lovelock, Nev., man was held in city prison today awaiting Nevada authorities after telling police he killed his father.

Kip Lawrence Quilici, 23, flagged down a police car yesterday and told Sgt. Leo Mcquire: "I killed my father on Wednesday."

San Francisco police said they checked Quilici's story with Nevada authorities who went to a ditch where the suspect said he dumped his father's body. They found the body of the 52-year-old father who was beaten and stabbed in the heart.

Princess Tells Of Jumping Fear

LONDON (UPI) — It's not married life, or obligations to the Royal Family or other considerations that will make Princess Anne finally give up her successful career in show jumping. It's fear.

That's what Queen Elizabeth's 24-year-old daughter said yesterday night when a television interviewer asked when a competitive rider should quit.

"When you lose your nerve," Princess Anne replied. "It shouldn't take too long."

The Princess —a former European equestrian champion who is competing in this week's world three-day event at Bingley, England —also admitted she often became very frightened during riding events.

Workshop Auditions Are Set

Auditions for the Marin Symphony Association Workshop for Strings will open Thursday at Miller Creek Junior High School, 2255 Las Gallinas, San Rafael.

The auditions, from 3:30 to 6 p.m., will be for openings in the advanced orchestra.

Auditions for the intermediate orchestra will be held Sept. 26 at 3 p.m., also at Miller Creek school.

Joyce McIlvain, director of the Workshop for Strings, said that auditions require a two or three octave scale, a technical etude and a portion of a solo. All workshop musicians must be studying with a private teacher and be members in their own school musical organizations, she said.

The orchestras are scheduled to perform a family concert Jan. 23 and a public concert May 1. The Workshop for strings is a training organization for the Marin Youth Orchestra and the Orchestra Piccola.

License Suspended

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John Ehrlichman, one-time adviser to former President Richard M. Nixon, has been suspended from the practice of law in California because of involvement in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Tenure Denial Upheld By Musicians, Ozawa

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A decision to deny tenure to two San Francisco Symphony members has been upheld by the Symphony Association and music director Seiji Ozawa.

Timpanist Elayne Jones and principal bassoonist Ryohei Nakagawa were denied tenure in the symphony on May 15 by the Orchestra Players' Committee, whose decision was "in accordance with their interpretation of their responsibilities under the contract," the Symphony Association said.

The statement cleared the way for auditions to fill the positions for the 1975-76 season.

Nakagawa and Miss Jones were allowed to remain with the symphony through the 1974-75 season under a compromise, but Miss Jones has a lawsuit pending against the Symphony Association and Musicians Union Local No. 6 in which she seeks tenure and $50,000 damages.

"We have no alternative but to go into court to prevent the auditions from taking place," said Allan Brotsky, Miss Jones's attorney.

Psychiatric Interviews Ordered

A disabled Novato man convicted of molesting an 8-year-old girl will be interviewed by two psychiatrists, Marin Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick ruled yesterday.

The order came after the judge found Homer Warder Byard, 59, guilty following a two-day trial without a jury.

Broderick set a hearing for Oct. 3 on whether to declare Byard a mentally disordered sex offender and commit him to a state hospital.

Byard, an engineer, has not worked since he was hit by a car and disabled in 1969. He has been on state aid since.

Byard denied molesting the girl in a creek area near the retirement home where he lived in June, saying he was in San Rafael that day.

Ordinance Is Introduced

An ordinance, which will allow Ross residents to do small electrical repairs in their homes without a permit, was introduced last night by the town council.

The regulation would make a permit from town officials mandatory only for jobs requiring more than $100 in materials.

Currently all electrical work requires a town permit.

In other business, the council noted that the debris collection box for use by town residents is back in the parking lot near the Ross Post Office.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Richardson's Is One Of Many Sausalito Spots With A View

There are more restaurant dining rooms with views in Sausalito than in any other Marin community — and almost twice as many as in Tiburon, its nearest competitor.

Obviously most of these views are of the bay — either from right next to it or from the hillsides looking down. Nature did a lot for Sausalito and naturally the city is making the most of it, for such view sites are now at a premium.

One which has a particularly fascinating outlook — both of the water and of downtown Sausalito itself — is William A. Richardson's Bay View Restaurant and Saucelito Oyster Bar. This place, by the way, also has the longest restaurant name in the Bay Area, I am sure — possibly on the entire West Coast. However, although it makes nice reading in print, I've never heard anyone take the trouble to go through the whole thing — they simply settle for Richardson's.

Its location at 660 Bridgeway is right in the heart of Sausalito's downtown traffic. The building was once occupied by a Purity Market and after Purity moved out I seem to recall that it stood vacant for a long time before someone woke up to its possibilities and made a two-story affair out of it. It now has shops at the street level and a bar, lounge, deck and dining room upstairs. Early last year Richard St. John took it over and he's been running it ever since.

In any kind of favorable weather the deck gets the biggest play. From it you can get more of a birdseye view of land and water than any other downtown restaurant.

Richardson's serves lunches and dinners seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. Its dinner menu runs principally to seafood dishes, although you can order steaks, coq au vin, veal piccata and beef brochettes. But its specialties are a Marseilles bouillabaisse, turbot, a white fish casserole, trout, poached salmon, scampi, shrimp, halibut, abalone, lobster and calamari, along with oysters and clams. Served with gaspacho or hot soup or salad, dinners are $4.95 - $8.95.

The restaurant cuts its own steaks, brochettes and veal from meat supplied three times a week. Salmon, turbot and whole crab are fresh and are caught locally. Oysters and clams are delivered live and fresh from the East Coast. Things like abalone, Idaho trout, scampi and jumbo shrimp are frozen, as in other restaurants here.

Fresh vegetables and fruits are delivered daily, Safflower oil is used for cooking and dressing — pure butter otherwise. All dressings are made there; there's a fine onion soup made to order and excellent individual cheesecakes — also good coffee, which convinces many a diner-out he's had a fine meal. There are several of the more exotic coffee drinks, too. And there are some excellent wines, from California vineyards and imported.

All in all, Richardson's has a lot going for it. There's more space in the restaurant than you'd ever believe from the outside — it seats about 200 persons. Parking is always a problem in downtown Sausalito, but you can get your ticket validated for the municipal parking lot — same as is done with some of the other commercial places here.

NICE REPORTS have been coming to this writer about a new little restaurant in Cotati called A Chez Nous. It's located at 8235 Old Redwood Highway.

The food is on the side of Algerian-French - due no doubt to the fact that the French family that runs it is from Algiers. Remy and Magda Saulnier, their son Hubert and daughter-in-law Pamela make up the cast. Remy is the chef and a specialist in seafoods. Wife Magda helps him in the kitchen; Hubert and Pamela handle the dining room.

If you are looking for something different you might try the beef tongue baked in a mustard sauce, served with carrots julienne and pureed squash with tumeric, or shrimps simmered in a cognac sauce.

Prices are reasonable. The place is neat and clean and open for lunch from noon to 2 p.m. Dinners are served from 6 to 9 p.m. It is closed on Sundays and Thursdays.

THAT PRETTY little Japanese place recently opened in the Alpha Beta Shopping Center at Larkspur (located at Magnolia Avenue and Doherty Drive, in the words of its owner Kazuo Hisamatsu, is "doing better than average."

With a new restaurant that can mean anything, but I'm sure that when more people get to know about it he should be able to leave out the last two words. Name of the place is Marin Toyo.

It's a neat and colorful place, though small, seating about 35 persons. Right now it serves dinners only and these, with several Japanese selections, are in the $4 - $5 range. It's closed Sundays and Mondays.

This is Kazuo's second restaurant — he and his wife are now in their fifth year at 3226 Geary Boulevard in San Francisco.

IF YOU'RE IN SAN ANSELMO and looking for a place to have lunch, try The Arbor at 636 San Anselmo Avenue (no dinners yet — maybe later). It's open daily except Tuesdays from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Entrees (Swiss bratwurst with potato salad, crepes Florentine, crepes poulette, quiche Lorraine and hamburger steaks) are from $1.70 to $2.65. There are also five salads in the 65 cents to $2.25 range. And hot and cold sandwiches are $1.40-$2.10 — Reuben, hot pastrami, Westphalian ham, smoked ham, liverwurst on pumpernickel — and several others. You'll also find soups, desserts, carafe wines and draught beer.

LIKE TO COOK?

Then there may be a place for you in restaurants of the future — no matter what is said about pre-prepared foods and mechanized equipment taking over. Good chefs are always in demand and good salaries are paid for them.

If you are young, willing to work hard and sometimes long hours and learn your job there is definitely an opportunity ahead for you. It's the old, old formula for success, without any glamor to it — but it still is a formula that works.

It is true that European trained cooks and chefs generally have an edge on Americans, simply because cooking is a highly rated skill in Europe and people are more food conscious there. Its young men are willing to undergo several years with little or no pay to learn their trade.

But I have seen young American cooks without European training qualify for top chef posts. I have known several such youths in their late 20s and early 30s already acting as head chefs and sous chefs in fairly large restaurants.

If you are seriously inclined to go in the restaurant business — even though you consider yourself a good cook — check out the Restaurant School at City College, San Francisco. Then find yourself a good (even if menial) kitchen spot for on-the-job training.

I'd say that in the last month at least three restaurateurs have asked me if I knew of a good chef available. One other was looking for an assistant.

Unfortunately, I couldn't help any of them. A good man not working is hard to find — and when eventually you do find him he's already gotten another job.

LUNCH OR DINE WITH A VIEW — Richardson's in Sausalito is noted for its fine deck outlook over San Francisco Bay and on the downtown Bridgeway. Here waiter Andrew Waite takes an order for one of the restaurant's seafood specialties.

Search For City Song Nears End

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — After spending nine years looking for a "city song" and rejecting 720 compositions, the city of Los Angeles has narrowed the selection down to four songs and may choose a winner soon.

A nearly decade-long competition has been underway in City Hall since the Mayor Sam Yorty in 1965 decided the city ought to have its own little tune.

Some 720 rejections later, the Municipal Arts Commission, in charge of finding the right tune, has finally narrowed the field down to four, including "City of Angels," by Don Beckman, "Los Angeles, the City I Love," by Walter Jurman, "Los Angeles," by Duane Valery, and "Angeltown," by Jay Livingston and Ray Evans.

Mayor Tom Bradley is to put his mark on his choice and send it to the City Council for final approval.

JUST A FRIENDLY SMACK

Behr Foe High On Conservation

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Ernest F. Banker, Democratic nominee in the state's Second Senatorial District, yesterday said his 10 years as a Mendocino County supervisor showed he has a good record on environmental issues.

The Ukiah real estate broker is challenging Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, who long has been identified with conservation causes.

Banker, 53, pointed to his votes to put roughly half the county in agricultural and forest conservation preserves under strict county controls on their use, to oppose the 21,000-acre My Ranch recreational development in Round Valley, to oppose the Dos Rios dam which would have flooded the valley, and to deny a large coastal subdivision that failed to give public access to the beach.

The My Ranch controversy, he added in an interview, found him on the short end of a 3-to-2 vote by his board of supervisors to approve the development. A subsequent referendum to overturn the decision found voters sustaining his objections four to one, he added.

But Banker stressed that he was "more than just a single-issue candidate." Contrasting himself to Behr, he said, "I favor a much more balanced approach to growth and development."

While Banker claimed that he and Behr differed on environmental issues "only in degree," they have markedly contrasting views on some specific issues. On Warm Springs Dam, for example, Banker branded as "sheer idiocy" any attempt — such as the one pushed at one time by Behr — to postpone the dam pending further study of its seismic safety.

ERNEST F. BANKER
Senate Candidate

Banker also opposed Behr's successful legislation in 1972 to preserve North Coast rivers in their natural state. The county supervisor, however, said he only opposed including the Eel River in the law.

Banker said his campaign would stress his own strengths, and not attacks on the incumbent senator. He criticized Behr, however, for voting against increased aid to the aged, blind and disabled, requiring lobbyists to register, prohibiting hotels from refusing admission because of hair style, permitting 18-year-olds to vote and granting time for debate on a farm labor bill.

The supervisor also criticized Behr for voting in favor of a bill allowing the use of evidence obtained during an illegal search and seizure.

Banker termed Behr "more liberal than I am," adding he considered himself "a middle-of-the-road Democrat."

He predicted that he will win the election if he can carry Sonoma County and get 40 per cent of the vote in Marin. Conceding he did not have much of a campaign during the June primary, Banker said he will take four weeks of vacation during October to campaign full time in the two counties.

Marin has about 41 per cent of the voters in the district, which stretches to the Oregon border. The two counties have about 63 per cent of the district's vote, he added.

Banker, acknowledging Behr traditionally draws support from Democrats as well as Republicans, said he will appeal to their party loyalty. Predicting the party will win the governor's seat, Banker said a Democratic administration's need to achieve reforms in education, social welfare and elections will need strong support in the Legislature.

The Democrats now control the Senate 21-19, but need a better margin, he argued.

Banker said he and Behr may agree to a spending limit, but that he hopes to raise $70,000 for the November contest. Campaign funds are tough to find, he conceded, because people have less to give, fear new laws on contributions and suspect politicians.

On other issues, he said there was no need to change laws governing bargaining rights of public employees, and called for reform of the Legislature so it stops trying to handle all of its business in the closing weeks of each session. Objecting that the Legislature is burdened with too many special local bills, Banker said the state should expand local government's power to handle many of the problems that end up in Sacramento.

Banker is a native of Ukiah, and, except for service as an Army Air Corps pilot during World War II, has lived there almost his entire life. The one exception was during 1942, when he lived in San Rafael and worked as a lumber handler at the Larkspur Lumber Yard.

Final Death Blow Is Probably Dealt To Terminal In Sausalito

Controversial plans for a new Sausalito ferry terminal were buried even deeper yesterday when Golden Gate Bridge District directors voted to shift money set aside for it to the Larkspur ferry terminal.

The unanimous action by the finance-auditing committee was to come before the full board today for virtually certain ratification. The full board voted last month to halt all planning of the Sausalito terminal, but some opponents of the terminal expressed fear it could be revived at any time.

Shifting the funds to the Larkspur terminal, however, presumably would assure an indefinite shelving of the Sausalito project. Up to $1.5 million is available for the shift.

Costs for the Larkspur terminal have mounted to more than $17 million. Construction bids alone were $3.6 million over the $10.1 million budgeted, but cuts are being made in the project to lower its cost.

The district's staff said the Sausalito funds would more than cover the cost of floats at Larkspur, but had no estimate yet of their cost. The Sausalito money also could pay for $120,000 in canopy shelters, the staff said, but not for the $1.3 million roof envisioned by the designers of the Larkspur terminal.

In other business, the committee declared its intent to recommend a one-third fare hike mid-day and weekends on the Sausalito ferry. It decided not to recommend the hike to the full board pending staff study of the proposal. It calls for raising the current fare from 75 cents to $1, but leaving unchanged the 25-cent fare for children age 6 through 12.

Board President Stephan C. Leonoudakis said the hike would increase revenue by $200,000 to $250,000 a year, declaring this would mean the ferry would "almost break even." The district's budget shows the deficit for this fiscal year on the Sausalito ferry will be some $700,000 — roughly three times the amount that would be raised by the fare hike, but Leonoudakis objected that rough figure included about $400,000 for the expanded ferry system, due to start in November.

Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post urged last month that the midday and weekend ferry fare be as much as doubled to $1.50. Only about 25 per cent of the ferry's passengers are commuters, according to district figures.

Nuclear Waste Storage Cost Set At $3 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission estimates it will cost $2.5 billion to $3 billion to deal with the radioactive wastes expected to come from the nation's nuclear power plants for the rest of the century.

Frank Pittman, director of waste management for the AEC, said that expense will be borne by the power companies and ultimately the consumer. But he said it will be an insignificant addition to the electric bill.

The commission yesterday outlined three likely approaches for storing the nuclear wastes above ground, and three potential storage sites at AEC facilities in Nevada, Idaho and Hanford, Wash.

Pittman said the surface storage plants will be used for 20 or 30 years until permanent disposal methods are perfected, probably in underground rock or salt formations.

He said the initial storage facility probably will cost $40 million to $60 million.

The three most likely approaches to storing the radioactive wastes are in a water-filled and water-cooled vault, an air cooled vault or in individually sealed casks 8 feet in diameter and 14 feet tall.

In the water-cooled vault design, the AEC estimates that all of the solidified, highly radioactive waste to be generated by the commercial nuclear power industry by 2000 could be stored in modules taking up less than 10 acres of land.

The AEC detailed the possible approaches in a preliminary environmental impact statement issued for public comment.

Berkeley Central: It Has Changed Since The Sixties

BERKELEY (AP) — Events like the Free Speech Movement, the Filthy Speech Movement, Stop the Draft Week demonstrations and the People's Park fight have rattled this university city for a decade.

But whenever microphones fell silent, leaflets blew away and tear gas settled, "Berkeley Central" always remained a permanent shrine to political and social change.

Geographically it encompasses the University of California's Sproul Plaza and perhaps a quarter-mile of adjoining Telegraph Avenue, but it seems a part of neither the city nor the campus. It is an institution.

Even on the most restful summer days in politically stagnant times, people of "Berkeley Central" can't quite forget events here since Mario Savio led a fight for free speech in 1964.

"We've seen all the riots, the National Gaurd and everything," recalled Nellie Bezley as she sold fruit from her stand at Telegraph and Bancroft avenues. "The first time I got tear gassed I thought I'd die, but we learned to keep wet towels to wash our eyes."

She and her husband Gordon operated one of four food stands at the main university entrance seven years ago, but today the middle-aged couple and their dog Funky are joined by some 15 other food carts — many with hot and cold running water and serving everything from Chinese dinners to pretzels.

Nearby the ever-present Hare Krishna devotees bounce up and down, competing for attention with a Bible-shaking preacher and long-haired panhandlers.

Behind them stretches the 30,000-student campus which recently has seen a sharp decline of overt political activity. The last antiwar street riots were in May 1972 after the mining of Haiphong harbor. Last year saw only two peaceful mass sitins over the planned phaseout of UC's Criminology Department.

"Berkeley no longer is the mecca for students from the East and elsewhere," said one campus public information officer. "After the Free Speech Movement the heavies wanted to come, but now there's quiet, solid academic work going on here."

From an office looking out on frisbee players and sunbathers in Sproul Plaza, he added, "After the war and the draft were over, there wasn't much to feed the radicals."

On Sather Gate, site of some of the bloddiest police-student clashes of the 1969 Third World strike, are the faded words "On Strike." Painted over them is "SLA Lives."

Newspaper heiress and UC coed Patricia Hearst was abducted from her nearby apartment Feb. 6 by the Symbionese Liberation Army, six members of which subsequently died in a Los Angeles shootout with police.

Litle support for the SLA ever materialized among radicals here. While some SLA goals won sympathy, its members generally were regarded as latecomers frustrated into desperate and even counter-revolutionary acts by their inability to mobilize a mass movement.

Most of the old Berkeley radical leaders, including Savio and Jerry Rubin, are gone or are relatively inactive. The few who remain or return for visits sometimes socialize in the Mediterranean Cafe on Telegraph Avenue, but as one said recently: "Things have changed. Nothing overtly political is happening."

Up and down The Avenue, as it is known, are dozens ot vendors peddling leather goods, jewelry and other handmade articles from curbside stands and blankets. Some 450 of them have been licensed by the city, lending the street a festive air.

In front of Larry Blake's restaurant — where a food freezer once provided bystanders with refuge from tear gas, a tall, blonde vendor sells leathers and reminisces: "Five years ago, there were only 20 of us, but now there are a lot more vendors. There are a lot more junkies and lots of ripoffs of vendors, too."

Many vendors have turned to police for help despite antipolice sentiment lingering from the pitched battles once waged along the avenue.

"At that time the spirit was different," said Patrolman Jim Macedo, a veteran of six years here. "The war was on and young people faced the draft.

"Rapport with police is a two-way street, and we changed a little bit, too," he added, looking to Patrolman Dave Elliott, who wears a bushy brown natural hairstyle. "It's not cool to hassle. At times they have been ripped off by their own type of people and have had to come to the police."

A half-block off Telegraph Avenue, a solitary university groundskeeper waters "People's Park" where an orgy of community spirit — dancing, gardening and music — created a neighborhood park and eventually led to citywide violence and death.

Oregon To Increase Tourist Spending

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — A subcommittee of Oregon's Legislative Emergency Board yesterday approved spending an additional $200,000 on out-of-state tourist promotion, primarily in California.

The funding must be approved by the full board today.

The request by the state Transportation Department resulted from a decline in the number of tourists visiting Oregon during the past year.

Department officials said the money would be used in part to offset the effects of Oregon's reported unfriendly attitude toward out-of-state visitors.

Reports from Travel Information Centers at Oregon border points indicate that tourists from other states have heard of the half-serious campaign to discourage visitors and limit Oregon's growth.

Travel information director Fic Fryer said tourism is down about eight per cent from 1973 and down about 15 per cent from the year before.

By JEFF GREER

When their teachers describe how Abe Lincoln had to study by the light of a fireplace, the youngsters in the Gardner family can match the adventure with personal experience.

Lewis and Florence Gardner and eight of their nine youngsters are camping in Samuel P. Taylor State Park until they can find another home large enough for them.

The youngsters are doing their homework by campfire light, and even under the dome light of the family auto. They're relearning the almost forgotten art of washing clothes by hand and drying them in open air on a line.

"One of the girls asked me the other day if she was likely to get a cold from wearing damp socks to school," Mrs. Gardner reported. "I said she'd build up immunity."

The Gardners were renting a spacious old house in Fairfax, but had to move out when it was sold. Weeks of combing the classified ads and searching word-of-mouth for new quarters failed to find another home.

Sunday, the Gardners moved into a campsite in the state park, using a borrowed tent.

The Gardners' furniture and most of their possessions — including a piano that was the center of the youngsters' social set — are in storage until the family gets a roof over its many heads again.

Mother, the girls and younger boys sleep cozily in the tent; father and the older boys rough it in open air, along with the family dog, Muttley. There's even a new puppy, Millicent, which the soft-hearted Mrs. Gardner adopted when pressed to do so by a child giving away puppies outside a shopping center a few days ago.

Through it all, Mrs. Gardner claims she's no pioneer mother. "I'm not a camper, I'm strictly a hot-bath-every-night type," she said. "I haven't been camping since I was about 10" although the menfolk in the family are experienced campers.

The father is a carpenter, working daily and unable to spend much time househunting.

So Mrs. Gardner and the family get up at 6 a.m., the family car delivers the youngsters to their various schools in Fairfax and San Anselmo, and Mrs. Gardner spends the time until she taxis them all home by driving through the streets of the upper Ross Valley, looking for a big, old, empty house to rent.

She was a teacher's aide in Fairfax schools last year, and intends to revive her former teaching credentials, once settled down in another home.

The youngsters are "really established" in their schools, and don't want to move away and lose their friends, she said.

The family's teen-age friends are hitchhiking to the campgrounds to join the Gardner children in camp life and swimming, while the smaller ones play with their toys among the huge redwood trees in the park.

The early rising affects some of the children.

"I was in Christopher's class at Deer Park School," the mother said, "and he was like this," she demonstrated, nodding with eyes closed.

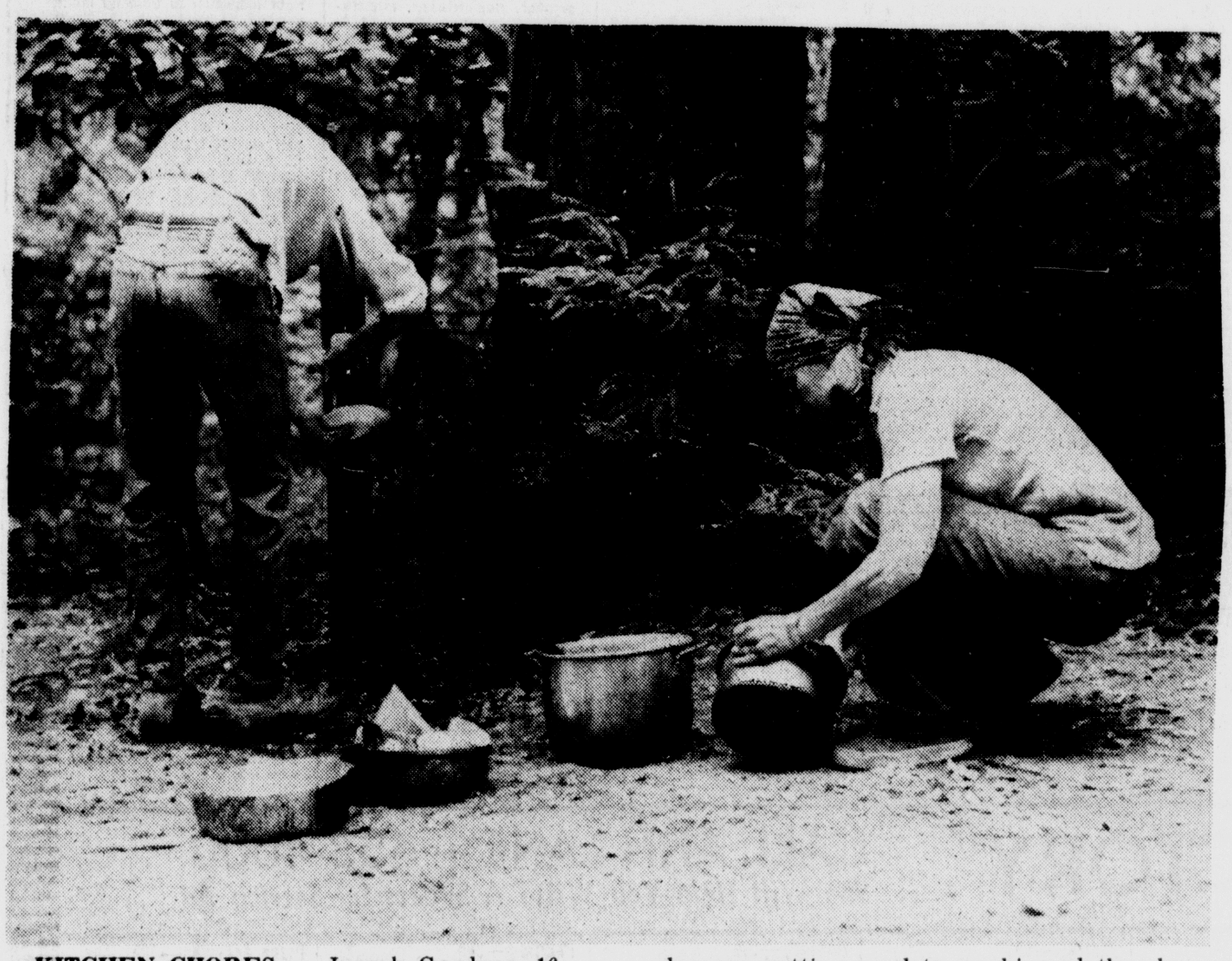
The Gardners' ninth child, 19-year-old Mary, is just beginning college on a scholarship at Goddard, N.H. — but she's determined to come back to the family fold between semesters, Mrs. Gardner said.

The children taking part in the camping adventure are Michael, 18 and Joseph, 16, both serious musicians and members of school bands; Sioehan, 13, who's a bit unhappy about having to entertain visiting friends who can't raid the refrigerator or play records without electricity; Margaret, 12; Catherine, 11; Elizabeth, 9; Timothy, 8, and Christopher, 7.

Some of the children attend St. Anselm's school, others are in Fairfax schools, high schools and the College of Marin.

HOMEWORK AL FRESCO — Elizabeth Gardner, 9, (left) and her sister Margaret, 12, hurry to finish their studies before darkness falls on the family's camp in Samuel P. Taylor State Park. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gardner of Fairfax and eight of their nine children are camping in the redwoods while hunting for a house. The tiny lamp on the table — or their auto's domelight — is used by the young scholars for study light after darkness falls.

EVENING AT HOME — Lewis Gardner chops wood for his family's dinner cooking, while son Joseph strides off on an errand and daughter Catherine, 11, studies. The family has been camping in the park since Sunday, after losing their rented home when it was sold to a new owner. (Photos by Alfred M. Arn)



KITCHEN CHORES — Joseph Gardner, 16, and his mother, Florence, wash pots and pans under a coldwater tap beside a redwood tree after the evening meal. The children also are getting used to washing clothes by hand, and all help keep the camp site in order, Mrs. Gardner reports.

Hitchhiker Is Charged With Prostitution Try

For Carla Schueler, it was a case of being in the wrong place at the wrong time with the wrong person.

Because the man who picked her up as she hitchhiked on Fourth Street in San Rafael Aug. 31 was an off-duty San Rafael policeman, Miss Schueler faces a charge of soliciting for prostitution.

Police said she propositioned the officer, who promptly drove her to the police station.

There, officers said, they found a hypodermic needle and booked Miss Schueler, 21, of no fixed address, into Marin County Jail.

She was released after posting $250 bail and was due to appear today in court.

Court clerks said it was the first prostitution case in Marin since four women were arrested in a raid on a San Rafael massage parlor in December, 1971.

Surrenders

THE FOG MOVES IN

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

FORECASTS

San Francisco Bay Area: Low clouds along the coast extending inland nights and mornings but sunny inland areas afternoons through tomorrow; a little warmer tomorrow; high temperatures 70s and low 80s tomorrow; lows tonight in the 50s; westerly winds 10 to 20 m.p.h. afternoons and evenings except small craft advisory Suisun Bay and West Delta for southwest winds to 30 m.p.h.

Sierra Nevada: Fair through tomorrow; a little warmer.

Napa and Sonoma valleys and Santa Rosa Plain: Fog and low clouds night and morning but sunny afternoons through tomorrow; warmer; low tonight and high tomorrow at Santa Rosa 52, 83; southerly winds to 20 m.p.h. afternoons.

Firefighters Abandon Ship

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — A firefighting team of 96 men abandoned the burning luxury liner Cunard Ambassador in the Florida Straits last night when the 486-foot vessel threatened to capsize.

A Coast Guard spokesman said it was too dangerous for the 53 crewmen and 43 Coast Guardsmen to remain on the vessel in darkness after the ship's emergency power supply failed.

The ship also had developed a seven-degree list to its port side, bringing fears it might go under.

There were no passengers aboard the liner when the blaze broke out at 7:15 a.m. yesterday while en route from the port of Miami to begin cruise service to Mexico from New Orleans.

Ford's Chief Concern: Health Of The Nation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford was more concerned about the "health of the nation" than the health of former President Nixon when he granted Nixon an unconditional pardon, a White House spokesman said today.

Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen was bombarded today with a barrage of questions on whether Ford was motivated by reports that Nixon is depressed and is suffering from a recurrence of phlebitis when the surprise pardon was announced Sunday.

"The President is of course concerned about the former president's health but as he said in his statement the health of the nation is more important than the health of any one man," Hushen said. "That's the primary concern."

Ford learned of Nixon's health, Hushen said, "from the spate of stories on his health." Nixon's sons-in-law have spoken publicly in recent days to say the inflammation of a vein in Nixon's leg is bothering him and the former president at times feels depressed.

Hushen indicated that Ford would field questions personally at a news conference, probably early next week.

"I think you probably will have the answers in the near future," he said.

Hushen said Ford had requested Rear Adm. William Lukash, the White House physician, to keep him "generally informed" of Nixon's health. However, he said there would be no medical reports coming from the White House.

Also on the question of pardons, Hushen said there were no requests on the President's desk from any of the Watergate defendants asking for clemency.

For the third day in a row yesterday the Ford administration modified its position on pardons for Watergate defendants.

On Tuesday, Ford's press secretary John W. Hushen had said "the entire matter is under study." Wednesday, Hushen said Ford "never, ever planned to give mass amnesty" to these defendants but would consider individual requests.

Yesterday Hushen told newsmen: "There was never any intention on our part that the Watergate defendants were about to be pardoned and especially not prior to trial."

No requests for pardons had been received, he said. "If we got one I believe he (Ford) wouldn't act on it."

The statement followed a 1 ½ hour meeting between Ford and Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott.

Scott told newsmen, "I don't know of any congressman or senator who wants a blanket pardon at this time. I do not think the American people want any blanket pardons."

Later in the day, the Senate adopted 55-24 a resolution urging Ford not to grant any future pardons in cases related to the 1972 presidential campaign until the defendants have been tried and all appeals completed.

It has no legal force, but it puts the Senate on record with an opinion.

House Judiciary Committee Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., indicated the House may adopt a similar resolution.

For the six former aides of Richard Nixon who are awaiting trial in the Watergate cover-up case, the day was a double disppointment.

First they learned no pretrial pardons would come from the White House. Then U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica denied motions of three of them to delay or cancel their trial because of the pardon issue.

Lawyers for former attorney general John N. Mitchell argued that by accepting pardon Nixon implied guilt, that jurors would impute this guilt to Nixon's aides and that this would deny them a fair trial.

Mitchell's brief said Ford has "further inflamed the atmosphere by publicly agonizing over whether or not further pardons are to be issued for all 'Watergate persons.'"

Asked if he thought Ford had been serious in suggesting pardons would be issued for defendants, John J. Wilson, H. R. Haldeman's lawyer, replied, "Of course I did. Sure."

Sirica rejected the arguments by Mitchell, Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, but did agree to delay the trial one day from Sept. 30 to Oct. 1 to permit calling a new batch of nearly 1,000 prospective jurors.

Firemen Cause Noxious Fumes

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI) — Firemen sprayed water on compressed hydrogen chloride gas leaking from a tanker truck last night, unwittingly creating smelly hydrochloric acid fumes that forced the evacuation of 2,500 persons for about eight hours.

The threat ended around midnight when the truck was driven to an abandoned bridge and parked 300 yards from shore under police protection while the fumes dissipated over Back Bay.

Robert Reed of Pensacola, Fla., driver of the McKenzie Truck lines tanker, donned a gas mask to drive the tanker at 50 miles per hour to the bridge, now used only by fishermen.

Adult Education Class Schedules Are Announced

Adult education programs in Marin County continue to increase their offerings, with classes available through the Tamalpais, San Rafael, and Novato high school districts starting Monday.

For schedules, phone the district offices.

The College of Marin and Indian Valley Colleges are currently accepting mail registration. The first week for most classes is Sept. 22-27, but a few classes are starting earlier. The schedule is available by phoning the registrar at the College of Marin during the day or the Adult Education Office in the evening. Usual class fee is $6. Special Emeritus College Gold Card (for people over 55 is $3.

The extension program from Sonoma State College provides continuing education opportunities for adults in a six-county service area which includes Marin and Sonoma. The classes listed herein are located in Marin County. Credit and noncredit extension courses, television courses, external degree programs and other services are available. External degree programs now include: BA in liberal studies, BA in criminal justice administration, MA in counseling, MA in education, MS in medical technology, and MA in psychology. For further information call Dr. Leonard Swenson, coordinator.

The Marin Regional Occupational Program provides continuing programs to train for job skills. The class locations are spread throughout the county depending on the training program. Classes are held mornings, afternoons, evenings, and some Saturdays. For schedules phone the Marin County Superintendent of Schools office. There are no fees for classes.

Dominican College provides a program for men and women returning to college after a number of years away from the classroom. Classes are designed to enable nondegree adults to enhance both their personal and professional lives. The fees vary.

Petaluma Adult Education offers a variety of classes in Petaluma and Rohnert Park. Classes are now in session. For information call the Joint Union High School District. Some no fee classes and special fees. Usual class fees are $4.50.

Tax Rate Vetoed By Mayor Alioto

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Board of Supervisors yesterday adopted a record property tax for San Francisco on a 6-5 vote. But it was promptly vetoed by Mayor Joseph L. Alioto.

After a bitter debate, the supervisors voted a 70-cent increase to the $12.25 tax rate after being told it was needed by controller Nathan Cooper and budget analyst Walter Quinn.

But budget analyst George Grubb said that a continuation of the $12.25 tax rate would produce enough revenue.

The narrow vote makes an override doubtful which would set up an unusual situation. In recent years, the supervisors and the mayor have never failed to adopt a property tax rate through normal procedures.

Mother-To-Be On Right Ferry

The crew of the ferry Spokane calls the 5:50 a.m. trip the "Hospital Special" because many of the regular commuters are nurses and other medical employes due for the 7 a.m. shift at Seattle hospitals.

So when Rachel's mother, Brook Ann Morland, realized she was about to give birth, crewman Bill Haffie scrambled around and in no time he had nurses from Swedish Hospital, Providence Hospital and Virginia Mason Hospital assisting with the birth.

Self-Examination Of Breasts For Cancer Easy For Women

B. G. writes: "My 35-year-old wife had examined her breasts for lumps every month for several years. The morning she found a lump in her breast she consulted the doctor who recommended surgery. It was cancerous, but she is all right because it was detected and removed in time. She was grateful to her doctor for insisting that she learn how to examine her breasts.

"For several months after the surgery, she did not examine the remaining breast, thinking, perhaps that like lightning, cancer never strikes twice. Then she remembered that in one of your columns, you said that there was a 7 to 10 per cent chance that another cancer could occur in the other breast. The daily self-examination of the breast was resumed and, one year later, she found another lump.

"AFTER SHE had aradical mastectomy on both breasts, she joined 'Reach for Recovery,' an organization whose members have all undergone surgery for breast cancer. They had her out of her emotional slump in no time at all."

The second breast cancer was in no way related to the first cancer. It was actually another cancer as a result of the spreading (metastasizing) because it was not eliminated completely the first time.

One malignancy does not confer immunity to the same or other types of cancer. The physician's reasoning behind removal of both breasts, even when only one is involved, is predicated upon the high incidence of a second cancer. Besides, a second or simple mastectomy carries a low mortality rate.

PROPHYLACTIC MASTECTOMY (removal of the noncancerous breast) need not be done if the woman makes it a daily practice to self-examine the remaining breast, especially after the completion of the menstrual period. Since there is a 90 per cent chance that a malignancy will not develop in the other breast, most surgeons will not remove it, because as with all surgery, there is a possibility that the incision may become infected.

The technique of self-examination of the breasts is not difficult. The woman sits or stands before a mirror, arms at her sides, and observes the size and shape of each breast (front and side). While standing erect, ane with arms alternately raised over the head, the breasts are felt for any mass or thickening. Then while lying down, examine the outer half of the breast. With a little practice, even a tiny growth could be detected.

STONE RESIDUAL

E. A. writes: What is meant by residual stones in the common duct after gallbladder surgery?

REPLY

At surgery, smaller stones may be in the process of leaving the gallbladder. They are called residual because they are found occasionally in the common duct, the passageway leading from the gallbladder to the intestine. Dr. Harold L. Method tells me that most surgeons do special X-rays of the common duct at the time of surgery to make sure there are no residual stones.

APLASTIC ANEMIA

REPLY

A form of anemia in which the blood-forming elements "go on strike." Red cells, dying off at a normal rate, are not replaced fast enough. The cause of primary aplastic anemia is not known, but in the secondary type, chemicals, drugs or radiation usually have disturbed the blood-producing mechanism.

BOILS: NOT INK, STAPH

A reader writes: My brother is a printer. Could the inks and other chemicals used in the shop be causing recurrent boils? Before he took the job, he never had a boil in his life.

REPLY

Boils are caused by straphylococci, not ink, and occur in people who have never set foot in a print shop. Your brother ought to practice scrupulous cleanliness because "a clean neck never boils."

COLLES' FRACTURE

A. B. writes: What is a Colles' fracture?

REPLY

Fracture of the radius bone of the forearm, usually at the end next to the wrist. This common fracture usually occurs when a person falls on his outstretched hand.

SHAKY HANDS

V. T. writes: Is there a medication I can take to prevent my hands from shaking when I eat out?

REPLY

A sedative may help or, perhaps, a cocktail. I assume you know why your hands shake.

FOOD AND PRESSURE

P. F. writes: If I eat chili or hot tamales, will my blood pressure go up?

REPLY

No. A person's emotional makeup is responsible for hypertension.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Boxer Paul Sherry A Traveling Man

Paul Sherry of Ross is no longer back in Marin a few days after a trip to Cuba and he's already talking about a trip to Poland. And like his Cuban visit, he's going across the sea to fight.

Sherry, you see, is one of the top amateur boxers in the United States. He was on the U.S. team which competed in the first World Amateur Boxing Championship two weeks ago in Havana, Cuba.

PAUL SHERRY

Sherry, winner of the San Francisco Golden Gloves title in the 147-pound division, was national runner-up to Ray Leonard but made the trip to Cuba because Leonard turned it down. He was among four or five top U.S. amateur fighters who turned down the trip for one reason or another.

The U.S. team won one gold and two silver medals, but Sherry wasn't around long enough to pick up any hardware. He lost his opening fight in the 139-pound division to Canada's Robert Prolux, a split decision.

Now Sherry is making plans to accept an invitation to fight in the International Boxing Championship of Poland Oct. 8 through 23. He's hoping it doesn't interfere too much with his schooling. He's a senior at San Francisco State, majoring in radio and television journalism.

"THE HOSPITALITY was fantastic," he said about his visit in Havana. "We were treated like royalty."

He said the boxers from the 47 countries competing in the matches had their share of beef — mostly cube steak — a food that is rationed once a week to most Cuban families.

"The dinners were fine, but I couldn't eat the breakfasts. Those eggs ... ugh! I would eat French bread and lemonade for breakfast and then starve until lunch. It was probably a good thing, since we had to watch our weight."

The fighters were housed in the Havana Libre, which was the Havana Hilton before the country's revolution. The plumbing has suffered. About the flush toilets in the hotel, Sherry chose his words wisely: "The toilets were conspicuous in their inadequacy."

THREE INTERPRETER-GUIDES showed the U.S. boxers around Havana, to places like the Revolutionary Museum. "There were pictures in the library of families, women and kids, being taught how to shoot guns," said Sherry.

Fidel Castro attended many of the matches and was introduced to the boxers. "I shook his hand when we were introduced," said Sherry. Wherever Castro made a personal appearance he was surrounded by soldiers carrying machine guns. "I never saw so many guns. There were machine guns mounted on the jeeps parked by the coliseum. It was really strange. It would be like going to Candlestick Park and seeing guns all over the place."

SHERRY SAID MOST of the autos he saw were models from the late '50s and those were reserved for VIPs. Most of the Cubans traveled by bus. He also noted there were "Revolutionary Centers" spread throughout the city, places where socialism would be explained to any youngsters who had their doubts about the Cuban system.

But the kids Sherry came in contact with wanted to talk about boxing, not politics. Their hero is heavyweight Teofilo Stevenson, Cuba's Olympic champion. Pictures of Stevenson punching Duane Bobick of the U.S. in the last Olympics were spread all over the city.

Despite his success as an amateur boxer, Sherry has no plans of turning pro. He is planning ahead to March of 1975 with hopes of making the U.S. team for the Pan-American Games in Brazil.

FOOTBALL AND THE COSMONAUTS

AS RELIEVER

Downing's Role Not Anticipated

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — It hasn't been the kind of season Al Downing had in mind.

After winning 38 games for the Los Angeles Dodgers over the last three seasons, he had every reason to expect he'd be a member of the starting rotation this year.

But the Dodgers, deep in starting talent, had other plans, so 1974 in many ways has been a long and frustrating year for the veteran left-hander.

Some of that frustration, though, was wiped away last night when, given a chance to start so that Manager Walter Alston could realign his staff, Downing came through magnificently, pitching a two-hit, 11-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

It was his first complete game in more than a year and his first shutout in nearly two seasons. More important, it kept the Dodgers 3 ½ games in front of Cincinnati in the waning National League West race, which heats up tonight as Los Angeles hosts Cincinnati in a big weekend series that could decide things pretty quickly.

Downing, who makes no bones about wanting to be a rotation pitcher again, said, after beating the Giants, he's putting aside his personal feelings for the time being.

"At this time of the year," he said, "the important thing to think about is making a contribution and winning. You have to put your own feelings on the shelf and concentrate on winning.

"That's all I had in mind pitching against the Giants."

The Dodgers, meanwhile, jumped five Giants pitchers, starting with Jim Barr, for 15 hits and had last night's game won by the third inning when they scored four runs off Barr for a 5-0 lead. From there on, the way Downing was pitching, it was all downhill.

Bill Russell wound up the hitting hero with three hits good for four runs batted in. Steve Garvey and Ron Cey contributed two RBIs each with Garvey pushing his season total to 101 and Cey to 91.

While the Dodgers are busy against the Reds tonight, the Giants open a weekend series that means little against Houston.

Holtzman Gets 18th; Blue To Face Texas

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — With their magic number reduced to 12 by splitting the two-game series in Minnesota, the Oakland Athletics have the Texas Rangers backed to the wall for the three-game series opening here tonight.

The Rangers are six games behind the A's, and each team has 17 to play but won't meet each other again after this weekend. Only a three-game sweep could put the Rangers back in the running in the American League West.

Vida Blue, 15-14, pitches against Texas' Ferguson Jenkins, 22-1 in the series opener.

While the A's were beating the Twins 2-1 last night, the Rangers played to a 2-2 six-inning tie in Chicago in a game postponed by rain.

Ken Holtzman, 18-14, and Minnesota's Bert Blyleven, 14-16, dueled through nine innings, and Blyleven lost on an unearned eighth-inning run which Sal Bando brought home with a sacrifice fly. It was the 100th run-batted-in for Bando who drove in the other Oakland run in the first inning with a single.

"These guys always come up with the big runs when we need them, said Holtzman. "This

Prep Football Sets Kickoff

The San Rafael Bulldogs will be seeking revenge for themselves and two other Marin County Athletic League teams tonight when they host Vallejo in the key game of the first week of the 1974 high school football season.

The game, to be played at San Rafael's Paul Miller field at 8 o'clock, is one of eight games scheduled for Marin County teams this weekend. Redwood met Encinal in Alameda this afternoon in today's other game.

In games tomorrow, Novato hosts Riordan at 1 p.m., Marin Catholic entertains Casa Grande at 1:30, Tamalpais visits St. Mary's in Berkeley at 1:30 and Drake hosts Petaluma at College of Marin at 5:30.

San Marin visits Canyon at Castro Valley and Terra Linda hosts Mission San Jose at Miller Field in night games starting at 8 o'clock.

San Rafael will be trying to avenge last year's 32-6 preseason loss to Vallejo. The North Bay League team also thumped Drake, 47-2 and Redwood, 22-6 in practice games.

"We expect a pretty good ball game from them," says Bulldog coach Bob Muster. "They lost a few kids, I don't really know what they've got going. We're probably going to move the football on them, but I just hope we can stop them."

Muster says that last year Vallejo hurt his team with play action, and "we've been working on that."

The most traditional season opener is the Drake-Petaluma clash, and Petaluma has won the last three by scores of 12-7 twice and 7-0 last year.

"It's always been a good game, that's part of the tradition," says Drake coach Dean Lazzarini. "The first game is always important from a mental aspect. We're trying to find that chemistry, the combinations that we want."

Marin Catholic defeated Casa Grande last year, 21-6, and Novato downed Riordan, 13-7. Terra Linda was beaten by Mission San Jose, 19-14 and Tam lost to St. Mary's, 22-6.

ANGELS WAIVE HIM

An Angry Robinson Heads For Indians

The Angels unloaded the aging superstar and his huge salary to the Cleveland Indians for the $20,000 waiver price yesterday.

After saying 1975 will be it as far as his playing career goes, the Hall of Fame candidate made it clear he was not happy with the Angels and their general manager, Harry Dalton.

"I'd have to say that the Angels are on an economy kick," said Robinson, 39.

He said he felt "slightly betrayed" by Dalton.

"When I went to the Angels, I told Harry that I wanted to play two, possibly three more

Southern Cross Revamps Crew

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Southern Cross switched navigators and tacticians today as the 12-meter challenger from Australia headed out into Rhode Island Sound to prepare for the third race in the best-of-seven America's Cup series against the U.S. defender Courageous.

Courageous scored a 1 minute 11 second victory yesterday to lead the series 2-0 and the Australians are determined to win at least one race in this 22nd challenge for the Cup which the U.S. first won from Britain in 1851 and has held ever since.

The Australians named schoolteacher Jack Baxter to replace Ron Packer, 23, a Sydney project analyst, as navigator and put John Cuneo, a seasoned sailing expert into the role of tactician, replacing Hugh Treharne, an expert on 1-tonner racing.

There was every indication that today's race would get off on schedule — at 12:10 p.m. EDT — over the 24.3-mile Olympic course. Winds were from the southwest, blowing up to 15 knots, the heavy weather in which the Australian boat reportedly goes best.

As the two Cup contenders reached the course and cast off from their towing tenders, the winds were from the southwest at about 12 knots, gusting up to 17.

It was predicted by the weathermen that the winds might reach as high as 20-22, good sailing weather for the Southern Cross, but it could present a problem for some of the scores of smaller boats in the spectator fleet lining the perimeter of the course.

Both sides hoped that today's encounter would be devoid of the controversy that marked yesterday's racing when both yachts filed protests against each other on the maneuvering that proceeded the race. The protests were considered by an international jury of three, none of whom had ties to the countries involved in the race and they disallowed them.

In yesterday's racing, Courageous won by one minute and 11 seconds in one of the closest races since the 12 meter boats replaced the big expensive J boats in 1958.

Holtzman allowed four hits and Blyleven six.

"You've really got to credit our pitchers," said Bando. "Whenever we face somebody like a Blyleven, our pitchers seem to hold the other team."

In one mid-game stretch, Blyleven fanned six A's batters in a run to tie a club record.

"It's a shame somebody's got to lose," said Twins' manager Frank Quilici. "Holtzman had outstanding stuff. Pitching is still the big thing and Oakland has strong pitching to go with a well-rounded team."

Holtzman, Blue and Jim Hunter have accounted for 56 of Oakland's 83 victories.

Bill North scored both A's runs. He singled, advanced to second on a groundout and scored on Bando's hit in the first inning when the Twins also scored on a triple by Larry Hisle and Bobby Darwin's single.

An error by shortstop Danny Thompson put North on base in the eighth with the winning run. North took second on Bert Campaneris' single and third on a Blyleven wild pitch then Bando's sacrifice fly brought him home.

"Holtzman really showed me something," said A's manager Alvin Dark. "If Minnesota could just score a few runs, Blyleven would win 25 games."

"Robinson and Oliver both gave us good service," said Dalton. "But neither figured to play a major role in our future. Our emphasis now is on defense, pitching and youth."

ting Southern Cross cover him. Then, Conner turned the helm over to skipper Ted Hood, who, in a tacking duel to the first mark put the defender out ahead by 34 seconds. From there to the finish line he never was headed.

He lost a little on the downwind second leg, rounding the mark at 28 seconds ahead, but he made it up on the next leg and turned the third mark 54 seconds ahead. He increased this to 56 seconds around the fourth mark, was 45 seconds ahead at the fifth mark, and then on the finishing leg to windward, he pulled away to end up the winner by one minute, 11 seconds.

Most of the yachting experts here agreed that it again was a better crew and better sailing tactics that beat the Australians. There were several instannces where they could have scored an advantage over the Americans by tacking and other maneuvers but they failed to perform them.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Southern Cal, Stanford On Road

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Southern California and Stanford, probably the two best teams in the Pacific 8 Conference this year, play far away from home tomorrow in the first full weekend of the new college football season.

Southern Cal, ranked fourth in the UPI Coaches ratings, is a solid 16-point favorite for its season-opener against Arkansas of the Southwest Conference at Little Rock and the only surprise there would be if the Trojans don't win by the spread.

Stanford, co-18th in the preseason ratings, opens at University Park, Pa., against No. 7 Penn State in tomorrow's nationally televised game. The Nittany Lions, with a much stronger team a year ago, beat Stanford at Palo Alto, Calif. This year they are picked by the spread of their only meeting — 15 points.

California, Oregon and Oregon State (0-1) of the Pac 8 also play away from home with the Golden Bears 14-point underdogs to Florida, the Ducks 27-point underdogs to No. 6 Nebraska and the Beavers 17 point underdogs to Georgia.

UCLA, which played a 17-17 tie at Tennessee last week, is idle tomorrow while the only two games on the West Coast have Washington a 10- point favorite over Cincinnati and Washington State a onepoint pick over Kansas.

There is a full schedule of action, too, for Pacific Coast Athletic Association schools with the big one Fresno State (0-1) at San Jose State (1-0). Elsewhere in the PCAA, San Diego State is at Arizona, Pacific (1-0) is at University of Texas at El Paso, Long Beach State at Northern Illinois and Fullerton State (1-0) at UC Riverside.

Southern Cal is everyone's pick to repeat as Pac 8 champion and Coach John McKay has put himself on the spot by saying his 1974 team is stronger than the 1973 club. USC doesn't have a tough opponent until it plays at Stanford Nov. 9. Many think that game will decide the conference championship.

League play doesn't get under way in the Pac 8 until Oct. 12.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Yankees Are 'Team Of Rejects'

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Time was when the New York Yankees regarded themselves as baseball's royalty and friends and rivals called them "their majesties."

Those were the days of Waite Hoyt ... Babe Ruth ... Lou Gehrig ... Bill Dickey ... Red Ruffing ... Joe DiMaggio ... Mickey Mantle ... Whitey Ford and others whose current mailing address is the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

But the current Yankees who are driving for the American League Eastern Division title have key players like Mike Wallace, Dick Tidrow, Chris Chambliss, Graig Nettles and Lou Piniella — most of whom are just happy to have gotten the chance to play regularly in the major leagues.

"This is a team of rejects from both leagues," explained Wallace last night after the Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-0 and retained their 2 ½-game lead. "This is like one great jigsaw puzzle with the pieces barely fitting together.

"I was always confident I could pitch in the majors," added Wallace, who saw little action in trials with the Philadelphia Phillies. "On this team I finally got the opportunity to show what I could do."

A 6-foot-2, 200-pound lefthander from Gastonia, N.C., Wallace has a 6-0 record for the Yankees and combined with Dick Tidrow last night in a four-hitter against the Orioles. Wallace allowed three hits in 7 2-3 innings with Tidrow yielding one in the last 1 1-3.

The Yankees scored all their runs off Jim Palmer in the eighth inning with singles by Nettles, Chambliss and Piniella driving in the runs. It was the 12th loss in 18 decisions for Palmer, the AL's Cy Young winner in 1973 and dropped the Orioles into third place.

Boston defeated Cleveland 3-2, Detroit beat Milwaukee 9-7, Oakland shaded Minnesota 2-1 and Chicago and Texas played a 2-2 rain-shortened tie in other AL games.

Red Sox 3, Indians 2

Dick McAuliffe doubled home the Red Sox' first run in a two-run fifth inning and delivered Carl Yastrzemski with the winning run on a sacrifice fly in the eighth as the Sox broke a three-game losing streak. Bill Lee was tagged for 10 hits but went the distance to raise his record to 16-12 while Jim Perry suffered his 11th loss against 15 victories.

Tigers 9, Brewers 7

Tom Veryzer's first major league homer with one on and one out in the 10th inning enabled John Hiller to set an AL record of 17 victories by a relief pitcher. Hiller allowed one hit in three innings in raising his record to 17-10 for the Tigers. Elroy Face set the major league record of 18 wins by a reliever for Pittsburgh in 1959.

White Sox 2, Rangers 2

Ken Henderson homered in the bottom of the sixth producing a 2-2 tie just before a heavy rain forced the White Sox-Rangers game to be terminated. It will be replayed in its entirety during the week of Sept. 23 when the White Sox will be in Texas.

Only Three Games

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Reds Visit L.A. In Crucial Set

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Don't bury us yet," says the Cincinnati Reds manager Sparky Anderson. After a 9-6, 6-2 doubleheader sweep over the Atlanta Braves yesterday, the Cinncinnati Reds begin an important three-game series with the Dodgers in Los Angeles.

The Dodgers, 11-0 winners over the San Francisco Giants last night, hold a three and one-half game lead over the Reds in the National League West race.

In the other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals routed the New York Mets 12-5; the Philadelphia Phillies trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4; the Montreal Expos nipped the Chicago Cubs 2-1 and the San Diego Padres turned back the Houston Astros 4-1.

Johnny Bench drove in six runs, four with his fourth career grand slam, to pace Cincinnati over Atlanta in the second game as the Reds completed their sweep yesterday.

In the nightcap, Bench hit his 29th homer of the baseball season following Pete Rose's 40th double to give winner Pat Darcy, 1-0, a 2-0 first inning lead against Lew Krausse, 4-3.

It was the third grand slam of the doubleheader. Evans staked Ron Reed, 10-9, to a four-run lead in the second inning of the first game with his third career grand slam home run and his 20th homer of the year.

Cards 12, Mets 5

Phillies 6, Pirates 4

Mike Schmidt blasted a three-run homer and Del Unser smashed a two-run shot in a six-run eighth inning to give Philadelphia its victory over Pittsburgh.

Expos 2, Cubs 1

Padres 4, Astros 1

Combined AP & UPI

CHICAGO — Jim Finks, ex-general manager of the Minnesota Vikings, today started a new era at the Chicago Bears by becoming the first man not named Halas to "run the show" since the pioneer National Football League club was organized 52 years ago.

George Halas, the Bears' founder and owner-coach for decades, and his son, George Jr., whose title has been president and general manager, called a news conference to announce Finks' appointment.

"He is executive vice president, general manager and chief operating officer of the Chicago Bears," the younger Halas said. "If that needs further explanation, he was brought here to run the show."

Finks, 47, resigned in May after 10 years with the Vikings' general manager, bringing the team through "expansion" pains and into the Super Bowl in 1969 and again last January.

More Football

HOUSTON — Attorneys for John Matuszak said yesterday they would appeal a state district court temporary injunction preventing the defensive tackle from playing for any team but the National Football League Houston Oilers. Matuszak left the Oilers' training camp Aug. 28, signed a contract with the World Football League Houston Texans and played five downs in their game that night before being served with a temporary restraining order. Judge Arthur Lesher issued a temporary injunction last week preventing him from playing with the WFL team.

SPORTS SHORTS

Football, meanwhile, tops the survey list of 12 sports with 63 per cent of the 1,384 persons polled classifying themselves as fans of the sport. However, that represents a continued slip in popularity from football's highest rating of 67 per cent in 1972.

Golf

PINEHURST, N.C. — Bob Murphy, after a four-month absence from the tour because of an injury, yesterday shot a six-under-par 65 for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $300,000 World Open Golf Tournament.

Tennis

LONDON — Virginia Wade, Britain's top woman tennis player, yesterday was named captain of the nation's Wightman Cup team.

General

NEW YORK — The latest Louis Harris sports survey indicates tennis is the fastest growing spectator sport in the nation. The survey found the number of people who say they "follow" tennis has risen dramatically last year from 17 per cent to 26.

The Italian Club defeated the Bellywhompers, 11-7, and 39 Main crushed the Whuzzers, 21-1 last night in San Rafael adult softball league games.

49ers' Coach Nolan Has Surprises In Lineups

LAFAYETTE, La. (UPI) — There are some surprises in the starting lineup announced by Coach Dick Nolan when his San Francisco 49ers battle New Orleans Sunday in the opening session of the regular National Football League season.

For instance, Stan Hindman will go at defensive tackle in place of Bill Belk. Hindman was the 49ers first draft pick in 1966 who tore up his shoulder and knee in 1969 and retired in 1970 to devote himself to sculpture.

He rejoined the club in mid-1973 but never got off the taxi squad because of the long layoff. Nolan noted that Hindman was a little small when first drafted at 225, but has grown to the 240-pound range. "He's bigger and stronger than he used to be," says Nolan.

Deer Hunting Getting Tougher

Hunting for bucks seems to be getting tougher each year, or maybe it's just old age creeping up on most of us. In checking the deer clubs, not many bucks are being taken anywhere. I know with most of my friends it's "no bucks."

Marty Medin, Ben Selfridge, Enos Foster and Bob Wilson, all Woodacre men, just can't seem to connect this year. Of course Lucky Andy, my son, again on his first time out, got his buck with a good neck shot. He needed that buck to bolster his confidence which he had completely lost last year at Webber Lake. He really had his come uppance while missing four at Webber. The coastal season ends Sunday, so there's not much time left.

PREDICTIONS FOR the late inland season aren't really good, but the dwindling group of us who go each year will again probably take our annual mountain treks. Last year it was really tough with Medin getting the only buck in our gang. It was a small forked horn which Marin County Fire Chief Richard Pedroli says we must have gotten in Marin County. But it's a way of life with the hiking and the good trout fishing still making it worthwhile.

I received word from Webber Lake that, like us, even the cabins are beginning to cave in. Our cabin for the past 30 years has been condemned by the department in charge of such things. Some of us may have to camp out for the whole time up there.

ENOS FOSTER, the all around outdoorsman, took his family, his camper and a couple of skiffs all the way to Oregon. You couldn't guess why! He heard about the good crabbing there, so decided to go. In two days they caught about 40 crabs. His description of how good they were reminded me of the old days around here. I don't think I've eaten a crab from this area in the past two or three years. One time I put two traps out off Point Reyes and had 50 legal crabs in the two traps. That would be fantastic today, I'll tell you.

The Fosters ended their outing with a few days at Medicine Lake, fishing for rainbows. They caught about 40, most on bait, but about 10 on flies. He gave me some trout, so I gave him the front quarter off Andy's buck. You can't beat that!

FISHING FOR STRIPERS is still good in San Pablo Bay south of the Richmond Bridge. I learned this through a coincidence. While getting two new tires for my car, tire man Neal Scheid mentioned catching two limits of stripers with his wife, June. Later I had to go to the Bank of America in Fairfax, where June works, and I asked her about this big catch. She nearly flipped, thinking perhaps that I had had her under binocular surveilance. The Bank crew and I had a good laugh. Anyway, she's the best looking bass fisherman that I've seen this year.

I saw Louie Lenci, the octogenarian, Tuesday with his son, Ray, and by the big smile on Louie's face, I knew they had limited. All of the fish were taken trolling the Richmond Bridge and out near the White Buoy south of the bridge. Tom Miller, the kid from Loch Lomond, took three people to the same area and they caught 12 stripers.

I HAD FORGOTTEN to mention last week that while I was returning from Covelo I saw George Mathews up that way. He had his entire family along, and they had 15 steelhead taken from the Klamath. Yesterday, Warren Nickel called me to say that he had just spent a week there fishing near Orleans. He took 13 steelhead in a week's time. He said, "Now is the time to go." His biggest fish weighed 4½ pounds.

Jim Dougherty of Santa Rosa and his wife also fished the Klamath for salmon. They mentioned about 500 boats fishing at the mouth of the river. In three weeks, they caught just three salmon. The competition is really keen.

OH, GOOD GRIEF! Here comes Medin with a buck. Earlier in the afternoon, he stopped by and read the start of this column. I guess it shook him up because he immediately went hunting. And here, not three hours later, he's back with a buck. It's a monster which probably weighs 60 pounds soaking wet. I guess you just can't keep a good man down. He got the buck out at Millerton Point. His son, Mark, went along and saw all the action. A big deal for a 10-year-old.

GOOD WAY TO START

Stanley Hughes of San Rafael went salmon fishing for the first time yesterday and his prize was this 32-pounder, shown being weighed at Western Sports Shop in San Rafael. He caught the fish off Paradise Park while trolling from a boat skippered by James Rossback of Corte Madera.

Tennis Signups End Tomorrow

Signups close tomorrow for the third annual Boyd Museum Doubles Tennis Championships.

The tourney will run Sept. 20-22 and 27-29 at Albert Park Tennis Courts, plus San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools. Cost is $12 per team in men's, women's and mixed play.

The tournament, hosted by the Mill Valley Guild of the Boyd Marin Museum of Science, benefits the museum in San Rafael.

Entry blanks are available at all Marin County sporting good stores, tennis clubs and recreation departments. For further information, contact the chairman, Mrs. Samuel Loy, at 125 Del Casa Drive, Mill Valley 94941.

The tournament draw will be held at the kickoff wine tasting party Thursday, 6 to 8 p.m., at L. Boyd Museum, Albert Park ane, San Rafael. Cost is $1.50.

Wanted: Linemen At Marin

College of Marin is short of interior linemen. So what else is new?

Ever since their last winning season in 1969, the Tars have suffered from a lack of size. They did manage a 4-5 record last year, but unless some 200-pound tackles and guards enroll late at the Kentfield campus, prospects for 1974 are no better.

Head coach Dick Read does welcome back 12 lettermen, and he is fortunate to have some good freshman talent out of the Marin County Athletic League. Yet the biggest player in camp is 218-pound tackle Paul Kessler.

"We really need some interior people," says Read. If we could get about four big kids, I'd feel pretty good. If not, I won't."

Besides Kessler, the Tars have eight returning starters: guards Brian Jordan and Artie Urenia, tackles John Grupe and Don Nelson, linebacker Corry Parfitt, end Gary Vassallo, and defensive backs Mike Rennier and Steve Withers. Nelson also does the kicking.

New talent from the MCAL includes quarterback Hoza Wright, who graduated from San Marin in 1972 but didn't play football last year, and running backs Steve D'Ambra of San Rafael and Mark Lipe of Novato. Wright was an All-MCAL signal caller, and D'Ambra and Lipe were among the top ball carriers in the league.

The Camino Norte Conference in which Marin plays takes on a new look this year with the departure of two schools and the addition of two others. De Anza of Cupertino and West Valley of Saratoga are out, Merritt of Oakland and Los Medanos of Pittsburg are in.

Sherman Appointed

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — Rod Sherman, former Southern California and seven-year National Football League footballer, has been appointed assistant athletic director at University of California Irvine, it was announced yesterday.

GOLF NOTES

San Rafael Duo Wins

A San Rafael duo is champion of the fourth annual Lear Siegler Member-Member Golf Classic held last weekend at Marin Country Club in Novato.

Dan Mayne and Art Nicolaisen shot a best ball 61-59—120 for a two-stroke victory over Don Thompson and Walt Kessler (59-63—122).

Jim Bartley and Lewis Lovell shot a 57 to lead Saturday but skied to a 70 Sunday to finish seventh at 127.

BRODIE A WINNER. Former San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie fired a 73 to win the Jim Lange Invitational Golf Tournament last Friday.

The event at the Peninsula Golf and Country Club in San Mateo was a benefit for the National Association for Visually Handicapped.

Lange, of Kentfield, is a former disc jockey for radio station KSFO in San Francisco.

GENE COGHILL, head pro at Peacock Gap, will play in the California State Open Oct. 3-6 at Pasa Tiempo Golf Club and De Laveaga Municipal in Santa Cruz.

More than 300 golfers are expected to tee off in the 72-hole tourney.

Long Beach Queen Mary Golf Oct. 16

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The third annual Long Beach Queen Mary Open golf championship will be held at the El Dorado municipal course Oct. 16-20.

Arne Dokka, 30, an assistant pro at Pauma Valley, Calif., and a native of Escondido, Calif., won $4,000 by capturing the tournament last year. He will defended his title.

Tulane-Ole Miss Game Nov. 30

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Tulane-Ole Miss football game, delayed by Hurricane Carmen, will be played Nov. 30 in New Orleans.

Tulane officials announced the rescheduling yesterday and said refunds for last Saturday's game tickets could be obtained at either school's ticket office or by mail before Sept. 23.

Grambling College and Southern University, scheduled to play the Bayou Classic in Tulane Stadium on Nov. 30, advanced their meeting to Nov. 23 so the Greenies and the Rebels could reschedule the postponed match.

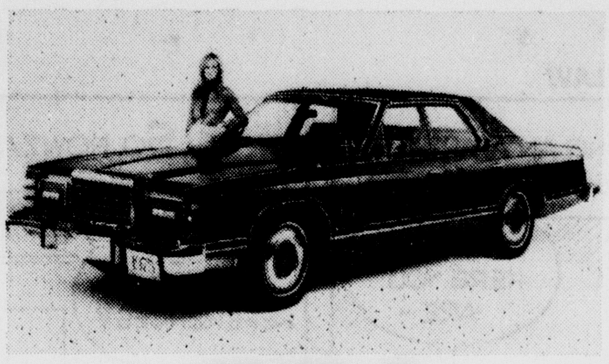
1975 MUSTANG II

Major new features of the new Mustang II includes a 302 V8 engine and a Silver Luxury Group for the Ghia. The luxury group consists of a silver metallic exterior, silver half vinyl roof, unique Mustang II hood ornament, cranberry interior with crushed velour seat trim and full console. An exclusive feature on Ghia models is a new opera window. Steel-belted radial-ply tires and solid state ignition are standard. Local Ford dealers are Lyons-Ryan Ford in San Rafael, J & B Ford Sales in Corte Madera, and Jan Keizer Ford in Novato.



1975 FORD LTD

The standard-size Ford LTD Landau four-door pillared hardtop is Ford's new top-of-the-line model for 1975 and has a new hood, fender extensions, hidden headlamps and wraparound taillights with integral side marker lights. Its interior offers split bench seats with a manual passenger recliner seat, heavy shag carpeting, burled walnut instrument panel, and many other luxury items. The 1975 Ford goes on sale in late September. Local dealers are Lyons-Ryan Ford in San Rafael, J & B Ford Sales in Corte Madera, and Jan Keizer Ford in Novato.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Utilities Offer Yield, Safety

By ROGER E. SPEAR
and DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. I would appreciate your recommending some listed utility common stocks for high income. They should also meet the following criteria: be A-rated in Standard & Poor's, not sell at over $20 a share, have automatic reinvestment plan and have good fuel sources. R.M.

A. Three stocks which meet at least five of your six criteria are Cleveland Electric Illuminating, Duquesne Light, and Northern States Power, all NYSE listed. In all instance, the shares yield 10 per cent or better currently. Cleveland, serving a highly industrialized area of Ohio, trades in the low twenties at a historically low 6.5 times projected 1974 earnings. Finances are sound and generating capacity is ample for current needs. Electricity is generated by coal and long-term supply contracts cover 98 per cent of estimated future needs. A rising profit trend has produced an expanding dividend pattern over th years.

Over 90 per cent of Duquesne's power is generated by coal and nuclear-fired plants. Cost pressures, however, are being reflected in earnings and perhaps account for the utility receiving an A- rating from Standard & Poor's. A recent $23.5 million rate increase should allow earnings to at least equal the $2.34 per share reported in the past two years. Shares at 6.5 times estimated 1974 results yield 11 per cent from a well-covered dividend and are attrative for income investors.

Rate increases granted to Northern States Power should permit earnings to match or modestly surpass the $2.61 a share reported for 1973. In the first half earnings were 98 cents a share versus $1.36.

This electric and gas utility serves parts of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota. About 82 per cent of revenues are derived from electricity sales. Nuclear units should be accounting for about 50 per cent of generating capacity by 1975 and contracts cover a 50-year supply of low-sulfur Montana coal. A small portion of the $1.84-a-share dividend may be non-taxable as income again this year. Should interest rates ease, these money rate sensitive stocks could be prime beneficiaries.

1975 JEEP WAGONEER

Many improvements in the new Jeep Wagoneer include a new more attractive optional woodgrain side panel treatment as standard equipment, and entirely new electronic ignition system, new power steering gear, new shocks and springs and other refinements. Quadra-Trac, the full-time four-wheel-drive system, is standard on all Wagoneer models. Marin dealer is Jay Hollis AMC/Jeep in San Rafael.

TOUCH OF ELEGANCE

Imperial LeBaron for 1975 receives grille refinements and new, plush interior-exterior trims and colors to enhance its luxury car appeal. New features include an automatic car height control system as standard. Shown above is Imperial Crown Coupe. Marin dealers are Corte Madera Chrysler Plymouth, Francisco Dodge Center in San Rafael, and Nave Dodge in Novato.

Grim Economic News Spurs Stock Decline

The Dow, an indicator of blue-chip movement, has been in a skid all week, losing more than 36 points in the first four sessions, and approaching its lowest level in almost four years—631.16 on May 26, 1970.

Gold mining issues made a rebound after a week-long slide stemming from an investment adviser's suggestion to clients to sell the issues. Homestake Mining rose 6 ¾, ASA Ltd. 6 ½, Dome Mines 3 ⅞ and Campbell Red Lake 3 ½. Homestake and ASA were among the 10 most active issues.

Top active was Westinghouse, down ⅜, followed by American Motors, unchanged. American Motors announced a recall of 20,000 utility vehicles for a possible defect in the control mechanism.

Ford led the auto group lower with a drop of 1 ½. Chrysler gave up ⅛, General Motors ¼, White Motor ⅛.

PPG Industries slipped ¼. The company announced it planned to shut down the rest of its sheet glass production unit at Clarksburg, W.Va. W.R. Grace & Co. gave up the same amount. The company announced tentative plans to acquire Transcontinental Oil Corp.

Chemicals and oils turned lower. Point-size movers on the downside included Allied Chemical by 1 ¼, Eastman Kodak 1 ⅛, Getty 2 ½ and Phillips 1 ⅞.

Rails, airlines, aircrafts and electronics had an easier tone. American Telephone gave up ⅜.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange moved lower in moderate trading. Most active issue was Lake Shore Mines, up 9-16 to 3⅜, on 37,300 shares.

Mart Votes To Extend Trade Hours

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange board voted yesterday to extend trading hours by one-half hour to 4 p.m.

The extension for a six-month trial period is effective Oct. 1, NYSE Chairman James J. Needham announced.

The Securities and Exchange Commission already has told the Big Board it has no objection to the longer trading day.

The exchange sought the extra half-hour in an effort to boost the daily trading volume, which has sagged along with stock prices in the current bear market.

The NYSE also expects to generate more revenue from the longer hours. Some brokerage houses have supported the exchange's position that the longer hours would boost volume and revenue.

The final hurdle before the board of directors approved the extension was a poll of the membership, which the exchange said proved strongly favorable.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Health Rule Book Spells Out The Law

Although most employers are subject to new requirements for protecting the health and safety of their employees under the Occupational Safety and Health Act, many are not aware of just what those requirements are.

To simplify things, Commerce Clearing House, which has its west coast headquarters in San Rafael, has issued all the OSHA's standards for general industry and construction in a pair of 6- by 9-inch books.

The standards spell out the conditions and requirements which the Occupational Safety and Health Administration has laid down as needed to safeguard employees. Commerce Clearing House points out that while these standards are listed as "guidelines," they are in fact mandatory, and form the basis for inspections by OSHA's compliance officers.

CCH's "Occupational Safety and Health Standards for General Industry" includes all amendments through June 3 of this year in a 344-page book with a subject index prepared by OSHA.

"Occupational Safety and Health Standards for the Construction Industry" also includes all standards and amendments for that industry through June 3, in 100 pages, also with an OSHA-prepared index.

RAY OFFENBACH has relocated his Ray's Meats and Delicatessen from the Food Mart in Mill Valley to Madera Foods at 508 Tamalpais Avenue, Corte Madera. Besides taking over the meat department at the Corte Madera store, Offenbach has installed a new delicatessen, featuring sandwiches, pizzas, roast chickens, etc. Both meat market and delicatessen are under management of his son, James Offenbach. The move ends six years at the Mill Valley market for the meat dealer.

New Battery Is Waterless And Long-Lived

NEW YORK — Introduction of an automobile battery that requires no water — and may never need service or replacement — was announced by J. C. Penney Company, Inc.

Although the entire design is new, the most noticeable change in appearance is that it lacks water-fill holes.

The JCPenney Battery has an unconditional replacement guarantee for a long as the buyer owns his car. It is available at the Company's more than 340 automotive service centers and through JC Penney catalogs, in states where catalog service is offered.

B. L. Humm, vice president and director of merchandise, said development of the battery, known as "maintenance-free" in industry parlance, was a cooperative venture between the Company's own merchandise testing center and its battery supplier, Gould, Inc.

Six To Attend Ad Institute

Six advertising executives from Marin will be among instructors in this year's Institute of Advanced Advertising Studies to be held from Sept. 19 through Dec. 19 at various San Francisco agencies.

Marin executives include Roy Glah of Belvedere, with J. Walter Thompson; George Dunn of Novato, D'Arcy MacManus Masius; William Kuffel of San Rafael, Foote, Cone & Belding; Fred Manley of Tiburon, Cunningham & Walsh; Edward Scharetg of Sausalito, Fireman's Fund; and Robert Ohrenschall of Greenbrae, Soyster & Ohrenschall.

Presented annually by the Northern California Council of American Association of Advertising Agencies, the course consists of 14 weekly sessions. It is designed to help promising young executives in advanced advertising and marketing techniques. RECEPTION — A reception for Richard P. Rush, newly-appointed manager of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, will be held at 5 p.m. next Thursday at the Peacock Gap Golf and Country Club in San Rafael.

Store Was Surprised By Charges

DALLAS (UPI) — The Neiman-Marcus specialty store said yesterday it was "caught by surprise" by Federal Trade Commission charges it and other stores belonging to the same parent company failed to pay back $509,740 to charge account customers in unclaimed funds.

Neiman-Marucs' parent company is Carter Hawley Hale Stores of Los Angeles. Another subsidiary, Bergdorf Goodman, Inc., of New York, was accused of not returning part of the $509,740.

The FTC said five major department store chains bilked charge account customers out of a total of $2.8 million over the six few years. In general, the FTC said, the stores would notify a customer several times if an account were overpaid.

But if the customer failed to use the overpayment in 11 months, the amount reverted back to the stores.

"The federal Trade Commission announcement relates to a matter which in 1973 amounted to less than two cents out of every $100 of our credit sales," a Neiman-Marucs statement said.

"Nevertheless, in accordance with our policy of dealing fairly with our customers, we will review the subject closely. Our credit practices are, we believe, consistent with responsible standards in our industry and are generally accepted by our customers.

"If the review prompted by this action of the FTC suggests that revisions in our practices are desirable we will take appropriate action."

20-Minute Trip Turns Out To Be Longer Flight

LONDON (UPI) — When Cynthia Nelson's car broke down on the way to the airport in Kingston, Jamaica, she thumbed a lift the rest of the way.

Her flight to Montego Bay — just 20 minutes away — had already left so she caught what she thought was the next plane.

Sixteen hours and 9,392 miles later, she arrived in London's Heathrow Airport.

"At least three different airline people looked at my ticket before I went on board," complained Miss Nelson, of Missoula, Montana, before boarding a flight back to Jamaica.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

John J. Pershing, illustrious American general of World War I, was born Sept. 13, 1860.

On this day in history:

In 1788, Congress authorized the first U.S. national election, to be held "the first Wednesday in January next, 1789."

In 1967, howling mobs of Chinese Communists stormed and seized the British Consulate in Shanghai.

In 1971, New York state forces stormed and regained control of Attica State Prison. Twenty-eight convicts and nine hostages they held were killed.

A thought for the day: British philosopher Bishop Richard Cumberland said, "It is better to wear out than to rust out."

The Familiar Safety Play May Be A Very Unsafe Move

South didn't think for more than a second in playing the trump suit in today's hand. He was sure he knew the correct "safety play." The trouble with some bridge plays is that they know too many things that aren't so.

East won the first trick with the ace of clubs and returned a heart. South won with the ace of hearts and promptly led the ace of trumps in case anybody had the singleton queen.

No queen dropped, so South got to dummy with a diamond and led a trump to finesse with the jack. West's discard made it clear that the slam was going to fail.

"I did everything I could," South explained, as his partner raised an eyebrow. "I even took the safety play, but it didn't help."

South needed two finesses to capture the queen, but his first trump play gave up one of the finesses.

Leading the ace of trumps gains if West has the singleton queen but loses if West has any of the four small cards as his singleton. (In all other cases, the play of the ace makes no difference at all.) The odds are 4 to 1 against getting a good result from this play.

With only two small trumps in the dummy, South should begin the suit by finessing with the jack. When the finesse works, declarer gets back to dummy and takes a second finesse. Then he can draw the rest of the trumps.

If South had five trumps in his own hand and three trumps in the dummy, he could afford to lead out one high trump in the hope of catching a singleton queen. If the queen failed to drop, he could still take two finesses with dummy's two remaining trumps.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one heart, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 4 2
♥ - Q J 4
♦ - K Q J 7
♣ - K Q 8 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds.

You cannot jump to two no-trump with the spades unstopped, and you cannot jump to three hearts with only three trumps for partner. Bid your own suit and await developments.

TONIGHT'S TELEVISION

KPIX (5), KXTV (10), 9 p.m. — "M★A★S★H," the popular, outrageous film comedy about a pair of medics out to dissect Army morale that was the source of the weekly "M★A★S★H" series, will have its world television premiere as the new season's first presentation on "The CBS Friday Night Movies." Donald Sutherland and Elliott Gould star in the motion picture.

KGO (7), KNTV (11), 11:30 p.m. — There is an intriguing and exciting mixture of rhythm and blues, soul and hard rock sounds when Rufus, PFM (Premiata Forneria Marconi), Blue Magic and Bad Company guest star on the "Wide World of Entertainment: In Concert" show.

Carroll O'Connor Back On 'All In Family' Set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Carroll O'Connor returned to work yesterday in his role as Archie Bunker on "All in the Family" as a settlement was reached in an electricians' strike at CBS.

The end of the 21-day strike averted a threatened showdown between O'Connor and producers of the top-rated comedy series.

O'Connor had refused to cross the picket line of local 45 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Norman Lear, executive producer of the series, said Wednesday that if O'Connor did not report to work yesterday he would be written out of the show. Taping of the series had been suspended since the strike began.

Negotiators for CBS and the union reached a settlement early yesterday and pickets were removed at 2 a.m.

O'Connor was informed of the agreement and reported to work at about 10 a.m. he and other members of the cast went into immediate rehearsal of the show that was in progress when the strike began. It will be taped tonight.

Botulism Outbreak Killing Waterfowl

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The southern end of San Francisco Bay has been hit by a form of botulism that has already killed more than 400 waterfowl, according to State Fish and Game officials.

The deadly disease, caused by toxin released by soil bacteria, was a strain not harmful to humans, a department spokesman said.

Cyclamate Use Backed By Scientist

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The discoverer of cyclamates says the government's refusal to reinstate the artifical sweetener is forcing Americans to consume unhealthful amounts of sugar.

The Food and Drug Administration Wednesday put off a request by Abbott Laboratories to resume production of the sweetener, and Dr. Michal Sveda, its discoverer, said yesterday the decision constitutes a coverup of a major scientific blunder.

"FDA Commissioner Alexander Schmidt has given approval for our having these health problems by his refusal to reinstate cyclamates which are among the safest things we can eat," Sveda said.

"I am challenging Commissioner Schmidt to prove to me and to the country that this is not what I think it is, a massive coverup of the elemental blunders committed in the name of science five years ago by the FDA staff and the National Academy of Sciences when they wrongly, based on data available at the time, took cyclamates off the market," he said.

"I am equally challenging President Philip Handler of the National Academy of Sciences to prove the same thing," said Sveda. The academy made certain obervations that led to cyclamates being banned in 1969.

In removing cyclamates from the market, the government said tests indicated they produced cancer in a small number of laboratory rats.

Sveda learned later that the rats were fed cyclamates in combination with other compounds. This, he said, made the testing invalid on its face.

Sveda said he maintained five years ago the removal of cyclamates from the market was dictated by "hand-nose economics of the sugar industry."

'Sex Symbol' Finally Will Be Aired

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Sex Symbol," that movie that — wink! wink! — really isn't about Marilyn Monroe, is finally going on the air.

ABC yanked it off its schedule March 5 after a big publicity buildup about Connie Stevens' role as movie sex queen Kelly Williams.

The film is based on a novel by Alvan Bessie that closely parallels real and rumored events in the life of Marilyn Monroe, who died in 1962.

At the time network officials offered no explanation and the rumors began to fly. It was said the Kennedy family had protested the portrayal of a U.S. senator with an Irish name as one of her lovers.

"All the comment about the Kennedys is untrue. It wasn't even a consideration," said Barry Diller, ABC vice president for programming, who ordered the film pulled.

The 90-minute film, drastically revised in the editing room, will be shown on ABC on Tuesday. A two-hour version, which includes nude scenes, is being released abroad by producer Doug Cramer.

Miss Stevens, 36, was upset by the cancellation of the film, which she said was her best work to date.

"I hoped it would get me out of that ingenue syndrome which I'm no longer part of," she said.

ABC officials deny that "The Sex Symbol" is about Monroe, contending that it is a fictional account of the various movie sex symbols of the 1950s.

Miss Stevens said, "If people thought I was Monroe, that's because that's what I intended."

Cramer said the Monroe association may be made by the viewer.

"The picture is about Kelly Williams, sstarlet who becomes a sex symbol and marries a football player and then an artist and has an affair with a Midwestern senator," he said. She dies in the film from an overdose of pills and liquor. But wasn't Monroe on the minds of the makers?

"It wasn't too far out of anyone's mind," Cramer admitted. "The stage for the death scene is the same one at the old Columbia Studios where Marilyn Monroe made her first picture, "Ladies of the Chorus.' Scenes were shot in Harry Cohn's old office.

The 'Texas Wheelers' Is Funny, Well Written, Worth Watching

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — Stop whatever you're doing at 9:30 p.m. and watch ABC's "The Texas Wheelers" tonight. It's one of the funniest, best-written shows I've ever seen.

It concerns a motherless, dirt-poor, fundamentally decent rural family of three lads — age 24, 17 and 10 — and a 12-year-old girl and their old man, a bewhiskered, wild-eyed, no-account, shiftless rascal.

Needless to say, this 30-minute caper, starring veteran character actor Jack Elam as the reluctant head of the clan, is in no way a Texas version of "Apple's Way." Virtue isn't on constant display.

What is on display is an excellent sense of the off-hand, deadpan humor of the Lone Star state, brilliantly captured by scriptwriter Dale McRaven. He created the series and is its executive producer.

The opening show deals with the family's reaction to the return of Pa Wheeler, who it seems has disappeared some eight months earlier in search of gold and left his brood in the lurch.

JACK ELAM
Shiftless Rascal

His cheery arrival, hailed with a lunge for his throat by one son, is preceded by some wonderful commentary on manhood, drinking, and a girl-friend of the 17-year-old who flounces off the Wheeler premises when the oldest boy takes away his brother's six-pack of beer.

"Can't trust a woman who only wants your beer," drawls the oldest boy.

Dropping out of school also is discussed by the kid, who complains of nightmares about blackboards and chalk — "man, I'm dying of white lung."

The show also contains a wild, classic segment involving both a fistfight between father and oldest son and the burial of a duck.

The direction is great, ditto the entire cast. And the show manages the difficult feat of being funny and real simultaneously. So catch it tonight. It's one series I hope will be with us a long time.
